Dedication of Fine Arts Building at the Greenville Woman's Building.

Dear Advertiser:

Please allow me space in your columns for a brief outline, by a visitor in the college, who attended the dedication of the Fine Arts Building. In the beginning I wish I had the power to describe this exquisite piece of architecture. Words fail when I gaze on such splendor. Indeed, "a thing of beauty is a joy forever." This is considered one of the handsomest structures in the South, with a cost of $160,000.00.

The auditorium seats something over twelve hundred persons, being sixty feet wide, one hundred feet long and height of fully thirty feet.

At 2:30 Friday afternoon, December 1, the program opened by the singing of the Alma Mater, followed by prayer by Dr. D. M. Douglass, Dr. Ramsay presiding over the meeting.

The following presidents of colleges or worthy representatives were introduced, each educator bringing greetings from their own institution to the college and congratulating both Dr. Ramsay and the Baptist denomination for such a structure. The speeches came in the following order: Anderson, Chicora, Citadel, Clemson, Coker, College of Charleston, Converse, Due West, Erskine, Furman, Lander, Limestone, Medical College of Charleston, Newberry, Presbyterian Theological Seminary, University of South Carolina, Wesleyan, Winthrop, Wofford, and even the Theological Seminary at Louisville, Ky.

The coming of these representatives from colleges for men and women, both denominational and state, is an interesting feature in the college history and a significant fact in itself that such busy men should turn aside for an event of this kind.

At 8:30 o'clock we assembled again in the auditorium where we listened to a most eloquent address, "Woman in Modern Life," by Edgar Allen Young, D. D., L. L. D., of the Theological Seminary at Louisville; the man known all over the world as one of the greatest living Baptists. Certainly this subject was handled in a masterly way, and here I must say to the women that he advocates women going to the polls.

All thoroughly enjoyed this wonderful address from such a wonderful man. This meeting was presided over by Mayor Hyde of Charleston, chairman of the Board of Trustees.

After the address a formal dedication of the building followed. In this I feel sure Dr. Ramsay was the happiest one in the auditorium when the keys were presented to him. This was indeed impressive--this building to stand as a monument to him for his life of service devoted to the education of our girls. We all share in these congratulations.

Saturday at 4 p. m., a processional pageant was put on as a part of the dedicatory exercises, Miss Floride DuPuy, physical director of the college being chairman of the general committee, this pageant showing forth the growth of Greenville and the college, being participated in by the college, the alumnae, Furman University, Chamber of Commerce, Banks, men's and women's organizations, mills and business houses. The line of march leaving the college and then returning, with the floats all massed on the college campus, 50 in number, stopped, where a word of greeting was heard from the mayor of Greenville and others.

At 8:30 we again assembled in the vast auditorium for the sacred concert of 100 voices under the direction of Mr. George M. Schaefer, head of the music department of G. W. C.

The vesper services marked the closing exercises on Sunday at four o'clock. The writer having to say goodbye to loved ones and newly formed friends at 1:30 p. m., was unable to attend this closing service.

Hon. Joseph Jacobs, Consul to China, Will Address Baptist Mission Society.

Friday afternoon Hon. Joseph Jacobs of Johnston has been invited to Edgefield to speak at the December meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society, at 3:30 o'clock. The public is invited to hear this address and many will be interested to meet this distinguished young citizen of Edgefield county who has attained such a high and unique position as Consul from America to China. No doubt he will have many interesting things to tell from the standpoint of a consul.

All members of the society are asked to bring their contribution of articles to the Baptist Hospital.

Death of Mrs. W. D. Cheatham

Early Sunday morning about three o'clock Mrs. W. D. Cheatham passed away at her home on the Martin Town road after an illness extending over several weeks. She was convalescing for a time but took a turn for the worse and human skill was unable to cope with the disease. On account of her reported improved condition, the announcement of her death was a great surprise to her friends at Edgefield who were looking hopefully to her ultimate recovery. During her illness Mrs. Cheatham received the constant attention of her physician and members of her family, two trained nurses, one for the day and the other for night, were with her.

Before her marriage Mrs. Cheatham was Miss Jennie Whatley, a sister of our fellow townsman, Mr. J. J. Whatley, and was reared in the Epworth section of Greenwood county. She was a member of Red Hill church and a devout Christian woman. She was beloved by a large circle of friends who will greatly miss her. Besides her devoted husband, Mrs. Cheatham is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Butler Hammond.

The funeral was conducted at Red Hill Sunday afternoon by Rev. Mr. Gregory. A large number of relatives and friends gathered to pay a last tribute to this good woman.

Card of Thanks.

We want to thank our dear friends and loved ones for their kindness and thoughtfulness to us in the death of our dear father and husband, hoping in some way to repay them some day.
