JOHNSTON LETTER.

Baptist Revival Meeting. Radio Concerts. W. C. T. U. Entertains Teachers. Music Club Met.

On Sunday morning at the Baptist church the revival services will begin, the pastor to be assisted by Dr. Fuller of Greenwood. The music will be made a feature, and a special director for singing has been secured. Music is the most impressionable of all the arts, and many a soul has been won to Christ through the medium of song, or a sweet strain, and so in all the revivals music, the song service is made a special feature. Dr. Fuller is considered one of the best evangelists in the state, and is doing great work, being a forceful and magnetic speaker, and everyone that has had the privilege of hearing him knows what to expect. There will be two meetings a day and everyone is cordially invited to attend.

During the week, Mr. Steely Ouzts has been giving his friends much pleasure by his radio, and concerts have been heard from Pittsburgh, Pa. Several other broadcasting stations were heard, but this proved most clear, and in the announcing of the program the voice was as distinct as if it had been done in the room. This radio was put into operation by Mr. Ouzts, who is a most gifted young man and he is indeed a genius to have constructed this.

For several years it has been the custom of the W. C. T. U. to entertain the teachers of the high school with a reception, with the view of getting in close touch with them, for they are a great force in helping to mold and train the children. Then the W. C. T. U. is always friendly, and extends the welcoming hand. The policy of the W. C. T. U. is "Do everything" and among the departments that help to promote the work is Scientific Temperance Instruction, which department the teacher can really aid in, for the temperance truths planted in the mind of the child through instruction and essay work are real seeds sown. So it is in the school, the force of teachers that the W. C. T. U. places great hopes, for the boy of today is the man of tomorrow.

The reception given for the teachers was held in the home of Mrs. Herbert Eidson, both she and her husband being good members and workers. The lower floor was ensuite, and well adapted for the occasion, and was artistically decorated in beautiful autumn flowers. Those assisting in receiving and directing the guests were Mesdames J. W. Marsh, Olin Eidson, J. A. Dobe, J. H. White, S. J. Watson, M. W. Crouch, Thomas Weiderman, P. B. Waters and Miss Sara Sawyer. The receiving line was composed of Mrs. H. G. Eidson, Mrs. T. R. Denny and the teachers: Misses Antoinette Denny, Dessie Dean, Ruby Glover, Floride Hendrix, Louise Aycock, Sara Gilliam, Veda Barre, Ella Jacobs and Superintendent W. C. Alexander and Prof. S. N. Lott. Mrs. M. D. Lyon, Jr., a member of the Edgefield union was also in the receiving line as were the new members. After a warm handshake by all, the following program was carried out:

Crusade Psalm in concert.
Prayer, Rev. David Kellar.
Greetings, Mrs. T. R. Denny, president of the W. C. T. U.
Piano duet, Misses Denny and Barre.

"The Importance of Temperance in the School," by Mrs. L. C. Latimer.

Vocal duet, Mrs. Latimer and Mrs. White.

Talk on Citizenship, Rev. David Kellar.

Piano solo, Mr. Elliot Lewis.
Policy of the W. C. T. U., Miss Zena Payne.

Chorus.
Following the program a dainty repast was served and there was a pleasant intermingling.
A marriage in which there was much interest on the part of friends here was that of Miss Marguerite Simmons to Mr. O. B. Johnson, which occurred last week at Warrenton. The happy affair took place in the church and after the ceremony the young couple left for Spartanburg, the home of the groom. For the past two years the bride has resided at Warrenton in the home of her sister, Mrs. Frank Kenney, but has visited here frequently since she left here. Heartiest congratulations and good wishes are wafted to the happy pair.

Recently Mrs. Mason Burnett was given a kitchen shower by her circle of the Missionary society. Owing to a bereavement in the family, the wedding was a quiet one, and her friends wanted to arrange this for her, which was all quite a surprise. Both of these young people are very popular, and there were several pretty gifts sent in by the neighbors who wanted to have a part in the shower. This loving thoughtfulness on the part of these friends was greatly appreciated.

Dr. and Mrs. C. V. Smith of Tennessee, Ga., are guests of their daughter, Mrs. Wilmot Ouzts.

Dr. and Mrs. C. P. Corn are at home from Walhalla and Greenville, having gone to make plans for their future home in Greenville. They expect to go at an early date and their departure is a matter of deep regret to their friends here.

Mrs. Frank Weirse of Charleston and little daughter are visiting in the home of the former's father, Mr. James Westmoreland.

According to Clemson College expert, the potato curing house here ranks with the best in the state, and potatoes stored here last year kept well. Space is now being rapidly taken up and it has been considered enlarging the plant.

Dr. Cowan, of Due West was a visitor in the home of Mr. H. C. Strother during the past week.

Mr. S. J. Watson had some very fine hogs that he exhibited at the State fair, which were among the best there.

Mrs. Wallace Turner entertained the bridge club on Wednesday afternoon in a most delightful manner, and two enjoyable hours were spent. The top score was held by Miss Gladys Sawyer and the guest prize was won by Mrs. W. C. Connerly, both gifts being dainty card table covers. The consolation fell to Miss Daisy Sawyer, a hand embroidered handkerchief. After the game, prettily embroidered table covers and napkins were laid and a tempting salad course with coffee was served.

Mesdames W. J. Hatcher and David Kellar were hostesses for the Apollo Music club which met Tuesday afternoon in the home of the former. The club heard read a communication from Mrs. J. M. Patterson, district vice president, saying that she and Mrs. Adam Moss would arrive in this territory about the 20th to visit clubs. The club voted to give $5 to the Music Scholarship Fund, $10 having been given to the Loan Scholarship Fund. Mrs. Joe Cox was elected delegate to the conference in Fairfax. A most pleasing program followed the business, consisting of a good paper, voice and piano numbers. Sandwiches, cake and tea were served.

The last meeting of the Emily Geiger chapter, D. A. R., met with Mrs. J. W. Browne. The chapter voted to contribute to the fund for Emigrants manual again although it is 100 per cent on this. Two subscriptions were secured for the D. A. R. magazine, and $1 given to the memorial tablet in Old Exchange, Charleston. Mrs. M. T. Turner who had recently visited the state D. A. R. school, Tammassee, told some interesting things of school life and the new building. After the program on "Revolutionary Thanksgiving," the hostess served hot chocolate and cake.

Music Class Announcement.

Mrs. Leslie Kernaghan announces that she will begin to take music pupils in the afternoon from now on. She also announces that she will begin a Kindergarten music class for beginners in the Froebel Method very soon, and will give lessons every other day in groups at the same price as regular students. Mrs. Kernaghan is especially anxious to have little boys in this class as well as little girls.

Miss Florence Mims Pays a Tribute to Work.

Dear Advertiser:

It seems as if but a few moments have elapsed since last week when I was writing to you. It seems but a continuation of that afternoon's work, and I like to write to you, except that my attempt is a little silent drama, itself a struggle to put dim ideas into clear sentences.

I attended the opening exercises of the Leland Powers School the other day. Mrs. Powers in her opening address said when people left a place they loved and returned, it seemed to them as if they had never left, but had always been there; and suddenly the feeling came over me that I feel like that. Somehow it seemed that I was a part of it all and it was a part of me, and that I had but awakened from a dream of absence.

Until then, I could not explain what I feel when I return home each year—a feeling that I have never been away. I have consciously struggled to recall names and events connected with places I have recently left, but the joy of being at home looms large, larger than any memories of past joys.

So when I sit to write to Edgefield, the place I love, and think my hardest, and write, meaning well, I create a certain mood of kindly thought. When I assume again this state of mind it seems that I was ever present with you in my thinking, ever writing letters to you, that in their motley composition are like Joseph's coat of many colors.

Every person in an audience is like a radio machine, each receptive to a message, and each responding in his own way. My reaction that morning at the Leland Powers School was of appreciation of all the things which in the years before, I had accepted without consideration.

I had been accustomed to rise with the other students when the faculty came on the platform. Perhaps sometimes I did it absent mindedly, or unconsciously, possibly even, resentfully, at having to bother with the courtesy. I do not remember now, but the other day I fairly sprang from my seat.

The middle west doesn't bother about observing polite forms. I had changed since I had last seen the school. It was as though I had been through a dark tunnel, and coming again to the day, I welcomed it with the light of appreciation in my heart.

I left the school when I graduated not wishing to teach. I had had the privilege of learning much and selfishly would have kept it all. Fortunately I changed my mind. In giving others what I had learned, I greatly enriched myself, and coming back to the school, I began to know that until that day, I had not really begun to be worthy of it.

It seems to me that advantages and opportunities are like any other worth while things that we possess. They have to be paid for, and they can not be paid for with money. The money one spends is but the symbol of appreciation. After one has taken in, there must be a division of what has been learned with someone else.

A meal is only half a meal, unless there is someone across the table. A play is only half a play, unless there is an audience, a human element, across the footlights, and what violinist does not practice in tune with the heart beats of imaginary people to whom he will sometime play?

The beautiful things that are learned, and all learning is beautiful, since it deals unmistakably with laws, with truths and with human experiences, are all abstract. We take them, as it were, out of the air. We cannot keep them, unless the element of unselfishness is present with us, unless we are willing to come down from the Mount of Inspiration to the Valley of Reality, and teach or typewrite or sing, or what not.

A thought is only half a thought until it goes into effect, so an education is only half an education when it begins and ends with the person who sought it for selfish ends.

And indeed, all development is but a means of better service. Every person may serve in his own way and no one can absolutely for another what service shall be. It is a law. The idler not only loses time,

Union Meetings Have Interesting Programs.

On Saturday morning at Antioch the Woman's Missionary Union of the second division, Mrs. Prescott Lyon, president, held a very valuable meeting. There were representatives from Antioch, Republican, Trenton, Red Hill, Horn's Creek, all being represented except Hardys and Mt. Zion.

Mrs. Lyon called the meeting to order and conducted the devotions. Mrs. Donald Smith presided at the organ.

The first speaker was Miss Azile Wofford whom the ladies of the division considered it a great privilege to hear. There was a good number of men present who also derived benefit from what Miss Wofford said.

At the conclusion of her talk Rev. A. T. Allen of Edgefield was called upon and made a very fine appeal, as key man for the 75 Million Campaign in Edgefield Association, for the payment of pledges. Mr. H. H. Sanders was appointed to take the lead at Antioch in organizing for the reinforcement campaign. All the churches throughout the South are becoming interested in this halfway period in beginning anew and raising the money which will be such a benediction to all the philanthropies which Baptists are fostering.

After the close of the addresses Mrs. Lyon called on all the societies present and while there were some discouraging notes sounded, the trend of the reports was towards renewing courage and making a fresh effort for the coming year. Mrs. Lyon said that every meeting of their society was an inspiration even if but a few were present. Mrs. O. J. Holmes made the Red Hill report and stressed the work in personal service, visiting the sick and giving aid which they had been able to accomplish. Mrs. Carrie Hammond, of Republican said that they were taking on new enthusiasm in view of the fact that the 20th anniversary and the ending of the period of the 75 Million Campaign will be completed and the celebration held at Republican in 1924. In order to take an enthusiastic and successful part in the anniversary, societies must begin now as the task is a large one.

Trenton was represented by Mrs. T. P. Salter who reported a Girls' Auxiliary and Royal Ambassador chapter organized. In the revival meeting under the leadership of the Trenton church, twenty-five young people were converted and the Woman's Mission Society took cognizance of this at once to direct their energies in the right direction.

Mrs. S. B. Mays spoke for Horn's Creek, which we hope will soon have a pastor and renewed interest in the society. Reports were made from the Red Hill Y. W. A. by Miss Holmes, the Republican Sunbeams by Mrs. Wiley Wells and little Miss Miller, whom Mrs. Tillman said made the best report of all, and Antioch by Mrs. Lyon.

Mrs. J. L. Mims urged the plan of holding the missionary meetings in the homes during the winter months and making the meetings as attractive as possible. Miss Wofford suggested, as has been successfully tried in Laurens county, that all the various grades of societies meet in the homes, and each take lunch and spend the day, the hostess perhaps furnishing the coffee, and in the morning holding the mission society meeting and a chapter of the mission study class, and in the afternoon doing any sewing for the sick or needy of the community, making quilts for the orphanage, or doing any personal service work. Several societies expressed appreciation of this plan, and when it is tried, send an account of it to the superintendent. Arrangements can be made for the children occupying a separate room and the Sunbeam leader or someone else can hold the meeting and tell stories for the entertainment of the children. This plan would be splendid for the winter months.

Mrs. A. T. Allen was called upon as the Y. W. A. leader in the association and urged the organization of societies in every church and especial attention to mission study and the standing of examinations. Any who have had mission study classes and still have a book in the community may get the questions now from Mrs. J. A. Clarkson, Gaffney, S. C. These questions can be answered with the book opened and will entitle the one who stands this examination to a certificate.

Mrs. Mamie N. Tillman talked to the leaders on the importance of the Sunbeam work, and interviewed all leaders of each church with a view to more intensive work for the coming year.

At the dinner hour there was a delightful social time when the good friends of the W. M. U. could get together and renew old acquaintances.

In the afternoon those who attended the Antioch meeting went over to Clark's Hill where the third division meeting was in session. The talks made by Rev. A. T. Allen and Miss Wofford were heard here with great interest by a select audience of interested people.
