knew he whipped out ter his wagon an' fetched in the whiskey jug." Here Mr. Hatfield paused, an' a deep flush spread over his face. "I know you'll despise me," said he. "Not a bit of it!" cries Leila. "Why, Mr. Hatfield, do you think I've never been tempted an' fallen? Time an' time again I've vowed not to give way to this wicked, evil temper of mine, an' the very next hour, perhaps, I'd be blazin' out at somebody as if I were a heathen instead of a Christian. But we must never give up, Jim; to pray an' to hope an' to strive against our sins is what we must do."

Her words sounded so brave an' kind that Jim was just overcome; an' before he knew it he blirted out, "I wish my wife would talk to me that way." "She has many burdens," says Leila; "you must help her bear them. She must lean on you, not you on her."

"I'll do my best," said the young man, "an' if they turn me out of church this time, I'll get in again after a year's protwo or three times over. Head marks

"But you have not told me all," says "There sin't much more to tell. Of course we drunk a good deal of whiskey sewing machine and broke all to pieces

-at least I did—though I noticed after a and the oil run over the floor and caught time that Mr. Bobberts didn't drink on fire, and just such a consternation much. An' all the while he wuz talkin' about the bay mare, tryin' ter jew me down on my price. Finally he drew up a paper which he wanted me ter sign. I looked it over, an' wuzn't too drunk ter see that in that contract I should come out at the little end of the horn. Then I got fightin' mad. I broke the jug on the floor, an' went fer old Bobberts tooth an'

"An' he got the worst of it," said Leila, with a laugh. "That's the whole of the story. Of course I held my tongue in my own in-trust, not knowin' I might a helped John by comin' out with it. But you're welcome to publish it now, an' if I'm disgraced, why, I'll jist try ter live it down."

"Mebbe it won't be necessary to publish it, Mr. Hatfield," says Leila. "I think if I go to Mr. Bobberts, an' say, 'Sir, on a certain day you tempted a Sir, on a certain day you tempted a young man to drink whiskey, you tried to young man to drink whiskey, you tried to cheat in a horse trade, an' you told a string of lies, all of which I can prove, I think," cries Leila, almost dancin' with joy—"I think I can twist him round my little finger. An' I'll agree to be silcat if he'll withdraw his charge against my think," cries Leila, almost dancin' with joy.—"I think I can twist him round my little finger. An' I'll agree to be sile at if he'll withdraw his charge against my husband, for Heaven knows I'm not desirous of puttin' disgrace on any poor critter made in God's image."

Three persons now knew a secret, but it wuz kept ez close ez wax. When the court met in the Spring, John Raney's case wuz the fust ter be called. The court-room wuz packed an' jammed, an' the very winders wuz filled with boys hangin' on by their eyelids.

An' then an' there, before the whole assemblage, Mr. Bobberts riz up an' withdrew the charge against Mr. Raney.

Judge Wimbleton looked mightly pleased, an' exchanged some very know-in' glances with John Raney. As fer Leila, she sparkled like a diamond, but she hadn't much ter say, then or after. When asked how such an unexpected endin' wuz brought about, she would only laugh, an' say from first to last all wuz owin' to the tender conscience of Mr. Bobberts.

Made Him Come Home Sober.

While makin' a flyin' visit to Saratoga lately, I noticed that the Indian emsame as ever, just as the instantaneous photographers and the dustomary Indian ly discovered that the new dog had pointprincess, who sells specimens of bead work, etc., at about ten times the market value at Niagara Falls. And this reminds me of a good story I heard the other day of a New York man who had married an Indian princess.

There is a chap round New York, floatin' between here and the interior of Pennsylvania, who is the degenerate son of a prominent New York lawyer, and who has given his folks a good deal of trouble, especially from his hard drink-in'. All sorts of attempts have been made to stop his drinkin'. He has been sent to reformatories, to inebriate asylums and all that, without avail. At last his folks gave up tryin' to reform him, and let him go to the devil. And there's where the point came in. On a wild drunken spree, he went, some ten years ago, to Niagara Fall, and in his cups, this chap I am writin' about got mashed on one of the Indian girls who sell souvenirs and all sorts of things there, and made two or three fortunes every season, like the Nisgara hackmen.

Well, he married the Indian girl, who was a princess of her tribe, and he was us and there are some more who I reckon lucky to get her, for no white girl of his are willing to go and before long there acquaintance would have anythin' to do won't be but two or three in the house. lucky to get her, for no white girl of his with bim. She was a rather pretty girl, We are teaching elecution now, and I too, and was kindly received by her have to stand up and make a bow and husband's relatives, who thought that, show Carl how to say: "Not a drum under the circumstances, any wife was was heard nor a fune al note," so that he better than none, for him.

She lived for a while in New York, soon adopted the style of dress and habits of the whites around her, and made quite a decent and respectable matron, her complexion soon becomin' the only remarkable or out of the way thing about her. She joined the old Methodist church in Grand Street, New York, and became quite a favorite with the congre-gation. Meanwhile her scape-grace husband grew worse and worse, and worried the life out of her. At first he had really been attached to his young wife, and had been rather domestic, but soon he abandoned her society, and kept loafin' round the taverns. He was as wife scold than to hear some folks sing bad as ever, and his folks were again in despair.

His father and mother besought his wife to do her best to reform him if she could, and the poor woman complied with their wishes for her own sake. But in vain, all in vain. He mocked at her tears and prayers; moral suasion was thrown away on him. Then she got an idea, and tried somethin' else. An Abbeville Woman in a Georgia

For in her hand she held a hatchet-not a little but a big Miss Tanty Moore of Abbeville District, hatchet-one of these hatchets which the Indians know so well how to use on the skulls of their enemies.

And she brandished this hatchet before his eyes. She seized him by the hair of his head and threatened to take his scalp. She clutched his hair, got her fingers through it and drew the edges of the hatchet round the top of his head. Suggestively and scientifically she swore to scalp him if ever he came home to her

With the new volume, beginning in December Harper's Magazine will conclude its thirty-fifth year. The oldest periodical of its type, it is yet, in each new volume, a new magazine, not simply because it presents fresh subjects and new pictures, but also, and chiefly, because it steadily advances in the method itself of magazine-making. In a word, the Magazine becomes more and more the faithful mirror of current life and movement. Leading features in the attractive programme for 1885 are: new serial novels by Constance Fenimore Woolson and W. D. Howells; a new novel entitled "At the Red Glove;" descriptive illustrated papers by F. D. Millett, R, Swain Gifford, E. A. Abbey, H. Gibson, and others; Goldsnith's "She Stoops to Conquer," illustrated by Abbey; important papers on Art, Science, etc. Our daily life is like a kaleedscope.

Harper's Young People. AN ILLUSTRATED WEEKLY.

The serial and short stories in Harper's Young People have all the dramatic interest that juvenile fiction can possess, while they are wholly free from what is pernicious or vulgarly sensational. The humorous stories and pictures are full of innocent fun, and the papers on natural history and science, travel, and the facts of life, are by writers whose names give the best assurance of accuracy and value. Illustrated papers on athletic sports, games and pastimes give full information on these subects. There is nothing cheap about it but

FROM THE FATHER: "It is both a pleasure and a duty for me to state to you the benefit I have derived from the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Six months ago I was completely covered with a terrible humor and scrofulous sores. The humor caused an incessant and intolerable itching, and the skin cracked so as to cause the blood to flow in many places whenever I moved. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of the SARSAPARILLA in April last, and have used it regularly since that time. My condition it regularly since that time. My condition hegan to improve at once. The sores have all healed, and I feel perfectly well in every respect—being now able to do a good day's work, although 73 years of age. FRIGHTFUL CATARRH.

Pieces of Bone. roublesome catarrh of the head. So terrible has its nature been that when I blew my nose small pieces of bone would frequently come out of my mouth and nose. The discharge was copious, and at times exceedingly offensive. My blood became so impure that my general health was greatly impaired, with poor appetite and worse digestion.

Numerous medicines were used without relief, until I began the use of B. B. B., and three bottles acted almost like magic. Since their use not a symptom has returned, and I feel in every way quite restored to health. I am an old citizen of Atlanta, and refer to almost any one living on

He is now sound and well, having been cured by the most speedy and wonderful remedy ever before known, and any interested party who may need a Blood Purifier will learn from him that three bottles of B. B. restored his appetite, healed all ulcers, relieved his kidneys, and added twenty-one pounds to his weight in thirty days.

CAPT. R. W. BONNER. A WELL-KNOWN

CITIZEN OF MACON, GA.

In August, 1881, nearly three years ago, my son, who was at that time living at Clinton, Ga., came over to see me with the sad intelligence that his wife was in the last stages of consumption and that her physician had pronounced her case hopeless. I wint immediately over, and I felt that nothing could be done. She was coughing and spitting incessantly, and at times would discharge from her lungs a large quantity of pus or matter—could not sleep or retain anything on her stomach, and was, in fact, in the last stages of the disease. This was about the time you began to sdivertise Brewer's Lung Restorer, and as my son expressed a desire to give it to his wife, two or three bottles were procured and with scarcely a vestige of hope we commenced giving it to her in small doses, gradually increasing the quantity until the prescribed dose was reached. She began to improve after a few doses and continued to do so daily, until she was finally restored to life and health, and is to-day perhaps in better health than ever before. She is subject to colds, but a few swallows of Brewer's Lung Restorer (which she is never without) relieves her immediately. I consider her restoration to perfect health a miracle, for which she is indebted to Brewer's Lung Restorer. My son is almost a monomaniac on the subject of Brewer's Lung Restorer and never lets an opportunity pass where he thinks such a medicine would be required, that he does not speak of tin most glowing terms. Not long sizeca Northern gentleinan on his way to Florida heard of this cure and was induced by my son to give it to his invalid wite, and she was cured as if by magic."
