KILLING A HORSE-THE "HOSS" DOCTOR. -Spring of the year is at hand and, as usual, we may look for a full crop of horse colic and other ailments brought about by the farmers' rush of hard work with his soft unhardened mature, or untrained, young immature horses or mules. Besides this unusually severe strain upon the animals' muscular power, they are also subjected to unusual danger at this season from mistaken kindness of his master in feeding too much green food, in the beginning, producing flatulent coils and kidney trouble, which brings in the seasons. brings in the services of the green "hoss' dector or in fact several of them, taking their turn each with his favorite reraedy, which, in the majority of cases, proves to be worse poison than an over feed of green food. "Green colic' is a malady quite bad enough by itself, but when combined with an attack of green "h. ss" doctording it is perhaps the most faval form of disease that attacks the horse.

On one occasion I was called in to see a On one occasion I was called in to see a valuable horse that was sick and rolling in terrible agony and was informed by his kind owner that he "had given him every remedy that he had ever heard of and that none had dene any good." He had first given the horse one ounce of laudanum and one pound of salls, next another man gave one nound. of sails; next another man gave one pound of sods, and a "hoss" doctor gave the animal one pint of whiskey, and the last dose was composed of half a plug of tobacco chipped in hot water. Now if a horse could have survived such dosing as this it would have merited the distinction of being non explosive and of boom-proof, steel stomach breed.

No amount of drugs or medicines, even in the hands of the most skilled veterinarian, will ever take the place of good, common horse sense in feeding and caring for horses; nor will the aciones of medicine are reach the horse, therefore the object of this atticle is to impress upon the mind; of the reader the importance of preventing diseases rather than undertake to instruct them in the use of drugs as remedies, although it is always safe to apply a thin gruel made of graine! mustard and warm water under rear part of belly, flanks and on both sides of spine for colic: keep the mustard moist with warm water and well rubbed in the hair with the hand, and if one becomes determined on dosing the horse, make up your min! by choesing one prescription and then quit, as the multiplicity of remedies internally kills more horses than it ever cures But if the ewner does not fee! like he is doing his duty without pouring medicine into his horse, let him pin his faith to homopathic remedies or any faith in their medicinal properties, but have great faith in their harmless nature.

Col. T. STORO FARROW .- We have several times dwelt with rapt admiration on the transcendent abilities of Col. T. Stobe Farrow, formerly of Spartanburg county, this State, as a grappler of official positions involving honort and emoluments. He is the volving honort and emoluments. He is the gentleman who broke the record in the year of grace 1885 by being simultaneously clerk of the South Carolina senate, at Columbia, is chief in one of the departments at Washington, and the projector, proprieter and premoter of six different railroad lines converging from various parts of the Heitel States and Consults. railroad lines converging from various parts of these United States and Caunda to Spartanburg. This year he turns up again triumphantly, on the ground floor and bestriding the roof tree. He is one of the first men announced from this State with an appointment to a good job under the Cleveland administration, although he has not been corporally a colonel here for several years.
How he escaped office under Harrison is an amazing mystery. He appears to gather amazing mystery. He appears to gather places as a c.lt's tail does clockle burs. They fly to him from all quarters of the compass and are assimilated with placid dignity .- Greenville News.

TILLMAN'S BLACK LIST.—Washington, D. C., March 31.—It appears now that Governor Tillman and Senator Irby were the pioneers in the "black listing business," and their representatives in the next house are but recriving the same treatment at the hands of the administration that Tillman and Irby intended for others. Several days ago I received an intimation that Governor Tillman wrote a letter requesting the president to "turn the pictures of feur men in S ath Carolina to the wall." After considerable difficulty I obtained the names on the S ath Carolina to the wall." After considerable difficulty I obtained the names on the lillman black list," which are as follows: The first named on the list is James C. Hempbill, editor of the News and Courier: second, Benjamin F. Perry, who wants to be collector of internal revenue; third, N. G. Gonzales, editor of the State; fourth, M. L. Donalds n, president of the State Farmers' Alliance of South Carolina. Senator Irby added another name to the list and it turns out to be Robert Harris. Harris hails from Union county and voted for Cleveland at Chicago.

at Chicago.
I was not cer'ain how this "black list" I was not cer'ain how this "black list" reached the president until I mentioned the subject to Senat r Irby. He was greatly surprised to know that I was in possession of the secret, and in his zeal to ascertain where I received the information he said that he was present when Governor Tillman wrote the letter, and that only Governor Tillman, the President and himself were aware that such a communication is in exaware that such a communication is in existence. The Governor in his letter to the President urges that none of the geotlemen named shall be recognized by the present administration by Federal appointments at home or abroad.—Cor. News and Courier.

statement has been going the rounds of the South Carolina newspapers that Sonator Butler had withdrawn his endorsement of ex-Judge C. P. Townsend on the ground that when he signed it he was under the impression that it was attorney General Townsend.

Congressman McLaurin desires to make the following statement: "At my request Senator Irby spoke to Senator Butler some time ahead to secure his endorsement for Judge Townsend. Senator Irby reported to me that Senator Butler spoke very kindly of Judge Townsend and said that he was a college ma'e of his and spoke very favorably of him Upon this dec'ara'ion when the of him Upon this dec'ara'ion when the delegation held a meeting I handed Judge Townsend's application to Senator Butler. He signed it and then every member of the delegation but Major Brawley did the same, It never flashed account members of the delegation but Major Brawley did the same, t never flashed across my mind that the lenator could make such a mis ake that the Attorney General of South Carolina, so recently elected and involved in such momenous law suits as the State is now engaged tous law suits as the State is now engaged in, could be an applicant for a clerkship in the Interior Department. And, furthermore, I cannot understand the position of the Senator, for after the paper was signed I stepped up to him, and in the heaving of several members of the delegation, I said: "I thank you, Senator, for signing Judge Townsend's application. I appreciate it, and so will Judge Townsend." He bowed, and replied in his usual courteous manner.
