THE BROKEN MUG.
ONE ON A LATE MELANCHOLY ACCIDENT IN THE SHENANDOAH VALLEY.

My mug is broken, my heart is sad!
What woes can fate still hold in store?
The friend I cherished a thousand days
Is smashed to pieces on the floor!
Is shattered and to Lumbo gone,
I'll see my mug no more!

Relic it was of joyous hours
Whose golden memories still allure—
When coffee made of rye we drank,
And grey was all the dress we wore!
When we were paid some cents a month
But never ask'd for more.

In marches long by day and night,
In raids, hot charges, sneaks of war,
Strapped on the saddle at my back
This faithful comrade still I bore—
This old companion true and tried,
I'll never carry more!

Bright days! when young in heart and hope
The pulse leaped at the words "La Glorie!"
When the grey people cried—"hot fight!"
Why we have one to four!"
When but to see the foemen's face
Was all they asked—no more.

From the Rapidan to Gettysburg
'Hard bread' behind 'Sour Krout' before
This friend went with the cavalry
And heard the jarring cannon roar
In front of Cemetery Hill—
Good Heavens! how they did roar.

Then back again, the foe behind,
Back to the "old Virginia shore,"
Some dead and wounded left—some holes
In flags the sullen grey backs bore;
This mug had made the great campaign
And we'd had gone once more!

Alas! we never went again!
The red cross banner, slow but sure "Fell back"—we bade to sour Krout
(Like the love of Lenore)
A long, sad, lingering farewell—
To taste its joys no more.

But still we fought and ate hard bread
Or starved—good friend our woes deplore!
And still this faithful friend remained Riding behind me as before—
The friend on march, in bivouac,
When others were no more.

How oft we drove the horseman blue
In summer bright or wintry frore!
How oft before the Southern charge
Thro' field and wood the blue birds tore!
I'm "harmonized!" to day, but think I'd like to charge once more.

Oh yes! we're all "fraternal" now
Purged of our sins we're clean and pure, Congress will "reconstruct" us so n—
But no grey people on that floor!
I'm harmonized—"so called"—but long
To see those times once more.

Gay days! the sun was brighter then,
And we were happy though so poor!
That past comes back as I behold,
My shattered friend upon the floor,
My splintered, useless, ruined mug,
From which I'll drink no more.

How many lips I'll love for aye,
While heart and memory endure,
Have touched this broken cup and laughed—
How they did laugh—in days of yore!
Those days we'd call a "beauteous dream
If they had been no more!"

Dear comrades, dead this many a day!
I saw you wailing in your gore
After those days amid the pines
On the Rappahannock shore!
When the joy of life was much to me,
But your warm hearts were more!

Yours was the grand heroic nerve,
That laughs amid the storm of war—
Souls that "loved much" your native land,
Who fought and died therefor!
You gave your youth, your brains, your arms,
Your blood—you had no more!

You lived and died true to your flag!
And now your wounds are healed—but sore
Are many hearts that think of you,
When you have "gone before,"
Peace, comrade! God bound up those forms
They are "Whole" forevermore!

Those lips this broken vessel touched,
His too!—the man we all adore—
That cavalier of cavaliers,
Whose voice will ring no more,
Whose plume will float amid the storm
Of battle never more!

Not on this idle page I write
That name of names, shined in the core
Of every heart! peace! foolish pen,
Hush! words so cold and poor!
His sword is rust; the blue eye dim,
His bugle sounds no more!

Yet even here write this, he charged
As Rupert, in the years before,
And when his stern hard work was done,
His griefs, joys, battles o'er—
His mighty spirit rode the storm,
And led his men once more!

He lies beneath his native sod,
Where violets spring or frost is hoar;
He rocks not—charging squadrons watch
His raven plume no more,
That smile we'll see, that voice we'll hear,
That hand we'll touch no more.

My foolish mirth is quenched in tears;
Poor fragments strewed upon the floor,
You are a type of nobler things,
That find their use no more—Things glorious once, now trodden down—
That make us smile no more!

Of courage, pride, high hopes, stout hearts,
Hard stubborn nerve, devotion pure,
Beating his wings against the bars,
The prisoned eagle tried to soar!
Out matched, o'erwhelmed, we struggled still Bread failed—we fought no more.

Lies in the dust the shattered staff,
That bore aloft on sea and shore,
That blazing flag, amid the storm!
And none are now so poor—
So poor to do it reverence,
Now when it flames no more!

But it is glorious in the dust,
Sacred till time shall be no more,
Spare it, fierce editors, your scorn,
The dread "Rebellion's" o'er!
Furl the great flag—hide cross and star,
Thrust into darkness star and bar,
But look! across the ages far
It flames forevermore!

A negro employed on General Forrest's plantation, while assaulting his (the negro's) sick wife, was remonstrated with by General Forrest. The negro drew a knife and attempted to kill the General, who, after receiving a wound in the hand, seized an axe and killed the negro. Gen. Forrest then gave himself up to the sheriff. The negroes on the plantation justify the homicide.

WIT AND HUMOR.

Why is a newspaper like an army? Because it has leaders, columns and reviews.
Woman's influence is powerful, especially when she wants anything.
Why is an Archbishop like the Secretary of War? He regulates the canons.
A lady's dressing table is perhaps called a toilet because it is there most of her toil is generally performed.
Why are young ladies, travelling with baggage, like trees? Because their hearts are in their trunks.
We all have two educations—one of which we receive from others; another, and the most valuable, which we give ourselves.
A celebrated character, who was surrounded by enemies, used to remark:
"They are sparks which, if you do not blow, will go out themselves."
An Irishman describes metaphysics as "Two men talking together, one of them trying to explain something he knows nothing about, and the other unable to understand him."
A cotemporary, announcing the marriage of an editor, says he was always of the opinion that editors had just as good a right to starve some man's daughter as any one else.
The darkey who greased his feet so that he would not make a noise when he went to steal chickens, slipped from the henroost into the custody of the owner. He gave as a reason for being there, "Dat he only cum dar to see if de chickens sleep wid dere eyes open."
A clergyman at the examination of the young scholars of his Sunday school, put the following question:
"Why did the children of Israel set up a golden calf?" "Because they had not money enough to purchase a cow." Whatever faults Voltaire may have had, he certainly showed himself a man of sense when he said, "The more married men you have, the fewer crimes there will be.
Marriage renders a man more virtuous and more wise."
A wag says of a woman: To her virtue we give love; to her beauty we give admiration; to her whims we give indulgence; to her tongue we give liberty; to her wants we give our purses; to her person we give ourselves; to her hoops, the whole pavement.
"Father, did you ever have another wife besides mother?" "No, my boy; what possessed you to ask such a question?" "Because I saw in the old family bible where you married Anno Domini, 1835, and that isn't mother, for her name was Sally Smith."
There is a girl in Troy whose lips are so sweet that they stick together every morning by the honey they distill, and she cannot open her mouth until she has parted her lips with a silver knife. She will be a treasure to her husband, not only on account of her sweetness, but because she can occasionally keep her mouth shut.
A descent was made on a body of smugglers at Bristol, Mass., on Sunday. The goods were in a barn, where the officers found twenty eight barrels of rum covered up under the hay, and about ninety thousand and segars, in boxes about the size of a sugar box, and sixteen demijohns of liquor.
Some wag, who ought to be condemned to read the speeches of Sumner and Stevens from beginning to end, lately sent to the President a copy of a medicinal play-card, lettered "Shattered Constitutions restored. Use Helmbold's Buchu." The barbarian wrote in pencil on the margin
"Try it, Andy, on the present Constitution."
Women require more sleep than men, and farmers less than those engaged in any other occupation. Editors, reporters, printers and telegraph operators require no sleep at all. Lawyers can sleep as much as they choose, as they will thus be kept out of mischief. Clergymen are allowed to sleep twenty-four hours, and to put their parishes to sleep once a week.
