THREE LOSE LIVES AT MACON

When Large Wooden Hotel is Razed to Ground by Flames.

Macon, Ga., Aug. 22.—Three persons are known to have lost their lives in a fire which destroyed the Brown House, a frame hotel, here early to-day, and firemen expressed the belief that the death list would be materially increased when the ruins of the burned structure had been explored.

John K. Hays, a former justice of the peace, who lived at the hotel, was one of those killed. The bodies of two men which were taken from the second floor of the building to-day, have not been identified.

Approximately twenty of the one hundred and fifty guests of the hotel were injured in the fire, which followed an explosion of chemicals in an adjoining drug store. One whole side of the hotel was smashed.

One of the most seriously injured is Harry Swansburg, of Atlanta, an engineer employed by the Central of Georgia railway, who had both legs broken by jumping from the third story. Others who jumped were more or less seriously injured.

Many guests were cut off from the staircases by the first blast of flames, and the greater part of these had only one means of egress—that of leaping from available windows. Spectators on the sidewalks saved some of them from injury by catching them in their arms. Destruction of the hotel register hampered the work of checking the list of the dead and injured.

The Brown House was the oldest hotel in the city and was located close to the business center. The flames from the wooden structure spread to adjoining buildings, burning a half of the block from Plum street to Poplar street.

The explosion occurred at 10.30 and was not brought under control until several hours later. The ruins were still smouldering to-day. Electric power lines in the downtown district were prostrated and firemen worked by the light of the burning building, which illuminated the entire center of the city.

Two other hotels near the Brown House were saved.

Ten injured persons from the fire were being treated in city hospitals to-day.

J. W. Hays, sixty years old, died on the way to the hospital. Mr. Hays received injuries when he jumped from a window.

Lake City, S. C., Aug. 20.—Yesterday afternoon the dead body of a white man about 30 years of age was found in a railroad ditch near the track of the Atlantic Coast Line railroad by the section hands, about a half mile north of Newhope. This morning Coroner Smith, of Florence county, was summoned and an inquest was begun. From the appearance of the railroad man fell from a moving train going south, and he apparently had been dead four or five days. Drs. On his body was a .45 Colt's magazine pistol and several car wires for sealing box cars, and he had on at the time of his death a heavy set of eye-goggles. Nothing was found on his person to identify the man, but later the local agent at Eflingham came to the scene of the accident and recognized the body as that of J. P. Motley, of Charleston. Motley was employed by the Atlantic Coast Line railroad as a special agent for the company. The officials of the company said that Motley had been missing for three days. Spartanburg Overrun with Vagrants.

Spartanburg, Aug. 20.—This section is overrun with vagrants. Eight were sent to the changing yesterday by a local magistrate and two by the recorder. Six or eight are being rounded up every day. There is a lot of car-breaking and petty larceny. There is hardly a night that box cars at Hayne are not entered, and small stores on the outskirts of the city are the prey of the wanderers.

Yesterday afternoon, while Mrs. J. L. Keller, former school attendance officer, was away from home, some one entered the house and proceeded to eat and carry away all she had cooked. The parties sat at the table and helped themselves to what she had prepared for the family's supper and then took off what was left, except a half cake of butter and a cake of cornbread. A whole pound cake disappeared, as did all the biscuits, but the cornbread was not touched. Of the ten rounded up yesterday only one was a negro.

Gored by Bull, Farmer Dies.

Greenville, Aug. 21.—Wm. Cothran, a young farmer who lived on the Laurens road, a few miles from this city, died in a local hospital here today as a result of injuries received when he was attacked on his place this morning by an infuriated bull.

Mr. Cothran was pinned by the bull to the side of a barn when he went into his barn lot to tie one of the two bulls which he owned. One of the bull's horns entered his body to a depth of six or eight inches, and the man's death was attributed to loss of blood.

Stole Still From Greenwood

Greenwood, Aug. 20.—No developments had come to light to-night in the robbery of a fifty-gallon still from the sheriff's office a few hours after its capture. Officers declared they had clues which might lead to arrests in the near future. The still, the largest ever captured in this county, was taken boldly out of the front door of the court house and hauled away on Friday night.

The copper outfit was in full operation when captured Friday afternoon on the Greenwood county side of Saluda river, a short distance above Smith's bridge. A negro, Chester Hawkins, according to officers, was catching the liquor in a jug as it ran from the still. Hawkins was arrested and admitted to Jailer T. V. McMillan that he had been helping make liquor at the still. Besides the still 20 gallons of corn liquor and 24 60-gallon mash barrels—all but 11 of which had been run—were captured.

The theft of the still from the sheriff's office is regarded by officers as the most audacious in the annals of the county. Thieves apparently gained entrance through a window and unlocked the doors from the inside. The still was taken out through the front door, loaded on an automobile or truck and carried away without being discovered. Officers did not discover the robbery until they came to the office this morning.
