STOP HOWLING "HARD TIMES,"

"Farmers Not Broke by a Durned Sight," Says Senator Mason.

(Columbia Cor. Charleston News and Courier.)

Senator Mason, of Oconee, sprung something of a surprise on the Senate to-day. The point of it was that the State of South Carolina and the people of South Carolina are not broke by a "durned" sight. His resolution is rather striking and unusual and reads like this:

"Whereas, the Senate has had numerous resolutions of a distressing nature presented before it; and, whereas, such resolutions are calculated to mislead the public as to our real condition; and,

"Whereas, the State of South Carolina is undoubtedly hurt by the low prices of its products, still the farmers and other classes of citizens, while feeling depressed, are not yet broke.

"Therefore, be it resolved, that no further resolutions of a depressing and pessimistic nature be received in the Senate, but that like resolutions be forthwith rejected and not considered."

The Senate had about passed the resolution by a viva voce vote when Mr. Christensen asked what it was all about and had the resolution read a second time, and suggested that it had better go over. Under the Senate rules one objection carries a resolution over until the following day, and the resolution will, therefore, be considered at a later day.

Senator Johnstone inquired if Senator Mason was a farmer, but the resolution had gone over, and no discussion was in order.

Senator Mason stated that his grandfather, his father and he had all been farmers, and that there were nothing but farmers in his family. Senator Mason in conversation said that he realized that the farmers, in common with every one else, did not have a bed of roses just at this time, but that they were far from being "broke," and even if they were "broke," there was no use to be parading that fact to the public. As a matter of fact, both the Senate and the House to-day met to receive new bills and to go through the technical requirement of declaring the official vote for Governor R. A. Cooper and Lieut.-Governor Wilson G. Harvey. There were a bare quorums present in either branch, as it was already known that the usual week-end recess would be taken to-day. The House will meet again on Monday evening and the Senate to-day agreed to meet at 11 o'clock Tuesday.

LOCAL ITEMS FROM SENECA.

Baptist Church Recipient of Two Handsome Gifts.

Seneca, Jan. 18.—Special: The pulpit of the Methodist church will be filled next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock by Presiding Elder A. E. Holler. The first quarterly conference of the conference year is called to meet immediately after the sermon. The public in general is cordially invited to hear Rev. Holler, and the members of the church are urged especially to bear in mind the business session.

The Baptist church was recently presented with a handsome individual communion service by Alfred Perritt. The service was used for the first time Sunday morning, when the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered. The church members are most appreciative of this handsome gift and are truly grateful to Mr. Perritt. Another gift which the church has recently received from another member was collection plates, given by S. C. Martin.

The many friends of Mrs. W. S. Hunter are sympathizing and grieving with her in her recent sorrow in the death of her only sister, Mrs. J. Lee Carpenter, which occurred Tuesday afternoon, the 11th, at her home in Greenville. While Mrs. Carpenter had been in declining health for several years, yet she was usually able to take an active part in church and social duties until Saturday afternoon previous to her passing away when she was taken sick and grew rapidly worse until the end came on Tuesday about 6.35 p. m. Mrs. Carpenter was known and loved by a large number of Seneca people, who feel a distinct sorrow in her death.

SENATOR W. P. MASON WRITES.

Has Received Favorable Consideration in Committee Assignments.

Columbia, S. C., Jan. 17, 1921.
 Editor Keowee Courier:

The Oconee delegation reached the Capitol o. k. and are feeling fine. We are stopping at the Colonia Hotel, and will be very glad to have any of our friends who may be in Columbia during the session, call on us. We will feel somewhat slighted if they do not. Nothing of much importance has been done yet. The greater part of the week has been taken up in organizing and making assignments. I, as your Senator from Oconee county, must say that I am very proud of the consideration given me on committees. The hold-over Senators, as well as the new Senators, have been very nice to me.

A bill has been introduced in both Houses to extend the time for paying county and State taxes until the 1st of April. Think I will support this bill in the hope that it will be a relief to the distressed conditions of my friends in Oconee and the State at large.

Senator Alan Johnstone, of Newberry county, has introduced a bill to regulate cotton acreage in South Carolina, and I, as your Senator from Oconee, will support the bill. In other words, I am in favor of any legislation that may come that points to the agricultural interest of our State at large. I want to say just here that we are being told by some professional members of the General Assembly that certain bills that point to the relief of the farmers will not be constitutional. Then we ought to change the Constitution and make provisions in the Constitution for some good laws that will be constitutional. I am not down here to test the Constitution of our State, but here to represent the best interests of South Carolina in my humble way, and especially Oconee county.

I will be very glad to have any suggestions from any one in Oconee county along legislative lines.

Hoping to be of some service to all, I am, as ever, Your servant,

W. P. Mason.

Miss Barfield to Run for House.

Manning, S. C., Jan. 15.—Miss Corline Barfield has announced her candidacy for the House of Representatives from Clarendon county, a special election to be held on Tuesday, Jan. 25, to fill a vacancy caused by the death of C. N. Sprott. If elected Miss Barfield will be the first woman member of the South Carolina General Assembly, and there are a number of persons in the county who are working for her in order to have this honor for Clarendon.

Passenger—Say, porter, you have not had many wrecks on this railroad lately, have you?

Porter—No, indeed, boss. In fact, you is de fust since the country done went dry.

The funeral was held from the residence Wednesday afternoon, the interment taking place in Springwood Cemetery in Greenville. She is survived by her husband, Dr. J. Lee Carpenter, and son, Louis Carpenter, of Greenville, and one daughter, Mrs. Wm. M. Sherrill, Coronaca, N. C., and an only full sister, Mrs. W. S. Hunter, of Seneca, besides a large number of close relatives. Deepest sympathy of their many friends goes out to them in their sad bereavement.

Mrs. W. J. Schroder entertained at her home in Walhalla Saturday with a delightful afternoon party in compliment to Mrs. Robert Kay, a bride of the Christmas season and sister-in-law of the hostess. After a short time spent in animated conversation and good wishes for the bride, six tables were arranged and progressive rook was enjoyed. Later in the afternoon cards were laid aside while tempting refreshments were served by the hostess, the refreshments consisting of salad, sandwiches and olives and hot tea. About two dozen maids or young matrons were included in the fortunate number to meet the guest of honor and partake of Mrs. Schroder's hospitality. Those who attended from Seneca were Mrs. Rob Kay, Mrs. Claude Hopkins and Miss Jessie Lawrence.

JUSTICE D. E. HYDRICK DEAD.

Dead Came Suddenly at Hotel in Washington, D. C.

Spartanburg, Jan. 15.—Associate Justice D. E. Hydrick, of the South Carolina Supreme Court, died to-day in Washington, D. C., of bronchial pneumonia, which developed after the Associate Justice was forced to stop at the National Capital because of an attack of la grippe while en route to Spartanburg from New York after spending the Christmas holidays with his son, Dr. John Lee Hydrick, who is connected with the Rockefeller Foundation.

Although in rather feeble health, Justice Hydrick was supposed to be on his way back to his home in Spartanburg. When he got as far as Washington, however, he was suffering intensely with grip, and left the train there, going to the Raleigh Hotel, where he passed away early this morning.

Dr. J. L. Hydrick was at his father's bedside for several days prior to the Associate Justice's death, and was with him when the end came. Mrs. J. M. Wallace, of this city, a daughter of Justice Hydrick, left Spartanburg last night for her father's bedside, but he had passed away before her train reached Washington.

Associate Justice Hydrick was about 60 years of age and was considered one of the most scholarly lawyers and jurists South Carolina has produced. He was born in Orangeburg. He entered Wofford College, remaining there as a student until he completed his junior year, when he entered Vanderbilt University in 1880. He graduated at Vanderbilt with high honors and returned to South Carolina. He taught school at Darlington for a while, studying law at the same time. He engaged in the practice of law for the first time in Spartanburg. He had two legal partnership connections in this city, his first partner being J. W. Carlisle and his second Stanyarne Wilson. This latter partnership was continued until 1900, when it was dissolved because both partners entered public life. Mr. Wilson was elected to Congress from the Fourth District and Mr. Hydrick to the South Carolina House of Representatives, to fill an unexpired term. He was re-elected in 1904 for the full term, and was advanced to Senator from Spartanburg county in 1900, and was elected to succeed himself in 1904. He was elected Judge of the Seventh Judicial Circuit in January, 1905, resigning as Senator to commence his judicial duties.

On Feb. 11, 1909, he was elected by the General Assembly as Associate Justice to succeed Justice Ira B. Jones. He was commissioned Associate Justice April 15, 1909, and was re-elected in 1918 for a full term.

While on the South Carolina Supreme Court bench Justice Hydrick made a distinguished name as a jurist of ability and acumen—one whose opinions were considered models of law and style.

Four children were born to Justice and Mrs. Hydrick, all of these still living. They are as follows: Dr. John L. Hydrick, of New York; D. E. Hydrick, Jr., of Spartanburg; Mrs.

J. M. Wallace, of Spartanburg, and Miss Ellie Lee Hydrick, of Phoenix, Arizona.

(The funeral and interment of the late Justice took place at Spartanburg Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock.)

Talked of as Successor.

Columbia, Jan. 15.—Because of the vacancy on the State Supreme Court bench, caused by the death of Associate Justice D. E. Hydrick in Washington this morning, the question of the successor to Justice Hydrick has come prominently to the front, the outstanding figures mentioned being Thos. P. Cothran, of Greenville, Speaker of the House of Representatives; Prof. E. Marion Rucker, a member of the law department of the University of South Carolina, and Thos. S. Sease, of Spartanburg, Judge of the Seventh Circuit. The three men in question, because of the fact that Justice Hydrick had just died, would not violate the proprieties by issuing a statement nor by discussing the matter. However, there are well developed rumors by the friends of the three lawyers looking toward placing their names before the General Assembly, which will have to fill the vacancy by election.

One Who Was Interested.

Editor Keowee Courier:

The announcement of the Sweeney Auto School of Kansas City, of the enrollment of Messrs. Sims and Hunt interests me—not that I am in any way connected with the young gentlemen, but as an old student and graduate of the K. A. S., I am always glad to hear of South Carolina boys enrolling.

A man who knows more about automobiles and tractors than E. J. Sweeney, president of this great institution, has got to be born and reared. If a man doesn't get what he goes after when he enters this school it is because he doesn't try. I would not exchange my diploma for the price it cost me.

The general garage and repair man "kicks" on going to school to learn the business. There would be more satisfied customers if all the repair men were Sweeney graduates, for he would not have to pay the supposed-to-be mechanic for four or five hours' work trying to find out what is the matter—if he happens to stagger on the trouble at all.

Mr. Sweeney doesn't mess you up with a bunch of books. He has everything necessary to teach the business. He doesn't only teach one how to do a job, but tells and proves to him why it should be done that way.

Wishing these young gentlemen success and that I will have the pleasure of meeting them some time in the future, I am, very truly, (a regular reader of The Courier when at home.) Luther Volrath.

West Union, Rt. 1.

Oconee Cotton Statistics.

Seneca, Jan. 17.—Special: A tabulation of the cotton ginning reports for the county shows that there were 20,891 bales ginned in Oconee, from the crop of 1920, prior to Jan. 1st, 1921, as compared with 23,268 bales ginned to Jan. 1st, 1920.

THE NEWS FROM BOUNTY LAND.

Several Newcomers Welcomed Into the Community—Personals.

Bounty Land, Jan. 17.—Special: Swift and Frank Marett returned last week from Highlands, N. C., where they have been employed in the National Highway construction work. Swift returned to Highlands to-day.

We understand that J. E. Elliott and son, of Spartanburg, will have a camp at James' Crossing and begin work at once on the State Highway.

Just as we were about to extend the "right hand of fellowship" to Joe Barron and sister, Miss Bettie, who quite recently moved to their farm in this community, we learned that they had moved back to Seneca, staying on the farm only from Monday until Saturday. We regret their dissatisfaction with country life after having lived in the "city," and believe if they had stayed a little longer they would have enjoyed the quiet.

Ervin Dorsey has organized a class of farmers in this community and will give lessons in agriculture every Tuesday and Thursday evenings at 7 o'clock. He gave an interesting talk Friday evening, although, on account of the severity of the weather, only a few were present. Fertilizer will be the subject of the next discourse.

Mrs. Fannie Reagan, of Weaverville, N. C., is spending a few days at the home of her kinsman, J. J. Ballenger.

Miss Maggie Lewis, of Pickens, is a guest of her sister, Mrs. W. H. Hughs.

We regret to learn that Mrs. Wad Stevens and three children, who have been ill of typhoid fever, for several weeks, are not recovering as rapidly as it was hoped that they should. One of the children is still in a critical condition. Their friends will be anxious to hear more favorable reports.

Miss Sybil Chambers visited her home in Liberty the week-end.

On Tuesday last Milton Stokes Wyley entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. Byrd Wyley, and, seizing their affections and their almost undivided attentions, claims the inherent rights and privileges of a son.

Marion Hughs left Wednesday for Atlanta and is taking a course in business.

The Bounty Land Literary Society will meet next Saturday evening at 7.30 instead of Friday evening. This change is made on account of a B. Y. P. U. entertainment to be held Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marcus McDonald.

Tom Anderson, of Greenville, was a late guest of his aunt, Mrs. S. N. Hughs.

Oscar H. Doyle, of Anderson, spent Wednesday night at his home here.

Quite a number of new residents have moved into the community whose given names we have not yet learned, their surnames being Youngblood, Phillips, Campbell and Tucker. Bounty Land welcomes all good citizens into her midst.

R. M. Sanders has moved from the Poplar section to the place recently vacated by J. M. Adams.

Hoywood Davis and family have moved in the vicinity of Shiloh
