House and the Sycamore-tree where Amy Spain, the negro slave, was hung by the citi-zens of Darlington, South Carolina. (Sketched by N. N. Edwards,")

The " view" of the locality is not precisely accurate, the representation of persons is the child of imagination, and the statement, that the girl "was hung by the citizens of Darlington," is unqualifiedly false. .

Then follows a romance, which is equally turn over my testimony to you. The writer for the Weekly, who produced this sensation untrue in every essential particular, save the article, who is doubtless in our midst, and simple fact of Amy's execution.

congregation not to do as she had done. &c.

Our writer has signally failed to tell his read-spoiled the whole mess of pottage. But our hero of the pen has heaxed the Weekly with palpable falsehood for the most part. It is false that a section of Sherman's Cavalry pass-without giving an insult or saying an unkind word to any of the women of that town."-

Our people, white and colored, were robbed of their provisions, ciothing, warches, jeweiry, poultry, &c., and some of the most refined ta-dies were insulted as much as they could have een, without personal violence had been offered; and if the raiders had not been driven eff, their depredations would doubtless have been as elsewhere. It is false that Amy exhibited any of the sp.rit of defiance to-wards "her persecuters." I am confident that it is utterly false that she was rudely inter-

Regarding this whole publication as an unscrupulous effort to inflame still more the excited mind of the public, I deem it proper to state the truth. The correction, however, I that Amy was hanged, and that she was re am aware, can never overtake the error. But my duty to my fellow-citizens will end with this publication. The duty, perhaps is mine place. But there is much truth he has failed for the reason that Amy was my slave, reared to tell; either because his informant was a from infancy under my roof, and was a mem. fault, or else because so large a portion of that ber of my family when she met her "doom." Now as to the facts. On the 4th March last | of the court, in pronouncing sen:ence, stated (Saturday,) the Confederate States Military, that it was after a patient and painful examiin command at this post, announced that a nation, and with much reluctance, they had raiding party from Genl. God forbid that any one should ever again as such a scene of excitement and confusion! Women with disheavelled hair, their little children in tears, holding on to their skirts, running wildly through the mud in the streets and in the midst of smoke from burning cotton, might present full scope to the sketching pencil of N. N. Edwards himself.

Immediately on my departure Amy, for the first time in her life, forgot or disregarded her allegiance, which she had promised sacredly to keep. No scener had my back been turned than she began a system of general spoliage and indiscriminate robbery of which I had not considered or capable. From my house she took linen sheets, pillow cases, calico, &c., and from my pantry, flour, sugar, lard, &c. She took possession of a house in my back-yard, to which she removed her stolen plunder, consisting in part of a very neat cottage walnut bed-stead, a fine spring mattrass, a Brussels earpet, very large and of great value. All remonstrances (by whites and blacks, her brother and fellow-servants, amongst them) preved ineffectual. When it was demanded to know what she meant, she said, "I intend to set up for myself and take a white Yankee for a husband." Amongst other of her stolen articles, she had a Leather bag belonging to the mail service, with the key. She refused to obey any order and cursed my children most bitterly, calling them "d-d sons of -."

This is a mild statement, falling short of the whole truth. Seme of the facts grouped together above, occurred on the 4th and others on the 5th of March (Sunday,) the day the raiders were in Town, and the only day they I returned to my home on the night of the 7th. Learned the foregoing, and many other facts, and among them, that Amy was in jail, by order of the " Military Authorities." The next day I sought to see her, did not succeed. On the 8th I was informed of the appointment of a Commission, (a Military Commission, that fungus, by the operations of which, blood of females north as well as south, has been shed.) had been appointed to try Amy and many o hers of her color. This Commission began its investigation on the 9th and continu ed it on the 10th. "After a painful investigation," deliberately and orderly conducted. the sentence on Amy was pronounced at one o'clock P. I concur fully in the foregoing statement .-I heard Amy, whilst in ja l, send word to her master and his children to forgive her for what she had done. She begged everybody to forgive her.
