 Orangeburg, S. C.

We respectfully request our friends to send in their Advertisements as early in the week as convenient; and if possible, let us have them by Thursday evening. By this means, we will be able to issue at an earlier hour on Saturday, and will be enabled to give more of the latest news, up to the time of our going to press.

"Don't view me with a critic's eye,
 But pass my imperfections by."

We request our friends and contributors to overlook any inaccuracies which may be found in our present or last issue; since owing to the Spring Term of Court, we have been unable to give to our proof sheets, the usual Editorial revision.

The Clarendon Press.
 We hail with much pleasure the debut of this new paper in an adjoining District. The graceful Salutory of J. Witherspoon Erwin, Esq., who occupies the Editorial Chair, is an indication that it will be conducted with marked ability, and take a high position at once among the hebdomadal periodicals of the State. The Clarendon Press is published by Messrs. Lucas, David & Lucas, and the typographical execution is excellent. We wish our neighbors a prosperous career.

We have on hand a number of Blank Fi. Fa's., printed in the most improved style, which we will dispose of at Charleston Prices. Apply at this Office.

[FROM THE ORANGEBURG NEWS.]
 WALTERSON, S. C. Apr. 12, 1867.

Dear News: The Court of Common Pleas for Colleton District, has been in session during the week. A few criminals have been before the Court, and the State making out a plain case, they were severally convicted and sentenced. Judge Moses delivered a lengthy, and in some respects, an eloquent charge to the Grand Jury, in which he defined the position of the Courts to the country, and to the new regime under which we have been placed by recent Congressional legislation. He counselled forbearance and a faithful discharge of economical duties as a condition of success and even peace. With reference to the status of the freedmen and the obligation of the superior class, his advice was sound and practical. He said the Southern people understand the character of the negro and the Yankee do not. That the elective franchise has been extended to them without regard to their capacity for its exercise; and that their votes must and will be controlled, if not by Southern men by Northern men. Now it would be a tame expression to term our refusal to take part in the momentous proceedings of the hour, apathy. It is a want of patriotism. We are to be governed by the ballot box, and if we refuse to mount upon and direct the stormy current, which we cannot resist, and thus shape the political future of the South, Yankees of the filthiest type will do it for us, and an humble submission to laws in the enactment of which we have had no voice, will be the result. It is a part of duty therefore to act and with a soul that trembles not at the magnitude of the task.

Our duties towards the ignorant freedmen, blinded and overwhelmed by a too sudden transition from native darkness into the splendid noonday of liberty, are plain. Policy, justice and humanity require that no distinction be made between our sable citizens and those who have heretofore enjoyed the paramount privileges of law. We have made them citizens, and in that act have acknowledged their rights and defined our reciprocal duties. His Honor was quite happy in allusion to the prospects of Young America. The status here also is changed. Formerly it was possible and customary to surround young men with the gildings and paraphernalia of affluence and luxury. But this halcyon time is no more. Rich or poor, there is no distinction. Absence of mental wealth cannot be countervailed by dollars and cents as of old. It matters little whether they cut their teeth on the edge of a sceptre or on the handle of an iron spoon, nor whosoever they may have been eroded, merit only, strenuous, well-timed application, will insure the coveted success. The diction of Aristotle—the beautiful gyrations of modern metaphysicians may have elevated the mind with an ambitious hope, but the diction of the hour is "work or starve," and an old aphorism which has acquired new directness and energy:

"In spore vultus tui comedes panem tuum."

Junius commending his furious letters to his printer by way of advice as a superior, said: "Let your views in life be to a solid, however moderate independence, without it no one can be happy or even honest. How important then that we in quest of happiness and respectability direct our aims steadily, unwaveringly to that solid independence. It is a rock upon which may be surely rested individual and national character. Let us not build upon the sand."

The unhappy condition of many kept in the agony of believing that their entire estates were to be wrested from them to satisfy debts contracted in better days, was thought by the Grand Jury of sufficient importance to be incorporated in their presentment. I append a copy of this paper with a bare expression of opinion that a general continuance will be granted:

STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA,
 Colleton District.
 To the Hon. Franklin J. Moses,
 Presiding Judge.

The Grand Jury beg leave to make the following presentment:

The unfortunate condition of the honest debtors, whom circumstances beyond their control, have deprived of the means of liquidating pressing demands against them, has been thought a proper and important subject for consideration. True these demands are just, but the impotency of creditors in pressing their claims as allowed by law, at a time when thousands must be reduced to homeless penury in the event of summary prosecution, is the hardship of which complaint is made, and in fact so resembles injustice as to require serious notice. It appears that this policy must be even detrimental to the interest of creditors. Grant executions now open upon the estates of these unfortunate delinquents, and in many cases not even a moiety of the real amount of indebtedness can be realized, while all hope that the debtor will retrieve his fortune, and fully indemnify his creditor, which would be done should the clement and magnanimous policy which we suggest, be adopted—variables with the small means which alone can establish his interest and foster the desire to settle these demands in such manner and at such times as will not create absolute want and suffering in their family. We present this as an appeal to humanity, to every generous patriotic heart. However, we do not ask that the leniency we have thought proper to recommend, be without limitation, but that a continuance of all cases of this character be granted to the Fall Term of this Honorable Court, to allow as far as possible, a respite to the oppressed. By that time, with the help of God, they will be better prepared to make a sacrifice which now could blast their future prospects and only in part satisfy the inexorable demands held over them.

Respectfully,
 P. S.—I may state that since the above was written, it has been decided by the Court to defer all civil suits as recommended by the Grand Jury.

With a few exceptions good order and decorum have been strictly observed.

CECIL GRAY.

OFFICIAL.
 STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA,
 Orangeburg District.
 Spring Term C. C. P. and G. S., 1867.
 To the Honorable F. J. Moses, the Presiding Judge of the Court of Common Pleas and General Sessions.

The undersigned constituting the Grand Inquest of the Country for Orangeburg District at the present Term, beg leave respectfully to report to your Honor and present in the discharge of their assigned duties as follows: They have visited and carefully inspected and examined the Jail of the District and the wall around the same. They present this Jail, built of wood, as insecure, unsafe and uncomfortable for the prisoners confined therein, and utterly unfit for the purposes for which it was built in every respect. The Grand Jury have learned that this Jail was built under a contract made by the Commissioners of Public Buildings with the Sheriff (who was the only person who responded to their proposals) for the sum of $1000. And while the contract on the part of the Sheriff has been badly fulfilled, and very miserable work done for a very large price, the Grand Jury hold that the Commissioners of Public Buildings are in great fault and to be blamed for entering into such a contract without knowing that it would be fulfilled by the other side, and for paying for the same without being satisfied that the work was in strict fulfillment of the undertaking. The Grand Jury report that they have seen by the Act of the Legislature that 40 cents per day are allowed to each prisoner, and they consider this amount as abundant for furnishing the necessary comfort and food for the prisoners, and yet the complaint is universal and general throughout the whole of those confined, that they are badly fed, badly protected, and that they suffer from want of cleanliness and of all comfort. As to the last, the appearance of the premises warrant the Grand Jury in the belief that the complaint is not unfounded.

The offices of Clerk, Sheriff and Commissioner in Equity are kept in as good order as could be expected in the small offices in which they are at present necessarily located.

The Grand Jury report the roads in a very good condition generally, and as safe and well worked as is usual at this season of the year.

The Grand Jury have learned from the Commissioners of Public Buildings, that they have arranged for the lease of another larger building to be used for a Court House; but that the lease of the present house does not expire until November 1868. In view of the great want of necessary arrangements in the present small building, the Grand Jury would call the attention of the Commissioners to some change and improvements, and among other things would suggest some cheap matting or carpeting on the floor, as tending to order and quiet in the building, instead of the noise and echo from every move and whisper in the room.

The Grand Jury have received no report from any Commissioners of Poor, if such a board exist at all. There is no Poor House and the poor and destitute have increased in this District to a fearful extent. It is submitted that the Commissioners be ruled or required to show cause why their duty in this respect has not been attended to, and that they report their means for aiding the poor, and also what has been done and is now in contemplation for them, irrespective of color.

With regard to the system of free labor lately inaugurated in this State, the Grand Jury say, that the sudden change produced in the economy of labor, together with the deprivation of their property in the liberation of their slaves, (and the investing them with new and universal rights and privileges) produced at first the utmost gloom and despair among the people of the District. And there was but little disposition to adopt the new system; and to work on any other plan than the old beaten track of slavery. But time as usual, has effected great change in the popular feeling and faith, and the planters are as a general thing using the system of free labor with great success and great satisfaction to themselves and employees throughout the District. The freedmen after their first excitement and exhilaration of their new life passed away have become civil and disposed to understand their position and are anxious to make contracts and to labor. And the Grand Jury believe and urge it on their fellow-citizens, that their true policy, and the true humanity is to treat these people with forbearance, good faith and kindness; that all contracts should be carried out to a letter, even with more strictness than otherwise, because these people are ignorant.

If this course be pursued the Grand Jury are satisfied that the new labor will accomplish wonders, and will after all be a blessing and not a curse to all.

The Grand Jury urge upon the people that there are a number of old people, formerly slaves, faithful slaves, now thrown out without protectors. These form now a part of the poor of the District, and should be cared for, as well as others. In fact they have a stronger claim upon their old masters than all others.

They the Grand Jury can recommend no plan for binding out Apprentices among the colored people (through they think it very much needed) because they do not know that any plan could be ever insisted on or enforced without interruption.

Respectfully submitted,

THE SOUTHERN

DRUG STORE!

For the liberal patronage which I have thus far received from the citizens of Orangeburg District and the confidence shown in me by very numerous friends I take the opportunity of expressing my sincere gratitude in this, the first issue of the "ORANGEBURG NEWS." The encouragement of past patronage and kindness induces a strong faith in future success, and, while thanking my friends for past favors, I can assure them that nothing will be left undone to deserve their continuing patronage. My Store will be essentially a DRUG STORE; in it will be kept such Drugs and Medicines alone, as it will warrant Genuine and Pure. I have arranged to supply my customers with Medicines of the very best quality afforded in the market. I avoid all cheap useless articles, and yet my prices shall be as reasonable for VALUABLE, GOOD, FRESH MEDICINES as any body's.
 I invite the PHYSICIANS of the District to call and examine for themselves. They are judges to whose opinions I submit. Send your Orders and they will be filled to your satisfaction. To the Citizens of my native District who have tried me, I say don't give me up, try me a little longer, and you'll not regret it—you'll find I'll stand a long race, as well as a short one; and your faith in me shall not be misplaced. To those who have not yet tried me, now is your time to begin. As before, if you want good, pure, family MEDICINES, such as Lauanum, Paregoric, Castor Oil, Sweet Oil, Epsom Salts, Glauber Salts, Cream Tartar, Carb. Soda, &c., &c., or Dye Stuffs and Paints, and Brushes, Concentrated Lye, &c., or even Patent Medicines of all kinds. Now, just call at this Little Store on Main-Street, and you will be sure to get what you want.

This Drug Store looks small, but your surprise will be great when you enter to find how appearances deceive, and what a quantity of good things are within this same Little Store.
