This was in the open sir, and we can attest the 11th was the "coldest morning" this fall.

RAILBOAD BONDS.

We beg attention to the Bond of the Spartanburg d Union Kailroad, which will be found in another damn. The Bond bus appended to it the intercost compone. This publication is made for the purpose of informing those contemplating investments of the nature of the security they will have, and the simple mode of possessing themselves of the interest some annually. Pay $400, and the Agenta for the sale of Bonds in Spartanburg, Messrs. Foster & Judd, will have one of these $500 bonds filled up. When the first half-year's interest is due, say in July, 1857, all the holder has to do is to take or send his coupon for that date to the Bank of the State and get his interest. It is equal to a check, and involves no more trouble.

We also commend to public attention the notice of John L. Young, President of the road. He appeals to both pride and interest. Shall these considerations be successful? We shall see. ACCIDENT.

We are sorry to know that our barber, Albert Henderson, met with a sad accident on Monday evening on this wise: Several young men were seated in his shop, when a revolver dropped on the floor, discharging a ball into the foot of the poor fel low. Surgical aid was promptly procured, but al efforts thus far have failed to extract the ball, which is lodged in the bones of the instep. Fears are en tertained that the foot must come off.

BAILROAD BONDS.

The Spartanburg and Union Railroad Con now offer their 500 Dollar Bonds, bearing 7 per cent. interest, payable every six months, to Stock-holders for $400 cash. The investment will pay an interest equivalent to 101 per cent, per annum The amount already expended on the road ex ceeds Eight Hundred Thousand Dollars-all of which is mortgaged to secure the holders of the Bonds we now propose to sell. The cash arising from the sale of Bonds will be invested in Iron, and aid on the track; so that the money we borrow will go to increase the security.

The price offered for the use of your cash-(well as the other advantages that will flow to you from the construction of your Road)-should be an inducement to change some one of your investment for at least one or two of our Bonds. Let each stockholder, or friend, now show nce, by subscribing for one or two of our onds, which we will invest in Iron, and lay on the track; and if you increase in confidence, so will we e in the construction and extension of our Road until the work is finished.

ed. We should then at once wake up, and do all in our power to complete the enterprise.

for the sale of Bonds at Spartanburg.

PRESSYTERIAN SYNOD .- We learn that this body at its late meeting accepted the resignation of Dr. Falmer as Professor in the Theological Seminary in Columbia, and elected Dr. Adger in his place Dr. Palmer expects to leave for New Orleans in a few days, to take charge of the Church of which he has been chosen Pastor in that city. The friends of the Institution may have full confidence that the accession of Dr. Adger will secure it against detri-

ANOTHER SLAVERY OUTRAGE. - Some time since we received from the office of the New York Brother Jonathan a sheet containing the portraits of the Presidential candidates-Buck and Breek at the head. This picture we turned over to our Imp, who stack it up in our composing room. No sooner, however, were the returns received on Saturday morning last, than that evil spirit inherent in his class vented itself upon Fremont and Fillmore, with their respective supporters -- Dayton and Donelson -by daubing them over with a strong coating of printers' ink. Of a verity they are now Black Republicans, and presenting as grotesque an appearance as the woolliest-headed buck niggers in the North, and in the picture, as in the country, Buchanan and Breckinridge have their under.

Rev. Dudley A. Tyng, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Epiphany, Philadelphia, it will be recollected, introduced politics into his pulpit. The Vestry remonstrated, and requested his resignation. He appealed to the communicants to decide. The vote took place on the 4th instant, and was as follows: For the Vestry 57; for Mr. Tyng 44; one blank. The rector, in obedience to promise, is

Brig. Gen. Nelson having signified his intention of resigning his command of his Cavalry brigade, several candidates are in the field for the succession, as we learn from the Chester Standard. Their names are-Capt. T. W. Woodward, Col. T. M. Baker, and Maj. Thomas Jones. We vote for Col. Baker as the field now stands.

In Winnsboro, on the night of the 2d instant, a Mr. Leeper (and a fearful leaper he was) precipitated himself from the 3d story of Minton's hotel, fracturing his thigh and crushing his knee-pan. He died on the Sunday night following. He was from Charlotte, N. C., and had every attention that at the opening of the session.

Union, and gives breathing time to the South to In the Senate, Hon. R. F. W. Allston was that the strife is over, but we have now more defi-nite data on which to estimate the strength of Northern combination against us, as the Presiden-and its enemics—between slavery and no-slavery.

The Democratic party, as far as we are now able to judge, will have possession of the Executive and Legislative Departments of the General Government, and now is the auspicious moment—apart from passion and political excitement—coolly to approach the solution of the problem whether this Union shall be continued as a blessing to all the States, or whether power shall be peacefully surendered up to the several States for the construcion of homogeneous governments. The South y with which her rights have been interpreted and legislated away must be checked, and this check can only be given by express amendment of the

We propose, therefore, that the Legislatures the Southern States, by solemn sanction of law, commission Delegates to a General Congress of the Slaveholding States, to determine what amendments are necessary to the great compact of Union to guard the peace and integrity of our section, and render us secure in rights and property. When the labors of this body are completed, let the amendments agreed on be proposed to the Con-federacy. If adopted, the Union will still remain intact, with reasonable hope of peaceful endurance. If rejected, let Conventions of the two section regotinte a division of the national liabilities and as etts, and quietly dissolve the Union, without further animosity or strife.

Since the above was written we find in the Charleston Mercury a letter of four columns from Hon. R. Barnwell Rhett, addressed to Governor Adams. In that letter we find the following paragraph, in which the very same idea is expressed:

"The States, in their sovereign espacity, adopted the Constitution; and by their action alone can any new guaranties be inserted into it. One or more of the Southern States een test our true condition, by preposing to amend the Constitution by such new securities as our safety and liberties require. If the Northern States accept of them, then the Union will be worth preserving. If they reject them, let the Union be dissolved."

While we admit that a single State could furnish a true test in this matter, yet we would have, as nore satisfactory, the whole machinery of our sec tion brount; into play, as exerting greater mora ower, and being more in harmony with the genius of our institutions.

We commend this matter to the journals and cople of the South, though emanating from the reote District of Spartanburg. It will have the erit of being regular and orderly-and, uninfluened by the stings of political defeat or present fears of losing power in the councils of the country, such ection will show the settled determination of the South to maintain her rights, and sit in security under her own vine and fig tree.

GRAND JURY PRESENTMENT.

The grand jury of Charleston, fall term, 1856, nake sundry important presentments. Among as much interest, yiz:

The evils of having two days in which to hold th sual elections—recommending one only.

The delay of important business by the incr number of frivolous cases now claiming the atten Charleston, or an additional judge.

A revision of the criminal laws, and an abridge aent of the right to traverse for misdemeanors. The law's delay, sivil and criminal, is regarded a great grievance, and calls for prompt remedy. It s further suggested, that every district is entitled to the efficient administration of justice at the cost of the State, but that no such provision at present

A codification and arrangement of the statute laws of the State is urged; as, from the want of these, learning and experience are alike set at defiance, and no security is afforded to the interests or operty of the citizen. In illustration of the ne essity of this codification, the jury allege (what may be true for aught we know) that a large body of laws are of force whose enactment by the Parliament of England embraces a period of time beginning almost with the Norman Conquest, and reaching down to 1709, and of which even the judges on the bench are ignorant. Contemplating the facility with which criminals escape punishment under our present criminal system, in consequence of the penalty being too severe, the erection of a penitentiary is pressed upon the Legislature, and the confident opinion avowed, from the experience of other States, that the system would work well

We heartily concur in nearly all these recommendations, but fear that what is so manifestly needed in the way of reform, and recognised as necessary by the common sentiment of the State, will fall upon unwilling cars in the Legislature. But how can it be otherwise? The sessions are so tion; and how, then, can we look for the perfecting of new measures, requiring thought and discussion and interchange of opinion? The jealousy of the parishes stifles all effort at change or reform, lest missed to join the New Orleans Presbytery. some wedge should glance from its apparent course, and spbt off the gnarled and knotty excrescence, or weaken its power of checkmating popular demonstrations. It matters not that a proposed measure is demanded by the people and wise in itself-it smacks of change, and therefore meets opposition. The time-honored cradle is rocked, and infant Reform is again hushed to its unquiet slumbers. The night has been a long one, but we fancy that, reversing the effect of natural laws, the western beams are being caught up at the east, and soon the heavens will be ablaze with an effulgence that will dissipate the mists and fogs that would have stayed its
