

Love on the Carpet for Me.

They may talk of love in a cottage,
And bowers of trellised vine—
Of nature bewitchingly simple,
And milk maids half divine;
They may talk of the pleasure of sleeping
In the shade of a spreading tree,
And a walk in the fields at morning,
By the side of a footstep free!

But give me a sly flirtation,
By the light of a chandelier—
With music to play in the pauses,
And nobody very near;
Or a seat on a silken sofa,
With a glass of pure old wine;
And mamma too blind to discover
The small white hand in mine.

Your love in a cottage is hungry,
Your vine is a net for flies—
Your milk maid shocks the Graces,
And simplicity talks of pies.
You lie down to your shady slumber,
And wake with a bug in your ear,
And your damsel that walks in the morning
Is shod like a mountaineer.

True love is at home on a carpet,
And mightily likes his case—
And true love has an eye for a dinner,
And starves beneath shady trees.
His wing is a fan of a lady,
His foot is an invisible thing,
And his arrow is tipped with a jewel,
And shot from a silver string.

Singular Case of Trance.

A lady residing within sixteen miles of Raleigh, who has been in delicate health since she lost her husband in 1863, died last Friday (as was supposed) and friends in the neighborhood proceeded to take the steps usual on such occasions. The coffin was ordered, the corpse shrouded and laid out, and all needful preparations consummated for the funeral ceremonies last Sabbath. Strange as it may appear, it is said that while the watchers in an adjoining room were indulging in hilarity and hot coffee, a noise was heard in the apartment where the remains of the beloved departed reposed. Supposing a cat or rat was playing pranks therein, a gentleman went to stop the revelry. On opening the door he was horrified to find the lady standing in the floor, the very incarnation of perplexity. The brave fellow hastily retreated, his demonstrations excited the rest of the party, and the whole crew, shrieking and trembling, deserting the house for a season.—An elderly negress, more courageous than others, went into the dwelling, ascertained the state of affairs, and with Christian heroism ministered to the necessities of the dead live one.

Search was then made for the retreaters, who being found at a neighbor's, returned to the domicile they had so shamefully abandoned.

Dr. Bell, formerly of Greenville, N. C., who has attended the lady during the past six months, assures us that these are unvarnished facts and present no new truths to the medical profession. It was simply a case of trance or suspended animation. The only remarkable circumstance, perhaps, is the duration of the spell, though after her presumed decease, the absence of that perfect icyness which is peculiar to the dead was remarked by the physician as well as her friends.

The lady is now able to sit up, and being in the last stages of consumption, is as well as she will ever be. She remembers very little of the hours of her trance, but experienced an almost painful thirst in the first moments of returning consciousness. Altogether it is a remarkable event to people not acquainted with medical history. A doctor, to whom we made mention of the affair has promised to furnish us for publication, at an early day, a statement of a far more extraordinary case, which happened in Granville county a few years since.—Raleigh Progress.

A Beautiful Reflection.

It cannot be that earth is man's abiding place. It cannot be that our life is cast up by the ocean of eternity to float a moment upon its waves and sink into nothingness. Else why is it that the high and glorious aspirations which leap like angels from the temple of our heart are forever wandering about unsatisfied? Why is it that the rainbow and cloud come over us with a beauty not of earth, and then pass off and leave us to muse upon the faded loveliness? Why is it that the stars that hold their festival around the midnight throne are set above the grasp of our limited grasp of our limited faculties, forever mocking us with their unapproachable glory! And finally, why is it that brighter forms of human beauty are presented to our view, and taken away from us, leaving the thousand streams of our affections to flow back in alpine torrents upon our hearts? We are born for a higher destiny than that of earth; there is a realm where the rainbow never fades; where the stars will be spread out before us, like islands that slumber on the ocean; and where the beautiful beings which here pass before us like shadows, will stay in our presence forever.

The number of troops furnished under the various calls by Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Kentucky and Kansas was 2,633,062.

An apothecary in the country sent a lady three draughts, and on being asked what effect they were intended to produce, said, "The first, madam, is to warm you, the second to cool you, and the third is to prevent the excessive effect of either."

The young lady who burst into tears has been put together again, and is now wearing hoops to prevent the recurrence of the accident.

The best motion yet made in Congress is the motion made to adjourn. How wise it is to fight for four years to keep the Southern States in the Union and then pass a resolution to keep them out!

The Abington Virginian says: "Baby Bates," the biggest man out of doors, left this place for his home on Big Sandy on Wednesday last. He is 28 years of age, seven feet high, weighs 341 pounds, and has a foot fourteen inches long. He was in the Confederate service during the war, and although as easy to hit as a barn door, escaped, we believe, without a scratch.

If politeness does not inspire a man with goodness, equity, complaisance, gratitude; it at least gives the appearance of these virtues, and makes a man appear outwardly what he ought to be inwardly.

Calumny is like the brands flying from a large fire, which quickly go out if you do not blow them.

Judge Burnett, son of the famous Bishop of Salisbury, is said to have been of wild and dissipated turn when young. Being one day found by his father in a very serious humor, "What is the matter with you, Tom?" said the Bishop; "What are you ruminating on?" "A great work than your lordship's 'History of the Reformation,' answered the son.

"Ah! what is that?" asked the father. "The reformation of myself," said Tom.

Lord Brougham hoped to see the day when every man in the United Kingdom would be able to read Bacon.

"It would be much more to the purpose," said Cobbett, "if his lordship would use his influence so that every man kingdom may EAT bacon."

There are three kinds of men who are indiscreet: an impudent man, a man drunk and a fool.

Singular Method of Study.

It is recorded of Anthony Magliabechi, that his attention was continually absorbed, day and night, among his books. An old cloak served him for a gown in the day, and for bed clothes at night. He had one straw chair for his table, and another for his bed, in which he generally remained fixed, in the midst of a heap of volumes and papers, until he was overpowered by sleep. With all this intense application to reading, his knowledge was well estimated in the observation applied to him, that he was a learned man among booksellers, and a bookseller among the learned.

John William, an English prelate, used to study in a particular way. He used to allot one month to a certain province, esteeming variety almost as refreshing as cessation from labor; at the end of which he would take up some other matter, and so on till he came round to his former courses.

Mezerai, the famous historian, used to study and write by candle light, even at noonday in summer, and, as if there had been no sun in the world, always waited upon his company to the door with a candle in his hand.

The famous Mr. Brindley, when an extraordinary difficulty occurred to him in the execution of his works, generally retired to bed, and has been known to lie there one, two or three days, till he had surmounted it. He would then get up and execute his design, without any drawing or model, for he had a prodigious memory, and carried every thing in his
