

Beaufort County Republican

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1871.

Heavy frosts are reported in the vicinity of Marion, and Anderson C. H.

Harmony Lodge No. 22, F. A. M. meet this evening, Thursday, at their room in 8th street.

We are under obligations to Mr. H. C. EARL, the courteous manager of the W. U. Telegraph office for furnishing us with a detailed account of the Chicago conflagration.

Dr. H. JONES, colored physician from the North, has opened an office in town where he can be consulted professionally, and also at Frigg's Corner, St. Helena.

The cotton ginning establishments have got to work. WATERHOUSE & RICKER'S, Mr. POLLITZER'S, Mr. STUART'S, and WALLACE & MATHER'S, running about twenty gins. Cotton is coming in rapidly in small quantities.

In consequence of a venire for Juries not being issued, owing to the late unhealthy condition of the city, no Court will be held this month.

We regret to learn that the Rev. Mr. J. GARRISON is confined to his bed from an accident received at the Depot in Baltimore, as he was returning South. The wound just below the knee, caused him little pain at first, but on his arrival home, it has been increasing, and the pain is intense. He is suffering much but no serious results are apprehended.

RUNAWAYS.—Two sailors from the ship Martin Luther, lying in Bull River, undertook to desert the ship, by stealing one of the small boats belonging to her. They started for Beaufort, and believing they would be searched after, they went into one of the numerous creeks, left their boat in the hands of a colored man, and came to town in a dug out, when they were overhauled by the Captain and lodged in jail.

Where is the Port Physician? Monday last the Pilot Boy awaited at the quarantine ground nearly or quite an hour for the arrival of the Physician, and he not putting in an appearance, she steamed slowly to her wharf, and on reaching it was not allowed to land, and after making a circuit in the river, came again to the wharf, when a member of the Board of Health permitted her to land. In our belief this quarantine restriction is all a farce, and the quicker it is dispensed with the better. If, however, they see fit to continue, let the officers be at their posts, and not cause the detention of vessels when there is no reason.

DESIGN FOR A DEPOT.—Mr. PAUL BRODIE has exhibited to us a plan for a depot which he hopes to see adopted. The building is shaped, and will be constructed of yellow pine. The main portion, one story in height, which are located two commodious waiting rooms, ticket office, Telegraph and Express office, water closets with lavatory attached. The means of communication between the waiting rooms and various offices are convenient and ample.

The Freight room is located in the short end of L, which is two stories high. The whole of the first floor, 18x35 feet is devoted to storage of freight, while the second story, with the same dimensions as to length and width is intended for office purposes for the convenience of officers or employes of the R. R. A veranda projecting ten feet from this line of the main building completes the front. This feature of the work is composed of coupled columns, with moulded capitals supporting an architrave—frieze and cornice surmounted by a balustrade. A French roof of iron rail covers the building, and the windows are paneled—have rectangular projections at top, and will be suncoed; all the outer doors and windows are circular headed. The Depot will front on the track from caufort. This difficulty may be surmounted in one of two ways by locating the building on the opposite side of the track from caufort, or at a trifling additional expense have the rear a duplicate of the front.

In originating this plan, the artist has adhered somewhat to the Tuscan order of architecture, although the general character of the building cannot be considered Italian. Common sense as well as the necessities of our climate insist upon chimneys and verandas. The result of this is a complete mutilation of all classic outline, to obtain which, no attempt has been made in this instance. His object has simply been to give the work expression of fitness, unity and variety, and to do this with such a show of liberality in construction as may fairly fall within the means of our citizens.

PAUL BRODIE'S skill, as an artist is well known to all of our citizens, and notwithstanding we can say or do add an iota to his reputation. In this design he has produced something both unique and useful, and it is to be hoped that it will be accepted and built strictly according to the plan.

There has been seen in several sections of our county.

A friend has sent us a paper called the "New York Meteor" from which we clip the following from a racy Correspondent in Beaufort. It is a glowing description of the "tidal wave," and the deference it paid to the quarantine, by opening or dividing its watery wall and going round it. Or else it is a slap at the folly of these quarantine officers. We leave the public to decide.—It is facetious letter, and we are anxious to know who it is that has so much fun in him.

[From the New York Meteor] Beaufort S. C. Oct. 8th, 1871.

Dear Meteor; In my last letter from this place, I mentioned the excitement which prevailed, on account of the threatened tidal wave of the sixth inst. I am now able to tell you of the actual result in this neighborhood. As far back as Monday last, the timid ones began to move from here, to what was considered a place of safety, and most of them, gathered together at a station called Yamassee, on the Savannah and Charleston Rail Road, distant about twenty-five miles from here. Most of the land hereabouts, being less than twenty feet above high-water mark, was very properly considered unsafe, and while some trusted to temporary habitations or huts, built where four tall pine trees afforded an opportunity to fasten boards together, into the semblance of a cabin, the majority fled beyond the reach of the tide, and a few bolder spirits constructed rafts, in hopes that they might ride out the flood, if flood there was to be.

I being well provided for, as I told you in my last letter, resolved to brave the danger in this City, and the result, though unforeseen by me, proved, that I saved myself from unnecessary travel.

Fair eyes were closed in this usually sleepy town, on the night of the fifth inst, and yet nothing more strange was observed, until just before day on Friday, when as the flood tide commenced to come in, a hoarse murmur was heard from afar, like the surf beating on a distant shore in a high gale, and the tide came up with a rapidity unusual here, I was told.

"Ah! then they were hurrying to and fro!"—"And there was mounting in hot haste!"—Such a panic among those who had ridiculed Agassiz' prediction ensued, as to baffle description.

But your correspondent and a chosen few, remained firm, and as daylight became manifest, we perceived what appeared like a solid wall of water approaching the devoted town, and nothing but the strongest faith in the ability of the authorities to control the torrent, prevented my acceptance of a proffered seat in a fast mule team that was about to try a race for life with the surging tide.

Awful was the moment, agonizing the suspense, to the small group that gazed enquiringly from the end of the steamboat pier, towards the advancing wave. Had we, not leaned on a broken weed in trusting our lives to the civic dignitaries? While hope and fear urged us from one opinion to another, behold the watery wall paused in its course, and stopped south of a line, running from nigger head marsh to a point immediately in front of the Court House, and the happy news was soon bought up that on the other side of the town the devouring element had been stayed by a line running from Sand point to Ladies Island ferry landing.

So fared it well with us, thanks to the ceaseless exertions of the City Fathers, but alas! at point beyond their reach the damage done by the flood was terrible.

As I rode over to-day, what used to be called the shell road, the damaging effects of the tidal wave were but too manifest.

Where only two days ago there had been only a few bushes, vines and fallen trees to impede the impetuous traveller, there now lay across the road sturdy oaks intermingled with fragments of overturned cabins and household utensils. What seemed worse than all, was the entire destruction of a recently complete triumph of engineering skill called the Salt Water Bridge. It will be a trial, a vast trial to the finances of the County to replace this noble structure.

But were I to attempt to depict the agony of the inhabitants at this intrusion of water into their domestic affairs, I should never have done. Thoroughly convinced that they will shun that element more than ever before, I will now close promising to tell you in my next of the progress made in building that great National work the Port Royal Rail Road.

SALIX.

Correspondence of the Republican.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5th, 1871.

The beginning of the end in our municipal warfare is now visible. The Committee of 70 have commenced proceedings against the rascals who were a party to the swindling operations. One of their number—GARVEY has succeeded in getting to Europe, but he can be apprehended under the Ashburton treaty and returned here to answer the charges that will be preferred against him.

The "Boss" has been disposing of some of his corner lots for the nice little sum of $350. cash, and has of course put that into a safe spot. "OAKLEY" HALL has been arraigned before the Court at Yorkville, a suburban village, for malfeasance in office, which consists mainly in signing away the people's money by the cart-load, nearly. Warrants have been issued for the arrest of the notorious INGERSOLL, the furniture dealer, to disgorge some of his ill-gotten gains. TWEED has thus far escaped arrest, but will be bagged with the other game in connection with SWEENEY, (par noble fratrum.) The Deputy Controller, A. H. GREEN, has harmonized the affairs of his office, so that matters are looking brighter. Many of our banks generously tendered him what funds were necessary to carry on the public works and that without any further security than his own word, showing in what estimation the man is held for probity and honor. It was the last and only alternative, for although Judge BARNARD modified the injunction, it came too late, and had it not been for the generosity of the banks, it would have been impossible to stem the torrent of indignation, emanating, 'stead-justly too from the city laborers, a riot could not have been averted, and it would have been more disastrous in its consequences than that of 1863, or the famous bread riot in '38.

It is not easy to see what will be the end, providing each and every one of these plunderers are found guilty before the investigating committee of '70; the vouchers are all gone, all direct evidence of their participation in these robberies are washed away, and the charred remains of these evidences found in the Court House, can prove nothing; it is convincing to the public at large, but of itself, cannot consign these men to the only place they belong—Sing Sing or Auburn.

As immense as these official merditations may appear, they do not absorb all the attention of our people—the drama and opera are not forgotten. At the "Stadt" HERB WACHTEL is drawing crowds at every representation, and the audiences are not confined to the German element, his fame as an artist has made Fifth Avenue bend its knee, and the dividing line that hedges in our aristocracy is set aside. The opinions of our Bohemians can be summed up in a few words, he is the greatest tenor that ever trod the American Stage—not excepting MARIO. That is a sweeping declaration, but I am unwilling to see the fame of this last named artist blotted out by a single stroke of the critics' quill. He can never create the furor that MARIO has done, and though he may excel him in the execution of the famous ut de poitrine, it does not bring him to that standard of artistic excellence which has made the latter famous through the world.

The political cauldron is in a tepid condition. The dying struggles of Tammany have cooled it down. Its influence, not bounded by our State-borders, are now harmless, and the Ring has ceased to be a ring. The wigwag is clothed in sackcloth and ashes, and the big achem has come to grief. It has been pummeled into nothingness, thanks to our Times.

Monday the 8th, will probably bring the young scion of Russian royalty, ALEXIS, to our city. Never has such extensive preparations been made for an ovation to any royal personage, as to this one. We hope this young cub will appreciate it, and inform his royal pap how the New Yorkers went crazy over him, and if the Emperor will deduce the proper inferences, all right. The entire south wing of that aristocratic spot, the Clarendon, has been set apart exclusively for this private use. All the accessories of this hotel, are to be turned to his account, no other guests are to be received, and Russia foots the bill.

THE AMERICAN WASHER! PRICE $5.50. The American Washer Saves Money, Time and Drudgery.

Calling public attention to this little machine, a few of the invaluable qualities, (not possessed by any other washing machine yet invented), are here enumerated. It is the smallest, most compact, most portable, most simplest in construction, most easily operated. A child ten years old with a few hours practice, can thoroughly comprehend and effectively use it. There is no adjusting, no screws to turn, no delay in adapting! It is always ready for use! It is a perfect little wonder! It is a miniature giant, doing more work and of a better quality, than the most elaborate and costly. One-half of the labor is fully saved by its use, and the clothes will last one-half longer than by the old plan of the rub board. It will wash the largest blanket. Three shirts at a time, washing thoroughly! In a word, the abolition of any fabric from a Quilt to a Lace Curtain or Cambric Handkerchief, are equally within the capacity of this LITTLE GEM! It can be fastened to any tub and taken off at will.

$5.50. All that is asked for this GREAT LABOR SAVER, is a fair trial. We guarantee each machine to do its work perfectly. SOLE AGENT FOR THE UNITED STATES. A. H. FRANCISCUS & CO., 219 Market St., Philadelphia, Pa.
