Poetical.

[From the Southern Guardian.]

WELCOME TO COLUMBIA.

BY HENRY M. CLARKSON.

All day the murky clouds hung low
Above the silent city;
The sky seemed draped in robes of woe—
To weep in very pity—
In pity for our wounded pride,
In pity for our wounded people,
While since the dawn the winds had sighed
Round crumbling tower and steeple.

The wrecks of old ancestral halls,
In all their desolateness,
The ruined walks and blackened walls,
To Vandal hate bore witness.
Against the sky the toppling stacks,
In solemn sad sedateness,
Seemed sentries on their beaten tracks—
Grim ghosts of former greatness.

Each sombre mart deserted seemed,
The day wore dull and dreary,
While men moved on, as men that dreamed,
With flagging footsteps weary.
But, hark!—that sudden clamor hear!
That hum of human voices!
Whilst, everywhere, with shout and cheer,
The very air rejoices!

One little word, first faintly heard,
Now thousands echo loudly,
And every Southern heart is stirred
And every head held proudly.
Maimed men and matrons shout "'Tis LEE!"
Fair maidens swell the chorus;
The children clap their hands in glee;
The sky grows brighter o'er us.

'Tis he! 'tis he!—the hero LEE!
No tyrant sword can sever
Our hearts from him, for he shall be
The sovereign of them ever.
The tidings leap from street to street,
Each tongue that name repeating,
And many meet with hastening feet,
To give the hero greeting.

See how the brave old chieftain comes—
No banners o'er him soaring—
No roll is heard of mighty drums,
No cannons round him roaring.
On every heart himself engraved—
What need of laurelled arches?
'Neath lifted hats and kerchiefs waved
Our grey-haired warrior marches.

And though 'twas he who bade us cease
Our brave but vain endeavor,
Whilst in the Christian cause of Peace
His sword was sheathed forever,
Yet still we love him as of old,
When, 'mongst the dead and dying,
He rode, the boldest of the bold,
Our foe before him flying.

Ah! 'twas a splendid sight to see
Our Southern chiefs assembled,
To greet their grand old leader, LEE,
'Fore whom, once tyrants trembled!
We are not free, alas! but we
Forget our heroes never.
We can but shout "Long live our LEE!"
"The SOUTH and LEE forever!"

—— Gov. Scott holds woman suffrage in his hand as an electioneering trump.

—— Illinois is rapidly purifying herself of Radicalism, as is proven by the almost universal success of the Democracy in the recent town elections.

—— There are two lovely young ladies in May & Rogers' paper mill at Lee, Mass., who have worked within ten feet of each other fifteen months and have not spoken together—mad as March hares all the while.

—— One of the most singular sights growing out of the war is a continuous line of peach trees, of nearly fifty miles in length, around Petersburg and extending towards Richmond. They are growing from the breastworks thrown up by the Confederate army.

—— A gentlemen of Monkton, Vt., is engaged in raising poppies, from which he produces opium. In 1868, he raised 640 pounds of the article, which he sold to druggists and physicians at the rate of from $8 to $10 per pound. The increasing demand for this drug is a sad sign. Druggists tell us that in the country farmers' wives use it largely.

—— After the South, the North.—Congressional tinkering is to be confined no longer to the satrapes of the South There is a movement now on foot to give the President power to use troops in any State, on almost any pretext, and without the interference of either the Governor or the Legislature.

—— "He has kept among us in time of peace, standing armies, without the consent of our Legislatures?—Declaration of Independence.

It was the King of Great Britain who did that. So George Washington and his fellow patriots went to war with him to stop it.

Grant is now sending the standing army to Tennessee, to break up the State government, or to prepare for that interesting job.

Where is your free government, men of the United States? Where are your State governments? Under the heel of the army.

This work does not bring confidence and peace. It is disturbing and ruinous. No wonder that business is stagnant, that merchants and manufacturers are losing money, and that laborers feel it.—Hartford Times.

—— A student at Ann Arbor having remarked that men had more endurance than women, a lady present said she would like to see the young men of the University laced up in steel ribbed corsets, with hoops, heavy skirts, trails, high heels, paniers, chignons, and dozens of hair pins sticking in their scalps, cooped up in the house year after year, with no exhilarating exercise, no hopes, aims or ambition in life, and see if they could stand it as well as the girls. "Nothing," said she, "but the fact that women, like cats, have nine lives, enables them to survive the present regime to which custom dooms the sex."

—— The editor of the Americus (Ga.) Weekly Republican speaks thus naughtily:

"Some of these old editors who are near sighted are trying to make the ladies believe that wearing low necked dresses produces sore throat. It's all a counfounded humbug got up by the old buzzards who can't see."

But, from the following, it would seem that it is just as well to be "a blind buzzard" sometimes, as not. However, it is a woman's opinion. A man might have thought quite differently:

A lady writes: "I saw at the opera the Princess Alice, daughter of Queen Victora. She is very plain and homely. She wore a low necked white silk dress, trimmed in blue. She had chesnut curls and wore a blue feather and a few diamonds in her hair; a diamond necklace glistened about her throat. Her shoulders are not pretty, and her back, which was visible half way to the waist, is ugly."
