THE CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION. Special Correspondence of the Intelligencer.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 8, 1895. The Constitutional Convention, after bout a month's session, has taken a recess for ten days. The members have gone home to see how their work is being received and to enquire what is wanted on certain other matters. The Convention now has all of its work mapped out, and, as the last of the committees has reported to the body, the general tenor of most of the matters to come up may be speculated upon, with some degree of

The Convention has, together with its preliminary work, finished up the sections on these matters: Executive, Impeachments, Amendments, Misceilaneous matters, Municipal corporations and Prlice regulations, and Legislative (almost). The more important subjects s is now the that have yet to be considered, and which of the United will consume most of the time of the main a Major- Convention, will be: Suffrage, Corporations, Education, County Government Was retirement of General and Judiciary. Some of the other remaining reports will take up time, but in these the Convention will find the greatest difference of opinion and the greatest amount of accumulated oratory. When the Convention reassembles there is a little more work to be done on the legislative report, and then the much dreaded fight on the new county matter, will be taken up. The lines have already been sharply drawn on this matter, and the fight as to area, nearness to other county court-houses, population and assessed value of property of the new territory and all such matters will be fought from the jump. The champion of the new county idea will be Mr. Geo. D. Tillman, who has already announced his intention to fight for the small county idea to the last ditch. The special champion of the old counties has not yet been shown, but it may be Mr. Frank Gary, of Abbeville, or it may be Mr. Stanyarne Wilson, or some entirely new man. There will be no lack of men to lead both sides, and one of the sharpest and prettiest fights of the session is expected on this question. The general outline of the report of the

They say that no good can come from it. The pose this section in the Courts of the United States. You may read of them any day in your papers. I plead, that at any of our great expositions, the more divorce and divorce legisments are so thoroughly opposed to this idea of the international.

They have been making a provide with the instruct will show that there are more colored people owning small tracts of land than there are whites in the same condition. They have but little idea of its defeat in the Convention or in the Courts, but expect to fight simply as a matter of form. The chief fight of the colored delegates will be to have the entire Constitution submitted back to the people for ratification. They have an idea that this can be done, and, with a heavy negro vote, that the work of the Convention may be nullified. It will, however, not take the Convention long to settle this delusive fancy.

One of the prettiest fights of the Convention was that which led to the adoption of the provision that no divorces shall ever be granted in South Carolina. The advocates of divorces for adultery made a lgallant but fruitless fight, but the Convention took the position that it would perhaps be better for South Carolina if the gates were kept closed and no inducements were offered for the divorce advocates of the future. Senator Tillman and others tried to have the Convention, after others tried to have the Convention, after it had declared against divorces, make some provision for the recognition of divorces granted in other States of parties married in South Carolina, but the Convention took the position that once mar-ried always married, and the Courts and the Convention have conspired together to forever bar the doors sgainst divorces for this State. Some of the prettiest speeches that will be made during the progress of the Convention were made noon this matter. Mr. Patton, of Richnpon this matter. Mr. Taken and Farrow land, and Messrs. Henderson and Farrow took opposite positions, and their speeches were very strong.

Delegate Smalls, the notorious colored member from Beaufort, thought he had the Convention in a hole a day or two ago. Some of the members did not like the awkwardness of the position, but Senator Tillman soon had an amendment making enation a crime, which was made macegenation a crime, which was made to suit the occasion and which had to sat-isfy the colored members, who had their resolution before the Convention more for effect than for practical results.

An effort was made by some of the delegates to omit from the oath of office all egates to omit from the cath of omice an reference to never having engaged in a duel, as well as the obligation not to engage in a duel. The move was somewhat of a surprise, but it was promptly voted down; the members tried to have the path so amended as not to interfere with duelling outside of the State, but this, too, failed. Several other such plans were

It has long been a hobby of some of the leaders in the State, to incorporate Piedmont and Pelzer and Pacolet and other "factory towns" in the State. For one reason or another these places have never applied to the Legislature for charters, but Senator Tillman and others wanted the present Constitution so fixed that when a place had a certain number of pco-ple that it should be incorporated. He wanted, he urged, to have these "factory wanted, he urged, to have these "factory towns" incorporated, and urged that the pressure of the mill superintendents and owners was all that kept these places from having local self-government, and that they wanted to be incorporated. The Convention heard argument on the matter for two days and by a design value. ter for two days and by a decisive vote decided to leave factory towns in the same position as other places, and that they could apply for and get charters just as other places. Woman's Rights.

DEAR INTELLIGENCER: I consider it the highest and most honorable devotion to woman to defend her rights against those alse and destructive honors with which it s sought to endow her.

I have been reading the speeches of ladies Clay, Neblett and Young before the Constitutional Convention, and felt the demure regret that Southern ladies were not sensible of a position doubly unnatur al; first, a position against which her constitution protested; second, a position against which her Bible protested. It was and is an outcome of 19th century degeneracy that the nymph with small feet, and flowing dress and tight succinc ture and smooth face and feminine squeal can, in all these significant circumstances can, in all these significant circumstances, stand on a platform and make a speech to whiskered men without blushing; and make a speech in her own behalf, when everything about her and in her speaks more eloquently for her than her lips. You seldom fall to admire every movement of woman and everything she doss. ment of . woman and everything she does, in her womanly sphere she does everything deftly. But when she publicly advocates her claim to suffrage power, a mean and insignificant power compared to the power she wields in enlightened communities, your admiration sinks.

The general outline of the report of the committee on suffrage was expected by those who had been watching the committee. The only material change is the provision by which the registration, under the "understanding and explaining" clause, is to be conducted by a Board of three Supervisors instead of the orde Supervisor, as intended. The promise is that one of these three registration officers is to be a Conservative. The idea is tolet in all of the illiterates by the time of the desing of the "understanding and explaining" clause in 1899, and after that to apply the straight reading and writing provision. Senator Tillman and the members of the Committee on Suffrage insist that the plan is fair, and that it is the only thing that will stand the test of the Courts that they have been able to devise, and that if this is not adopted then they do not know what to do. The service of the comment of property was reduced to $300. indoor-man. > geous expositions of false women tossing the feet and legs as high as their heads; an exposition fast killing out the virtuous thoughts of this generation. I plead, that for the last fifty years, an advertisement of polygamy has been erected in Utab; which, while it has stood there. advertis ing to the disgust of a virtuous population, it has been silently, covertly appealing to the most ungovernable propensity of the race, (i. e) the sexual. And it has had its ffect in degrading the virtuous sentiment of the generation. In the hope of State-hood and under the influence of Congres sional legislation, Utah has repealed her polygamy But have you not noticed how much effect legislation has upon a grown human propensity? Is it not a conven-ient disguise to cover withour eradicating It will take longer to eradicate polygamy than it has taken Utah to nurse it. The niserable venanahs and harems of the East have, in modified form, taken root in American soil. Let not public opinion be urged as growing in favor of woman's rights and woman publicity, when the popular literary journals of the time are replete with the finest specimens of the

Mr. Hector D. Lane, president of the American Cotton Growers' Protective Association, says the New Orleans Times-Democrat, yesterday issued a cir-cular to the Association, dated this city, advising them that they are masters of the situation, and begging them to hold their cotton until they get ten and one-half cents a pound. Here is the circular: "New Orleans, September 29, 1895.
"To the American Cotton Growers Protective Association: Twenty days ago, in advance of the bureau report, I issued a circular stating the crop conditions and warning you against a hasty disposition or marketing of your cotton. The cotton buyers and 'bear' speculators ridiculed that circular, but when it was more than confirmed by the Government oureau they began to have some respect for my investigations. "Since that time the crop has deteriorated to such an extent as to amount to a disaster. No such weather has ever before been seen in the cotton districts. The worms have continued to do great damage, and, even from districts like the Tallahatchie River in Mississippi, where the crop was said to be good, comes reliable information of a 40 per cent.

"The best authorities put the Texas output at 1,750,000 bales, or less. The cotton plant is now practically dead throughout the South, and a frost tonight would do but little if any damage. In my opinion this crop cannot exceed 6,500,000 bales maximum. "Even Mr. Neill has been compelled to reduce his estimate to a maximum of 7,000,000 or 7,250,000 bales, with possibilities of much less. What he termed a possibility' when his circular was issued is now an established fact; and it is diffi-cult to see now Mr. Nell, as a statistician, can fail to recognize this fact when he issues his next circular. s plain. The European manufacturers. relying upon mistaken information giver them about the size of this crop, and not realizing in time that the world is on a trade boom, have sold manufactured goods ahead until July of next year. To make these goods they must have your cotton or ruin themselves by violating their contracts. They, as well as the American spinners, are caught in a trap. This crop is too small for all of them to get their full shares. America, Mexico, Canada and Japan will consume a minimum of 3,000,000 bales. This will leave 3,500,000 bales to be distributed between Great Britain and the Continent, against 6,800,000 bales last year. This will wipe out the visible supply and create a panic among cotton buyers. The price of cotton has come to stay, and to new dwelling house and store room near go very much higher. "Last year the manufacturers reaped a golden harvest by buying five-cent cotton. It is now your turn. They know that the crop is all open and can be marketed before December 1. They expected you to bite at the bait held out by the present so-called 'great rise' and rush your cotton forward and press it for sale. buyers outbidding each other for every bale of cotton you have to sell.

"Do not be deceived by the advice of New York 'bear' circulars disguised under a 'bull's' hide. Under present crop and trade conditions your cotton is worth ten and one-half cents. Do not sacrifice it because last year it sold at five cents, and now is selling for eight and one-half cents. Your obedient servant, "HECTOR D. LANE, "President of American Cotton Grow-ers' Protective Association,"

Last Thursday evening, October 3, Dr. A. C. Strickland, of Anderson, and Miss Fredda Holmes, of this place, were married at the Episcopal Church. There were six little flower girls, all dressed in white. As the wedding march was being rendered by Mrs. J. N. Hunter the bridal party entered as follows: Miss Ella Sitton and Miss Christing Hangkal Miss Sadie and Miss Christine Hanckel, Miss Sadie Strickland and Miss Walker, and Miss Lola Strickland and Miss Walker. Then came the bride and groom. The bride was very becomingly attired in a handsome white silk; also wearing the bridal veil and orange blossoms. Mrs. Holmes and Mr. E. L. The Biggest Shipment of Ever made to Anderson, and perhaps the largest to any point in the State. The following explains itself. Don't read it, if you are not interested in your County and your Town, and the people whom you call neighbors:

SEPTEMBER 18, 1895.

c. s. MINOR & CO.

GENTLEMEN: I have the pleasure of stating that we have received at this depot, marked to your address, one and one-third Car Loads of Crockery, all shipped from same place at one time. The one-third Car Load had to be shipped in separate Car, as it all could not be put in one Car. To the best of my knowledge, this is two and a half or three times larger than any previous single shipment of Crockery to this point. I understand that you have another shipment now on the way. I congratulate you and this community.

You will accommodate us by removing these Goods as early as you can make room for them, as we hardly have sufficient space for storing so large a lot of this ware in our depot for any length of time.
