It is well to take advantage of a rainy day for planting if you can, but plant whether it rain or not.

Rural Carolinian for June.

Watering Plants in Summer.

Plants growing in the open ground and fully exposed to the sun, are frequently ruined by the very means taken to save them—by watering in hot, dry weather.

Sanitary Measures.

We have no intention under this head of making any suggestions in regard to health founded on what people may eat or drink, or how they should be clothed.

There is many a farm-house in the country where the family have nearly all been attacked with fever in succession in consequence of their living over a dark cellar.

Civil Rights, and Douglas and Lincoln.

[From the New York Sun.]

In view of the recent events at Washington, it is proper to refresh our memories occasionally, and show how bravely we are moving onward and upward to perfection.

"I hold that this government was made on the white basis, by white men, for the benefit of white men, and none others. I do not believe that the Almighty made the negro capable of self-government."

"I am not, nor never have been, in favor of making voters or jurors of negroes, nor qualifying them to hold office, nor intermarrying them with white people, and I will say in addition to this that there is a physical difference between the white and black races, which I believe will forever forbid the two races living together on terms of social and political equality."

Stewart on Education.

[New York Sun.]

Considering his antecedents one would hardly suppose that Hon. Minner Stewart would care much for the general diffusion of knowledge.

Mr. Stewart introduced a joint resolution in the Senate to-day proposing the following as an amendment to the Constitution:

"Article 16. If any State shall fail to maintain a common school system, under which all persons between the ages of five and eighteen years not incapacitated for the same shall receive, free of charge, such elementary education as Congress may prescribe, the Congress shall have power to establish therein such a system, and cause the same to be maintained at the expense of such State."

The Freedmen's Bureau having come to grief, and the carpet-bag Government being in a fair way to be swept into perdition, it is time to be laying out a new field of operations for enterprising thieves who have reaped and gleaned the old ones.

carpet-bags, seeking contracts to allocate a few; and how the afflicted States will be scourged and depleted over again by this new horde of hungry aliens!

If the States are to regulate any of their domestic affairs, we can think of nothing that could be more appropriately left to them than the training of children.

Civil Rights.

An unexpected opposition has been developed to the sentimental legislation proposed in the Civil Rights Bill, and it is reported, on good authority, that President Grant will veto the bill unless the provision making mixed schools compulsory be stricken out.

Judge Hunt and the Right of Trial by Jury.

The people have not forgotten the trial of Susan B. Anthony in Rochester last summer before Judge Ward Hunt of the United States Supreme Court.

"There can be no graver question," says the report, "affecting the rights of citizens than this. Nothing can be of more consequence to the citizen in troublous times to protect him against the exercise of usurped or other power for oppression, than the intervention of the judgement of his peers upon the question whether he has been guilty of a crime, an alleged offence against the Government.

of deliberate wickedness. They "do not find it necessary to impute an intent of wrong to the learned Judge who tried the case; but the effect of his error was to deprive this petitioner of a great and beneficent right guaranteed to her as strongly as any other by the Constitution of her country."

We submit that if there is any case where impeachment and removal are proper, it is that of Judge Hunt. It is true that he is a man of respectable character and upright intentions; but it is safe to commit the highest powers of the judiciary to one who is capable of an error so gross and fundamentally And would it not be almost as safe and almost as creditable to have an intelligent learned insect on the bench as to have a respectable man capable of such an extreme and atrocious blunder?

Providence and a Hat.

The death of the late venerable Dr. R. S. Storrs, of Braintree, Mass., calls to mind an incident related of him.

Storrs was a student at Andover Theological Seminary, with young Gordon Hall. On a certain Saturday, towards the end of their course, Hall was preparing to go to Braintree to preach on the following Sabbath, having some expectation that the invitation so to do would grow into a call.

Hall, disappointed, one might naturally suppose, at this thwarting of his hopes, had his mind turned to the foreign mission field, and became Gordon Hall, the first missionary of the American Board, whose name is forever linked with the early enterprise of that eminent organization.

No one, who has any belief in Divine Providence, will for a moment doubt that God stationed Storrs at Braintree, and sent Hall to India; but does it not also seem as if he effected that arrangement by means of the accident to the hat?

Spirits as an Army Ration.

Sergeon General W. C. Maclean, of the British army, has seen service in the tropical regions for many years; and speaks from his own experience against the use of alcohol for soldiers in the field.

Some of the generals and other officers engaged in the Arkansas war think they should be allowed to retire on half pay, instead of being unceremoniously compelled to earn a living by vending patents and candy.

Jasper Meyers, a farmer, lives about three miles from Madison, Iowa, excavated last week according to a telegram in the Chicago Times, a casket containing a number of skeletons, bones and heavier bones than the present human frame.

A fashionable milliner (in Paris) "Xanthé," the flower on the left side of the bonnet, of course, madame! Fashionable lady: "Will—er—No!"

Brigham Young, Jr., according to the Salt Lake Tribune, has an original way of complying with the scriptural injunctions. At a conference meeting last Sunday morning, he thus instructed the brethren: "I pray for your enemies, brethren, but I always pray that they may go to hell!"

A Havana letter says that men busy exporting goods to the United States are already adding the income tax of ten per cent, levied by Gen. Concha, to the invoice which they remit to their correspondents in the United States.

An anecdote, some time back, got into circulation in Boston, and became very popular, and annoying to the other travellers, much so that it was proposed to give him a good whipping, and kind-hearted people proposed he was also a passenger, and of his behavior he the remainder of the journey. Before leaving, however, the man scolded upon the occupants of the car, and muttered some words of contempt, but shook hands warmly with the doctor, and said, "Good-bye, my friends, I am your know, what it is to be drunk."

A Good Aerial.—Prof. Such of Amherst College, says that his records show that the last April was the coldest one in forty-six years, the temperature having been seven degrees below the mean.

Specimen School Teachers.

Professor W. C. Russell says that he once examined the principal of an academy in Pennsylvania, who "was in doubt whether Patagonia was in America or Africa." On another occasion "a teacher who had been eighteen months in a New York academy could name to him only one river in Europe, and that the Tiber."

No, nor in Horry! For we can head them, and give them four in the game.

The Colored Methodist Episcopal Church in America organized in 1787 by the M. E. Church South, has about 75,000 members and 33,000 Sunday school scholars. It has a rule, intended to prevent the Church from being used for political ends, providing that no house of worship shall be for political speeches and assemblies.

"If Dis Tail Come Out."—Four darkeys in the West went out to hunt opossums, etc., and by accident took a large cave with quite a small entrance. Peeping in they discovered three young bear whelps in the interior. "Look here," said one, "while I get a dar and gets de young bears, youse watch head for de old dar."

A Chinese description of an American court: "One man is silent, another talks all the time, and twelve wise men condemn the man who has not said a word."
