AGRICULTURAL, & C.

Short Rules in Rural Economy. 1. Paint all tools exposed to the weather, and if with a light colored paint, they will not heat, warp and crack the least in the sun. 2. Dip well seasoned shingles in lime wash, and dry them before laying, and they will last much longer, and not become covered with moss. 3. In hitching a horse to a common rail or worm fence, always select the inside corner, which will be more secure by its bracing position, and the halter will not become tangled among the projecting ends of the rails, as when hitched to an outside corner. 4. Always tie a halter by making first a single loop and then thrusting the end of the halter through this loop. This is quickly untied, and will never come untied of itself. 5. Dip the tips of nails into grease, and they will easily drive into any hard wood, where otherwise they would double and break. 6. In screwing nuts into any part of machinery, in cold weather, be careful not to heat them first by the hands, or they will contract after being screwed on tight, and become immovable afterwards. 7. In ploughing or teaming on the road in hot weather, always rest the horses on an eminence, and where one minute will be worth two in a warm valley. 8. In setting out young orchards, always register the varieties immediately in a book, where they may be referred to in a few years when the trees commence bearing and after the labels are lost and the names forgotten. 9. In laying out gardens for fruits and vegetables, place everything in drills or rows, so that they may be cultivated by a horse, and thus save the expense of hand labor. 10. Plant a patch of osier willows on every farm. A rod square will furnish as many bams for binding cornstalks, straw, &c., as an acre of rye straw. 11. Remove every stone from the track in the highway. A single projection, which might have been removed in one minute, has battered and injured a thousand wagons, at a damage equal to a hundred days labor. 12. When board fences become old, and the boards begin to come off, nail upright facing strips upon them against each post, and the boards will be held to their place, and the fence will last several years longer. 13. Always set a post fence over a ditch or near good drainage, and the post always remaining dry, will last many years longer than those standing in wet soil. 14. In writing on wooden labels or marking sticks, with a common pencil, if the wood is first wet, the mark will last two years, if written on dry, one or two rains will wash it all away. 15. Always keep a supply of copper wire on hand, of different sizes, for repairing tools—it is greatly superior to either twine or iron wire. 16. Every farmer should have a tool room, against the smooth walls of which a suitable place should be provided for hanging up every tool. An accurate outline of each tool should be painted on the wall, to remind every man of its absence when left out of place. 17. Oil paint, applied to houses and barns, out-buildings and fences, will last much longer, and harden better, if put on as late as the middle of autumn, instead of during the heat of summer. 18. Every gin and granary should have a scale, or upright row of figures marked inside, showing accurately the number of bushels to fill it to each figure. This will enable the farmer to know at a glance, how much grain he has raised, or has on hand.—Rural Affairs.

Why Don't He Do It? When the Farmer knows that a gate is better, and as a time-and-labor-saving fixing, cheaper than a set of bars and posts, and without calling on a carpenter he can himself make one, Why don't he do it? When he has no other fastenings to his gates and barn doors than a stone rolled against them and in a single evening, after supper, is able to make a better one, Why don't he do it? Or when he sees the boards dropping from his barns and out-buildings, and like heaps of rubbish lying in piles about the premises, and need only nailing on again, Why don't he do it? Or is he afraid of the expense of nails, and is always crying up the maxim of Dr. Franklin, "to save the pence, and the pounds will take care of themselves," and he knows that the same Dr. Franklin also said that "many men are penny wise and pound foolish," and he is not careful to think of the precept contained in the latter, Why don't he do it? If it is a saving of nearly half the manure of a farmer's stock by keeping them shut up in yards, instead of running at large through most of the winter, Why don't he do it? If he knows that many of his fields would be greatly improved by ditching, and by the removal of large stumps and stones, Why don't he do it? And when he knows that his pastures would yield nearly double the feed, and of a better quality, if the bushes were all cut and subdivided, Why don't he do it?

Deep vs. Shallow Milk Pans.

M. A. Richardson, Esq., of Sherman, New York, says: "Whether more cream can be obtained from deep or shallow pans is an easy matter to settle, without even an experiment. It takes time for cream to rise; therefore it will rise in a shallow pan sooner than in a deep one, and consequently, in warm weather, when milk will thicken in a few hours, shallow pans should be used, or the cream will be caught in the thickened milk and the skimmer won't find it. But in cooler weather, when milk will remain thin long enough for the milk to rise, deep pans are preferred by some. Even then sweeter butter can be made from shallow pans."—Exchange.

Remedy for Kicking Cows.

Cows, says a cotemporary, seldom kick without some good reason for it. Teats are sometimes chapped or the udder tender; harsh handling hurts them, and they kick. Sometimes long and sharp finger nails cut their teats, and sometimes the milker pulls the long hairs on the udder while milking. Shear off the long hairs, cut long finger nails close, bathe chapped teats with warm water, and grease them well with lard, and always treat a cow gently. She will never kick unless something hurts her, or she fears a repetition to former hurts. When handled gently, cows like to be milked. When treated otherwise, they will kick and hold up their milk. It is quite as consistent to whip a sick child to stop its crying, as to whip or kick a cow, to prevent kicking while being milked.
