Political Notes.

Edgefield has put into the field a full conservative ticket, and a lively campaign may be expected.

Dr. Latimer of Greenville, who opposed Wallace, has declared for Greene. Judge Cook has declared for Korshaw.

Greene claims Challeton, Georgetown and Sumter by overwhelming majorities, and a majority in several other radical counties. He claims 20,000 republican votes, which with conservative support will easily elect him.

Judge Bryan has issued an order to the managers of elections throughout the State requiring them to send in to him by the 22d inst. all the polling precincts in their respective counties. Thus will the radical ballot-box-stuffing game be prevented.

Hoyt, one of Bowen's Charleston Commissioners of election, has resigned, and Mr. T. G. Boag appointed instead. It has been agreed that one Conservative shall be placed on each precinct board, and three Conservatives appointed to assist the Board in making returns. Good fruits from the Charleston Mass Meeting.

Purvis, in a card, claims that he was nominated for Congress by a vote of 11 to 10, but that before the vote was declared, Gillmore, of Richland (who was once convicted of larceny and is now running for the Legislature on the Chamberlain-Moses-Minor ticket) changed his vote to Hoge and thereby gave him the nomination. Purvis intimates that money changed Gillmore. He denounces Hoge, and it is said, he has declared for Gen. McGowan.

The radical precinct meeting in Chester on Saturday is said to have been an unusually disgraceful affair. Judge Mackey presided. We are informed that Senator John Lee (colored) accused His Honor of having stolen $5,000 of the Ku Klux detective fund. Judge Mackey said if he were not in the chair he would go for the doctory Senator. It is said the lie was freely bandied about in the Convention. Purvis was present and desired to speak, but was hooted down. Mr. C. S. Brice who was present asked that Purvis should be heard. He (Mr. Brice) was a Conservative and of course opposed to Purvis, but he thought free speech should be allowed. But the crowd refused to hear him. It was only after two or three appeals from Mr. Brice that Purvis could speak. Purvis thanked Mr. Brice in a handsome manner, saying that this courtesy from a democrat was totally unexpected. The Convention adjourned after several hours' wrangling. There is a probability of a bolt in Chester.

Louisiana.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 12.—A fearful impromptu duel, which occurred on Saturday evening in the coffee house at 233 old Lewis street between Lucas Guoini and Barbromoichi, two Italians, has resulted in the death of the former. Guoini entered the coffee house wherein his opponent is bar keeper, and after grossly insulting Barbromoichi's wife, struck him with a stick. He then drew a pistol and fired without effect. Barbromoichi, securing a weapon, leaped upon the counter and the deadly duel commenced. Guoini received six wounds, the last of which brought him down on his back as he had turned to run. His opponent received two wounds, but both revolvers were emptied.

The annual importation of figs and raisins amounts, in this country alone, to $13,000,000. One-half of this vast sum at least should go into the pockets of our fruit-growers instead of enriching the distant countries that border on the Mediterranean. The people of the south disregard magnificent natural advantages when they neglect the cultivation of those fruits.

No State but Massachusetts could hold a summer session of the Legislature; but there the members are too lean to sweat, and too stungy if they weren't too lean.

A New Orleans woman wears a bustle made of government bonds. Her husband looks over the bond market in the evening paper, before going home from the club, to see if her back is up.

Moving Day.

The Danbury News describes the humors of moving as follows:

There is an entire absence of old landmarks, and a strange weird newness on everything, and you can't find your shaving soap. You start out for a scuttle of coal, but you don't see the scuttle. It is in the bottom of a barrel in the garret. You take the dripping. You then change your shirt—you look for it first. It is in one of the bureau drawers, which are piled one upon another in the parlor, and you find you have got to lift a half ton of carpets and feather beds before you can get down to the drawers. After you lift them down and search them it is remembered by your wife that the desired garment is in one of the barrels—the one in the shed, she thinks, although it may be in the garret, and yet it would be just like the stupid cartman to have carried that barrel down in the cellar. You think so too. You attack one of the barrels, and are surprised at the result.

A bed quilt comes out first, then a piece of next, a piece of cold ham, neatly done up in a vest and packed away in the missing scuttle. Below is an assortment of ironware and a length of a stove pipe; a half loaf of bread, a couple of towels, and a rolling pin. You begin to expect you will eventually come upon a coal mine; and perhaps some dead friends. Then you go down in that barrel again and come up with a pleasing assortment of stockings and half emptied medicine bottles. The way you come up this time leads you to consider the barrel itself. It caught in the back of your vest, and made the cloth let go, it took off one half of one sleeve, and created a sensation on the back of your hand as if a bonfire had raged there. It is quite evident the cooper who built the barrel was called away before he commenced to clinch the nails.

You involuntarily grasp the rolling pin and look around as if you half expected to see him. Then you call the girl to repair the barrel, and start up stairs to look for something that was easier to find, but finally change your mind, pass the balance of the day in digging carpet tacks and worth a wood from the palm of your feet, and concocting lice about the wealth of your uncle; and the moon looks through the window at night, and touches up with a glow of burnished silver, several lengths of stove pipe, and a half-dozen chairs, a sheet of dingy zinc, and a barrel with bed quilts floating over the top.

A smart city billiardist picked up a countryman and induced him to play a game of billiards—one hundred points. The city boy took the cue and ran the game out without a stop. The countryman quietly laid down his cue and started for the door. Said the billiardist, "Here, come back and pay for this game?" "What game?" said country. "Why, the game we just played." "We?" said the countryman; "we? I haint played no billiards as I know of. I guess, mister, see'n as you played the game alone, you'd better pay for it alone!" Whereat the countryman walked out and the smart city boy cogitated.

Butter vs. Corn.

The farmer who labors throughout the season to produce a crop of grain from a middling sized farm situated distant from the railways or markets has the bulk of his crop absorbed in transportation to the railroad and to the market. One bushel of corn fed to milk cows yields two pounds of butter, worth in New York, say fifty cents. A car load of corn containing 20,000 pounds, or 357 bushels, pays $90 freight from Chicago here, and at present prices realizes $385 60, and, less freight, nets $195 60. A car load of butter, containing the same weight pays $220 freight, and realizes, at 25 cents per pound, $5,000, or nets $4,780. In other words, corn pays 33 per cent. of its value for transportation and butter 5 per cent.

It is a notable fact that the average price of butter in all markets of the world is at the highest point ever known, and at the same time the demand for American butter for export is increasing, and affords a most profitable opening for the Western dairying States where land is cheap. It can be safely asserted and relied on that for years to come the demand for dairy products will increase in proportion to the improvements in quality.

"I am not much of a stump speaker," declared a candidate, "but for honesty and capacity and integrity, I bato the devil—so I do."

When a widow in any neighborhood sets her cap for a man, there isn't no chance in a million for any young woman to win, even if she holds the four aces.

A Card.

DR. LATIMER DECLARES HIMSELF.

Editor Greenville News:

I have been very much interested in the political canvass now pending as to governor of the State, and after much thought and consideration of the subject, I have deliberately come to the conclusion, that the only hope for reformation in our State administration lies in the election of Green for Governor. Chamberlain is not personally objectionable to me, but his surroundings are of such a character, that in his election, he would be powerless to accomplish anything for the State, his chief supporter being the present attorney general, S. W. Melton, who is known to all the State, as an accomplice to the bond frauds that have been perpetrated, and a willing agent to anything that will redound to the interest of the "ring that prevails in Columbia." A man that refuses to represent county officers acting under orders from comptroller general's office, where the interest of railroad corporations were involved, under the specious plea that the legislature had not provided a contingent fund for him to appear in such cases. Yet the facts of the case being that a contingent fund of near $20,000 was appropriated for such purposes. How he could have arrived at such conclusions, I am at a loss to divine, unless it was to make a case for his copartner, the Hon. D. H. Chamberlain, who, I confess, I regard as head and shoulders over his warm adherents and manipulators of his election. Here in Greenville county, I only ask the people to look at his surroundings, the most prominent supporters being Rev. J. M. Runion, county auditor; who has sought to ruin his people with an oppressive assessment, and Capt. W. E. Barle, who is regarded as the exponent of a northern bond ring, who would saddle on the State the payment of an illegal bonded debt that has been declared as illegal and void. I say to my fellow-citizens, vote for Green and Delany, and let us inaugurate true reform in South Carolina. If Chamberlain is elected, the bond debt will have to be paid, mind what I say. I will never go for a man that will go against the interest of my native county.

J. P. LATIMER, County Treasurer.

South Carolina.

Diphtheria has almost entirely disappeared from Marlboro' County.

The board of equalization for Greenville County have reduced the aggregates of each return of real property twenty per cent.

On Sunday last one hundred and two persons joined the Calvary Baptist in Columbia.

Mr. Charles J. Laurey, late of the firm of Laurey & Alexander, Charleston, has removed to Columbia, where he has opened a commission house.

The stores of Kahn & Herschman, at Camden, were broken into on Tuesday night last and robbed of several hundred dollars worth of goods.

There is a great deal of cotton open now in the fields throughout Marlboro' County, and pickers are in demand. In some places nearly the entire crop is open.

The passenger train on the Wilmington, Columbia and Augusta Railroad which left Columbia on Wednesday afternoon ran over a cow and was wrecked. Several passengers were slightly injured.

The city council of Greenville have elected the following officers: Barnett Burnett, chief of police; John G. Grier, Amos Batson, Bob Dunan, Harrison White, policemen; I. L. Henning, street overseer.

The Governor has pardoned George W. Foster, sentenced to fifty years in the penitentiary for the crime of rape at Newberry, November term, 1873. Another vote for Chamberlain.

The late storm and the freshet in Peedee River has done considerable damage to the corn and cotton crops in the Peedee section. In Darlington County cotton has been seriously injured; and a number of road bridges have been washed away.

"I'm particularly uneasy on this point," said the fly to the young gentleman who stuck him on the end of a needle.

A kind lady in Danbury recently gave a beggar half a dozen paper collars, with the advice to turn them and chalk the edges.

A Western Postmaster writes to the Postmaster-General "that he will be full of country Postmasters before long if they don't get more than allowed this office."

Household Hints.

Crullers.—Two tablespoonfuls of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of cream, two eggs, one teaspoonful of saleratus.

Adhesive Paste.—Rye flour, boiled in water, with a little alum added while boiling, makes an adhesive paste almost as strong as glue.

Colony Vinegar.—Put half a pint of celery seed in one quart of vinegar; bottle it, and in a month it will be fit for use. Strain before putting in the ester-bottle.

To Remove Stains.—If you have been picking or handling fruit, and have stained your hands, wash them in clear water, wipe them lightly, and while they are yet moist, strike a match and shut your hands around it so as to catch the smoke, and the stains will disappear.

Cleaning Stoves.—Stove luster, when mixed with turpentine, and applied in the usual manner, is blacker and more glossy, and more durable than when mixed with any other liquid. The turpentine prevents rust, and when put on an old rusted stove, will make it look as well as new.

Chopped Hands.—The easiest and simplest remedy is found in every one's kitchen closet and is nothing more than common starch. Reduce it to an impalpable powder, put it in a muslin bag, keep it in the table drawer. Whenever you take your hand out of dishwasher or suds, wipe them dry with a soft towel, and while yet damp, shake the starch bag all over them, and rub it in. The effect is most agreeable.

Purity of Coffee.—A simple practical test is given in the American Artisan to test the purity of coffee, by which many adulterations of that article can easily be detected, even if the taste is not a sure index. If a tablespoonful of genuine coffee be thrown into a tumbler full of cold water it will float upon the surface. Most substances used in adulterating coffee will sink at last.

Bleaching Flannel.—Flannel which has become yellow with use may be bleached by putting it for some days in a solution of hard soap to which strong ammonia has been added. The best proportions are one pound and a half of hard curd soap, fifty pounds of soft water, and two-thirds of a pound of strong ammonia solution. The same object may be attained in a shorter time by placing the flannel for a quarter of an hour in a weak solution of bisulphite of sodium, to which a little hydrochloric acid has been added.

To Stiffen Linen.—Such articles as collars, cuffs, etc., which require to be made very stiff, should be starched in the following way: Mix a tablespoonful of starch with enough cold water to make it smooth, and turn on enough boiling water to boil it ten minutes; then add a bit of white wax the size of a three cent piece and a teaspoonful of alcohol.

Potted ox Tongue.—Cut about a pound and a half from an unsmoked dried tongue and remove the skin. Pound it in a mortar as fine as possible, with six ounces of butter; a little cayenne, a small spoonful of pounded mace, nutmeg and cloves; beaten fine. When perfectly pounded, and the spices well blended with the meat, press it into potting pans and pour clarified butter over the top. A little roast veal added to the potted tongue is an improvement.

Charcoal for wounds.—A correspondent of the Scientific American says: "The best simple remedy I have found for surface wounds, such as cuts, abrasions of the skin, &c., is charcoal. Take a live coal from the stove, pulverize it, apply it to the wound and cover the whole with a rag. The charcoal absorbs the fluids exuded by the wound, and lays the foundation of the scab; it also prevents the rag from irritating the flesh and it is antiseptic.

To Bleach Linens, etc.—Soak in soap suds over night, then turn boiling water over them, and let them lie in it until cool. Squeeze out the water, and put them in very strong blue water. At night put them on the grass in the dew. If not white enough, repeat the process.

The Key Note of the Campaign.

The New York Times, (Republican) is pitching into the "Key-note of the Campaign" given in the circulars of Republican State Committees to their party newspapers, namely, to "give great prominence to the accounts of horrid outrages in the South, until after the election." The Times has three correspondents in the South especially instructed to inquire into the reports emanating principally from Washington denunciations of the white citizens of the South, and they have been unable as yet to find any substantial basis for them.

Election News.

INDIANAPOLIS, October 15.—Returns indicate that the Independents hold the balance of power, and will control the Senatorial election.

NEW YORK, October 15.—A Republican Indianapolis special estimates the Democratic majority in Indiana at 12,000. The Republicans were overburdened with a temporary issue.

A Republic Little Rock special charges the Democrats with delaying the returns in order to doctor them, and intimates that the Democratic majority is 10 to 15,000.

The Democratic State Central Committee has despatched from the Democratic State Committee of Ohio claiming 15,000 Democratic majority, and a gain of 6 or 7 Congressmen, also, from the Democratic State Committee of Indiana, claiming 15,000 to 20,000 majority, nine out of thirteen Congressmen, and a majority in the Legislature.

The World, commenting on the result of yesterday's elections, says "As a result of the one day's work, four States; Ohio, Indiana, West Virginia and Arkansas, have been enlisted and enrolled for the battle in 1876 against Grant. It predicts fuller and more sweeping victories in November and especially in Illinois.

The Times editorially commenting on the elections concedes Democratic victories in Ohio and Indiana, the former being a substantial one. It considers that the results in other States indicates no important change in politics. The Democratic victory in Indiana is due to the Republicans there pronouncing in favor of temperance. It admits that the condition of the South is not making Republican votes. No one doubts that the President did his duty in putting down the New Orleans leagues last month, but still his duty is not calculated to excite enthusiasm for his party. It accuses the republican leaders of circulating unreliable reports concerning Southern outrages in expectation of exhibiting Democratic depravity; but the public seems to have thought that, however depraved the Democrats may have been, the existence of the reign of terror in the South was something for which the Republicans were not wholly irresponsible.

DES MOINES, Iowa, October 15.—The entire Republican ticket is elected, McCraney and Kasson, Republican Congressmen, was elected. It will be several days yet before the majority can be ascertained.

LITTLE ROCK, Arkansas, October 15.—The latest returns indicate that the Democrats carried the State by 10,000 majority.

INDIANAPOLIS, October 15.—There was considerable scratching at the election yesterday. The Legislature is still doubtful. The Democrats gained 2 or 3 Congressmen. Reporting was prevalent, both sides claim a majority in the Legislature.

WASHINGTON, October 15.—The National Republican commencing on the late election; says: "As we said in the beginning; the Republican party should have carried Ohio, and the fact cannot be concealed that it is a serious set back to the party elsewhere. One of the most intelligent States in the Union; the Massachusetts of the West, it is wonderful to think that a majority of her votes should be found upon the side of inflation and financial heresy; that a majority of her Congressmen in the next house shall be found in favor of a financial policy that, if successful will result in the ruin of the country."

Yesterday morning a boy ran through up to a yard bit Eighth street, where a woman was scratching the bosom of the earth with a rake; and leaning on the fence, said: "Are you getting afraid in the back yard after a while?" The woman said maybe she would; why? "Because," the boy said, "I just saw the cistern lid drop on your boy's head, a minute ago, and thought if you went around you might lift it off." It is currently reported that the woman went.

Butter of the Yellow—Fever Plague at Pensacola.

In our last issue we had occasion to notice the defection of the Phoenix. We now have to chronicle its return to the cause, which for a time it deserted. As the first case was no pain, so the second gave us no pleasure. The Phoenix has ever been the cold friend of the conservatives. Ever fearing to offend influential officials, it has never satisfied the demands of honest men. Run entirely in the interest of self, its influence for good or evil has never been felt, and when it ceased its attacks upon dishonesty all knew that the bird believed it to be the winning card. And now that it crows for honesty and reform; all know that the tide has turned. Its defection did the people's cause no harm, and its return can do it no good. It is an old saying, that as Pennsylvania goes, so goes the Union. A new one will be. As the Phoenix goes, so goes the State." It is a bird of prophet.

Roek Hill Grange.

A private letter from Warrington, near the Penncola (Fla.) navy yard dated October 1, says: "The fever has not abated yet. Three Sisters of Charity died last night. There are six officers down with the fever. * * * I wish the first of November was here and we were spared. This suspense is perfectly terrible. No one seems to escape the fever, everybody. It is frightfully lonely; almost everybody is dead."

Sunbeams.

North Carolina newspapers are demanding a law for the protection of insect-destroying birds.

Railroad employees in Nevada, from the conductor to the fireman, carry firearms, for the purpose of putting gamblers and other thieves off the trails.

K. M. Schreff, of Bombay, India, a fire worshipper, is in Boston, inspecting the public schools of that city, with a view of introducing similar institutions into his own country.

A man having a bill against a distant merchant, sent a letter of inquiry to a banker in that locality. The reply was: "He is dead; but he pays now as well as he ever did."

An English physician during a lecture to a female audience, on the use of alcoholic beverages, asserted that the "babies of London are never sober from their birth until they are waned."

Of the four Marshals now on the French army list, one comes from the Polytechnic School, two from the School of St. Cyr, and one rose from the ranks. Of the 314 Generals now in active service, 18 Generals of Division and 32 Brigadiers have risen from the ranks.

"Never bet on a horse race my son. It is wrong to bet, and, besides, the horse that ought to win is likely, in nine out of ten cases, to be jockeyed to the rear. Do not bet at all, my son; but, if you bet on the horses, get acquainted with the riders before the contest, and see how the thing is coming out."

It is alleged in the Springfield Republican that some members of Plymouth Church endeavored to organize among the clergy a demonstration of welcome to Mr. Beecher on his return to Brooklyn. Several ministers were asked to join in such a movement, but they all declined and the project had to be abandoned.

At the National Science Congress in Breslau on Sept. 22, a trial was made of Dr. Reclain's apparatus for the cremation of the human body. The result was that half an hour after the corpse was placed in the furnace the soft parts of the body were thoroughly consumed, and in one hour the bones were reduced to a fine white ash.

The sword of the celebrated French grenadier, Latour d'Auvergne, who was killed at Oberhausen in 1800, has been left by his nephew to Garibaldi. The custom of calling out the name of Latour d'Auvergne first at roll call, and some one replying, "Dead, on the field of honor," which after many years had at last been abandoned in his regiment, has just been introduced by the new colonel, Aubrey.

According to the Freeman's Journal, Gen. Sherman is not a Catholic, but when he courted Miss Ewing he was required, before Father Ryder could marry them, to promise as an officer and a gentleman that he would never interfere with his wife in the practice of her religion, and that her children should be brought up Catholic. The Journal adds that the pomp and fuss attending Miss Sherman's wedding belong to something besides religion.

The death of Dr. Austin, the London physician, so widely known from his researches into the nature and causes of neuralgia, was said to have been caused by exposure to sewer gas when examining the defects of sewerage at a school in Wandsworth. Two prominent physicians, however, now say that his death was primarily caused by a needle puncture received while he was making a post-mortem examination; but that the exposure to sewer gas was a predisposing cause.

A writer in the St. Paul Press tells a new story of Horace Greeley. Horace wrote a note to a brother editor in New York whose writing was equally illegible with his own. The recipient of the note not being able to read it, sent it back by the same messenger to Mr. Greeley for elucidation. Supposing it to be the answer to his own note, Mr. Greeley looked over it but likewise was unable to read it, and said to the boy: "Go take it back. What does the damned fool mean?" "Yes sir," said the boy, "that is just what he says."

Hotter of the Yellow—Fever Plague at Pensacola.

A private letter from Warrington, near the Penncola (Fla.) navy yard dated October 1, says: "The fever has not abated yet. Three Sisters of Charity died last night. There are six officers down with the fever. * * * I wish the first of November was here and we were spared. This suspense is perfectly terrible. No one seems to escape the fever, everybody. It is frightfully lonely; almost everybody is dead."

A Mormon Angel.

A one legged soldier, a Mormon, recently asked Brigham Young to supply, by a miracle, the missing limb; but the apostle, not to be caught, made this reply: "I can, in an instant, produce a new leg in the place of the old one, but then, you see, if I do, it will cause great inconvenience to you in heaven, for after your exaltation to glory, the original leg will come back to the spiritual body; mine also being of divine origin, becomes immortal, and, in this case, observe how very awkward a three-legged angel from Utah would appear among the inhabitants of the eternal world!"

Measures.—As all families are not provided with scales and weights; referring to ingredients in general use by every house-wife, the following information may be useful:

Wheat flour, one quart is one pound.
Indian meal, one quart is one pound and two ounces.
Butter, when soft, one quart is one pound, one ounce.
Loaf sugar, broken, one quart is one pound.
White sugar, powdered, one quart is one pound, one ounce.
Best brown sugar, one quart is one pound, two ounces.
Eggs, average size, ten eggs are one pound.

In spite of lies, troops and provisions, the Radicals will be beaten in Alabama. Then they will try to vitiate the election. Their game is to rule or ruin, and as long as this is the key-note of Northern sentiment, they have the power to do one or the other. Gradually, and in spite of almost insurmountable obstacles, one after another, all of the Southern States, except South Carolina, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana, have wrested themselves from negro, seafaring and carpet-bag domination. Alabama will presently be quit of it. Ultimately, if there be no military intervention, Louisiana, South Carolina and Mississippi will follow, leaving Florida the sole surviving relic of Radical barbarism.

A lovely manner of avoiding sea-sickness has lately been put in practice by an English traveler. He was on board of steamer crossing the British Channel, between Dover and Calais. On deck, right opposite our Briton, was seated a beautiful French actress who was going to London, where she had an engagement for a theatre. The Englishman was keeping his eye riveted on the face of the lady, whose patience being exhausted, said to the islander: "Why are you looking so persistently at me?" "The gentleman answered with an exquisite politeness: "Madam, it is said that to avoid sea-sickness, one must rest his eyes upon a single point and not stop a moment to look at the sea. You are the point which I have chosen."
