The Power of Prayer.
The Bible account of the power of prayer is the best we have or can have.

Abraham's servant prays—Rebekah appears.
Jacob prays—the angel is conquered; Esau's revenge is changed to fraternal love.
Joseph prays—he is delivered from the prison of Egypt.
Moses prays—Amelek is disinherited; Israel triumphs.
Joshua prays—the sun stands still; victory is gained.
David prays—Ahithophel goes out and hangs himself.
Asa prays—Israel gains a glorious victory.
Jehoshaphat prays—God turns away his anger and smiles.
Elijah prays—the little cloud appears, the rain descends upon the earth.
Elisha prays—the waters of the Jordan are divided; a child is restored to life.
Isaiah prays—one hundred eighty and four thousand Assyrians are dead.
Hozekiah prays—the sun dial is turned back; his life is prolonged.
Mordocai prays—Haman is hanged; Israel is free.
Nehemiah prays—the King's heart is softened in a moment.
Pera prays—the walls of Jerusalem begin to rise.
The Church prays—the Holy Ghost is poured out.
The Church prays again—Peter is delivered by an angel.
Paul and Silas pray—the prison shakes; the door opens; every man's hands are loosed.

AGRICULTURAL, & C.

Salt as an Article of Food.
The true value of salt for feeding to animals is neither as well known nor appreciated as it should be by farmers.

tion of the same causes when deprived of salt, the rest of their system is depleted of its due proportion in the blood; and when the equilibrium of the system is in this way disturbed, the animal is more liable to disease, and to succumb to it when attacked.
That the natural instincts of the animals prompts them to the use of salt, is evident from their visiting the salt licks of the Western States, previous to and during their early settlements, and from what is still witnessed at the present day on the pampas of South America, where herds of wild horses and cattle go many miles to the salt licks to obtain their much-needed supply.
There is no sort of doubt that frequent access to salt prevents many of the diseases to which animals are liable; for when it has been regularly given them, it has been productive of the best results, as evinced in their exemption from disease. The presence of salt in large quantities in the cellular tissues, shows conclusively the important influence which it exerts in the production of flesh and fat in animals. Salt by increasing the flow of saliva, assists digestion; and further aids it by promoting thirst, and a constant supply of fluid to assist in dissolving much of the food that would otherwise be imperfectly digested. It has been found by active experiments, carefully conducted, that salt given to hogs accelerates their fattening; and that when two hogs were fattened at the same time, one with, and one without a supply of salt, that the one supplied with salt, exceeded the other in weight 50 pounds, and fattened easier and in five weeks less time.

Rules For Farmers.

- 1. The farmer ought to rise early, to see that others do so, and that both his example be followed and his orders obeyed.
2. The whole farm should be regularly inspected, and not only every field examined, but every beast seen at least once a day.
3. In a considerable farm it is of the utmost consequence to have hands specially appropriated for each of the most important departments of labor, for there is often a great loss of time; where persons are frequently changing their employments, and the work is not executed so well.
4. Every means should be thought of to diminish labor or to increase its power. For instance, by proper arrangement, five horses may do as much labor as six perform, according to the usual mode of employing them.
5. A farmer ought never to engage in a work, whether of ordinary practice or intended improvement, except after the most careful inquiries; but when begun, he ought to proceed in it with much attention and perseverance until he has given it a fair trial.
6. It is a main object in management not to attempt too much, and never to begin a work without a probability of being able to finish it in due season.
7. Every farmer should have a book for inserting all those useful hints which are so frequently occurring in books, in papers, and gathered in the course of his reading, or in a practical management of his farm.
