JOHNSTON LETTER.

Death of Mrs. Schnell. Mrs. Howard Payne Entertained With Spend the Day Party.

Mrs. E. A. Schnell died at her home in Greenwich, Conn., on last Tuesday and the body was brought here Friday for interment. She had been in ill health for several months, and every means was used for her restoration, her husband being a physician of note. The news of her death was received here with sadness, for she had many warm friends here, her girlhood days having been spent in Johnston. Before her marriage she was Miss Ellie Ivey, the daughter of Capt. and Mrs. J. R. Ivey. She was a trained nurse and attained a high degree in this profession and was superintendent of a large hospital in New York, also occupying other very responsible positions in this line. It was while thus occupied that she met Dr. Schnell. She was a woman of strong character and very intellectual, and was an interesting conversationalist. Her love for her old home and friends was marked and her home coming was always hailed with delight by those who knew her best. After the death of her parents she retained the home, and it was here her body was brought and reposed through the day and night to await the burial. Sympathizing friends, coming with flowers literally covered the casket, and all around it were these silent tokens of love. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. David D. Kellar, pastor of the Methodist church, and the two hymns sung were "Asleep in Jesus" and "Sometime We'll Understand." The pall bearers were Messrs. J. C. Lewis, O. D. Black, W. M. Wright, W. J. Hatcher, John R. Hoyt and Jesse Derrick. After the service the body was carried to the Mt. of Olives cemetery and tenderly laid to rest. Besides the husband are left, an only child, Mrs. Iva Turner Ruff, and a stepson, to whom she was a real mother, and two brothers, Preston Ivey, of Columbia, and Hugh Ivey, of Augusta.

State Enrollment Given by Counties.

The enrollment in South Carolina for the coming Democratic primary elections, and for 1920 makes an interesting comparison. The total enrollment this year is 226,581 compared with 152,035 in 1920. Greenwood county has a total enrollment of 5134 this year compared with 3,716 in 1920.

Women are believed to number at least this increase and possibly more and the indications are that over 75,000 women will participate in the primary this year for the first time.

Oconee county is the only county in the state showing a decreased enrollment from 1920, according to the figures received by Mr. Edmunds. In 1920 this county enrolled 4,191 voters and this year only 3,790 have been enrolled.

Greenville leads the state with 18,131 with Spartanburg second with 14,787. Charleston is third with 12,841.

NO REST—NO PEACE

There's no peace and little rest for the one who suffers from a bad back, and distressing urinary disorders. Edgefield people recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Be guided by their experience.

Mrs. Maria Benson, 701 Gully Row, Edgefield, says: "When I recovered from the flu my kidneys began to trouble me. Mornings I felt tired and my back was sore. The longer I was on my feet the worse I felt and it was like being pulled down by weight. When evening came I could hardly keep up. There was a severe pain across my kidneys, especially if I stooped or got up from a chair. I was run down and nervous. A member of the family told me about Doan's Kidney Pills and I used them. Doan's rid me of the trouble and I was able to do my work without any misery.

Why Figure Hogs on Our Program.

Clemson College, Aug. 14.—Owing to the fact that new money crops are much in demand in South Carolina at the present time, it is well to consider the relative merits of the various possibilities along this line. Farmers are diversifying but are having trouble finding crops which can be produced at any considerable net profit with any degree of certainty. There have been two large stumbling blocks in the way of the average South Carolina farmer under the one-crop cotton system first, a large fertilizer bill, regardless of crop production; second, having to sell on a market not controlled in any large measure by supply and demand.

The hog crop is not endangered by these stumbling blocks, and aside from these facts it has several other points much in its favor, says S. D. Sims, Extension Swine Specialist, who calls attention to the following facts. The crops grown for pork feed are in the main legume crops which naturally build up the soil. If these crops are pastured, over three-fourths of the plant food contained in the crop is returned to the soil. It can be readily seen therefore that by a continuous system of livestock management, the soil can be enriched, and at the same time, the farmer will have a sure source of profit without spending large sums for commercial fertilizers.

In regard to the matter of marketing, there are few crops which are so nearly dependent on supply and demand for their selling price as are hogs. Slightly higher prices usually prevail in April and September, since in these months fewer hogs are coming on the market. The majority of the hogs come from the Corn Belt and are put on the market in June and July and December and January. But it does not pay to go to market extra-expense in order to finish pork for the higher markets, because the difference is so slight, though with the favorable climate prevailing in our state for a continuous growing season, we can come nearer catering to high price periods than producers in more rigorous climates.

Other salient features of this great crop are small initial investment and rapid increase. Very little equipment is needed besides shade and water. Cheap individual houses are all that are necessary. The increase ranges from 500 to 2000 per cent per year, and the offspring reach breeding age before they are a year old.
