SUBSCRIPTION $1 50 PEP YEAR

Lancaster S. C. Sept 6, 1905

Some people are thoughtless enough to say that voting ,'no dispensary" in the approaching election is voting against the dispensary. Such is not the case. The dispensary law will be as much of force in Lancaster county when the dispensaries are voted out as it is now or even was. To vote

"no dispensary" means simply we have tried selling whiskey under the dispensary law for twelve years and find that excessive drinking and drunkenness still continue and the sale of intoxicants is increasing each year, we now propose to try the prohibition feature of the dispensary law, for the dispensary law assures iron clad prohibition in counties where there is no dispensary.

No citizen of South Carolina can sell whiskey under the dispensary law. The State alone is authorized to sell it. Therefore when in a county upon the vote of the is duty bound to enforce the dis-whatever to sell whiskey. The

[For The Ledger.] A Happy Re-Union of the Robertson Family at Oakhurst.

September the second, 1995, is a day which will long be remembered at the residence of Mrs. Caroline Robertson of Oakhurst, as well as at the residences of her children and grand children.

On that day this large family connection had a re-union at Mrs. Robertson's, at which the families of all her children, and of all her grand children were represented.

Those who have never witnessed a re-union of this kind cannot well form a conception of the beauty and impressiveness of the scene which presents itself to the contemplative mind. Age, manhood and childhood there blend harmoniously into a perfect picture of life.

At about 10 o'clock on Saturthe State closes the dispensaries day morning they began to assemble, and by 12 o'clock high citizens of that county the State noon, a stranger passing by would have thought that the entire pensary law in that county the neighborhood had come together same as she does in the counties for a picnic. But such was not which retain dispensaries, by al- the case. It was the homing of lowing no druggist or any citizen the children, grand-children and great-grand children at the old dispensary law without dispenhomestead, so dear to the memory of childhood and youth.

saries is in theory and ought to be in practice the best prohibition Mrs. Robertson is indeed "a law any county can ever hope to mother in Israel" and a blessing have, and we hope that the prohinot only to her own family, but bitionists of Lancaster county also to the community in which will now give the dispensary law she lives. Many years have passas thorough a trial without dis- ed lightly over her head, and have pensaries as it has been given not laid that weight upon her with dispensaries. The nearest buoyant spirit that they have laid absolute prohibition Lancaster upon others. Although in her ever had was under the operation eighty-fourth year, her spirit is of the dispensary law. During that of youth and she can look the three months from the time forward with more hopefulness the dispensary law went into ef- than many who are many years fect until the opening of a dispen- her juniors. utitoly de who has gone on before her to the Unknown Young Man Seriously Thinks the Editor "Cusebda" great beyond.

We find by summing up; that the entire connection consists of one hundred and forty-six souls; living and dead. Subtracting second, your mon third, your twenty-two dead, we have left one hundred and twenty-four survivors. Of these, eighty-five were present, making the absent ones thirty-nine in number.

A beautiful dinner was served beneath the large spreading maple tree from beneath whose roots bubbles the old spring that has been in use more than half a cen

The day was closed appropriately and beautifully. To the accompaniment of the organ, all the children and their children's children joined in singing those old hymns which appeal to the heart of age and youth alike, and which ; will never die.

Rev. David Hucks then delivered an appropriate and most touching address, after which they all bade their aged mother good-bye, thus ending an occasion which all hope, but scarcely expect to be repeated.

The wish, however, of this writer, as well as of her numerous friends is, that her descendants may continue to pay their yearly visits to this Mecca of childhood and affection; and that Mrs. Robertson will live to see her greatgreat-grand children rise up and call her blessed.

Gambling Never Pays.

Rock Hill Record.

A communication in a recent is sue of the "State" contained the following paragraph:

"Young man, put your ciga rette on the card table and furn your back on both as you would from the devil, for there are large quantities of hell in both."

Truer words were never written and there is a sermon in every line The passion for gambling is as pernicious-nay, more sothan the passion for drink. The young man infected with the gambling spirit soon learns to become dishonest--- if he does not actually steal, he becomes dis honest in the small things of life. He steals the time to gamble which out to be devoted to perfecting his own welfare. He becomes neglectful in his duties to his employer. He becomes slothful in his work, indifferent to obligations, and finally winds up as a moral wreck.

The young men of today are looked upon, logically, as the rulers of tomorrow. Can they fit themselves for these higher duties by allowing themselves to become the slaves of the baser passions? They must keep their lives clean if they would grow into useful and upright citizenship. They must work for honest ends and honest
