Correspondence of the Courter. WASHINGTON, April 26, 1861.

Washington City and the entire District of Columbia are to-morrow to be placed un-ther martial law, in consequence of the ap-rehanded invasion of the sity from Virginia. It is to be supposed that the Govtial law. We have no begislation on the subject. It involves of course the suspenwhatever arbitary powers it confers on the Government is unsettled. The Duke of Wellington explained what he meant by martial law, which in a hostile country, he several times resorted to : It was the right to do whatever he pleased. Perhaps that may the interpretation of it here. The line of communication between this city and Pennsylvania is open by way of Annap lis and Havre de Grace, General Patterson holding the latter point with Pennsylvania and Federal troops. A fleet of steamers is now at Annapolis landing regiments of Northern volunteers to the finaler of eight thousand. Including the New York Seventh Regiment, which marched into this city ye terday, there are about eight thousand troops here. The Capitol and Treasury buildings are converted into fortresses and are full of men. A large force is to go into camp in the environs of the city. There are expected here within a fortnight, about thirty five thousand troops. Large bodies of volunteers are gathering upon the Pennsylvania borders, and their numbers are to be increased by accessions from Ohio, and this force, when organized, is to threaten the State of Maryland, and to open a line of vommunication between this city and Car-lisle. So this city is to be the base of mil-itary operations. The intention to coerce Maryland and Virginia is avowed in the government organ this morning. The Northwestern troops are believed to be more savage and revengeful, and more hostile in their feelings towards the South, than those from any other Northern State. Many of the Western volunteers have declared that they will not cross the limits of the District ; that they did not come there to engage in civil war, and that they were called out for the purpose only, as was represented to them, of protecting the city from an apprehended raid. When the three months service of these volunteers is over, nothing but arbitary powers can keep them here. The Northwestern troops have abandoned the project of coming down by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. The road would be destroyed to obstruct their progress, and, be-ides, there are many places on the road where a handful of men could resist a host.

They will either come down by way of Pittsburg to Carlisle, or take the Cumberhand Road. But here again they are likely to be baffled, for they do not carry provisions for so long a march, and they will find none on the route.

The passions of the North and of the South are now so much inflamed that nothing can arrest the progress of civil war. General Beauregard, on the 24th inst., visited the Washington Heights, and took measures for forming there an entrenched camp and a line of batteries. The Presi dent's house, Treasury and Capitol could not stand five hours under a brisk fire from these batteries. Therefore, it is now said that General Scott has a plan for dislodying this force, and taking possession of the Heights by a movement both on their flank and rear. But it appears to me very plain that the Confederate army will cross the Potomae below Fort Washington, and cut off the Government's communication with Annapolis. So on the Etheridge road will be the first great battle of the war.

The Government is making a great effort to command the Potomae and the Chesapeake by a large naval force. They will have a fleet of armed steamers on the river to prevent the Confederate army from crossing. When the Government communications shall be completely cut off, it will scease to be a Government. AN INDEPENDENT LEGION .- We had heard of the effort of Colonel Hampton to raise an independent Legion of Cavalry. From the subjoined paragraph from the Charleston Courier, we perceive that the proposed legion will embrace the several arms of service. This will be a fine opportunity for all who desire to take a promfucnt position in the service of their country :

AN INDEPENDENT LEGION .- Col. Wade Hampton, a gentleman and cavalier, whose character needs no addition, title or endorsement, has received from Montgomery tull authority and a Commission for recruiting, enlisting and organizing an Independent Legion to comprise in judicious proportions Cavalry, Actilery and Riflemen, or, if prefered Infantry. The Companies of each arm will be received as Companies, under their own officers, and the Legion will be independent as far it can be. It will be considered subject to call at any time and for twelve months, if necessary, and for any portion of the Confederate territory.

Captaing of Companies who wish honorable service under a favorable organization, will communicate immediately with Col. Hampton, at the Mills House .-- Cour-Tier.

GENS. LEE AND JOHNSTON - There two 'hese two eminent gentlemen, now Major-Generals in the service of Virginia, have trod the suth of life in happy harmony. They entered West Point together-they graduated toge her. They entered the army together, they advanced step by step to the highest posts in that service. Nei ther ever led a defeat. Together in her hour of trial they have rushed to the defence of their native State, and both have beed entrusted with the highest positions in her army.

Their father , as they are, were friends and comrades in arms. Judge Johnston served with Light Horse Harry in the times that tried anen's souls. They mode their mark on the enemy, as their sons will do .- . Richmond Whig.
