Confidently assured, however, that is success is certain, when its character becomes roperly known, they have incurred considerable expense in forming correspondents over the Unia; and have ordered regular supplies of the Englih periodicals to assist in procuring mater: Is forts columns.

It is not atogether feasible, when a new publication is conemplated, to present in detail to the public its prapective attractions. It is necessary, nevertheless that its principal features abould be drawn out, as it is by them that its merits, if it has any, shall be judged. This is the more readily accomplished, the publishers being satisfied that whatever in extry and a watchful zeal can effect in completing the filling up, will be done, and that they never will be found deficient or neglectful in this sub-rprize, and in striving to produce a beneficial and protable result to themselves and to other.

the General state result to themselves and to other the General state of the selected with a single eye to their meris alone; a preference, however, will be extended, in all cases, to native productions, when they can be obtained.
