THE SENATORIAL ELECTION. Mesers. Editors :- We noticed in your columns a suggestion in relation to the Senatorial election with which we were much pleased. You express a preference for some young man-some one at a preference for some young man—some one at least not imbued with the spirit of fogyism. You Corn, Fodder, Household and Kitchen Furniture, name four-Keitt, Boyce, Miles and Chesnut. The first three are already in Congress, occupying posts of honor and responsibility, and they can be as useful to the South in their present position as in any other. Not so with Col. CHESNUT. Although occupying a prominent place in the Legislature, he has never had an ample field for the display of talents, which he undoubtedly possesses, and the present Senatorial honor could devolve on no Carolinian more worthy to wear the mantle of Burler, Elmore and Calhoun. While he possesses the energy of youth, he is old enough to be prudent in council, and his present position in the Legislature, is a sufficient evidence of his commanding dignity. We would, therefore, prefer him before all others not in public life, and hope that his claims will be pressed successfully by his numerous friends and admirers. ELMORE.

SOUTH CAROLINA COLLEGE. Mesers Editors :- A recent visit to Columbia called to my attention some facts about the South Carolina College of a cheering character. They are all fairly and earnestly at work again. Twenty-one applicants have been admitted since the opening of the session. A member of the Faculty fold me there were a bundred and seventy students on the campus last Saturday; and the expectation is that there will be over two hundred by January. Public confidence is very far from lost in our College yet. A spirit of order and industry pervades the campus quite hope-inspiring to the friends of the institution. For one, I see reason to believe that it will stand higher in three years than it has ever done. J. W. D. October 20, 1857.

Columbia Market.

OCTOBER 26. Cotton .- On the subject of cotton there is but little we can say on the state of the market, for although there have been a few bales sold this week, yet we may say we have no market at all, and the only idea we can give of the value of the article is, that the little which has been sold was taken at 11@111 cents. The entire sales of the week are scarcely 100 bales.

Corn.—The stock of corn is low, and prices are a shade higher. We now quote old 95c@$1: new 85@90 ceuts & bushel. Cow Peas .- The market is bare of peas, and they would freely command 95c@$1 p bushel.

Oats.—There is but little demand for oats, and therefore prices are nominal. We quote 50 cents Flour .- The flour market is well supplied with flour, and prices are steady at the following quotations: $5.50@$6 for common to superfine brands; extra family flour $6.75@$7 p bbl. Fodder .- The fodder market is quiet but steady, without any quotable change in prices, viz: 95c. @$1 $2 100 ibs., according to quantity.
