Are You Getting Scared?

If you are not trembling in your shoes about the falling price of cotton, the cotton manipulators have missed their aim. These shrewd speculators are the judges of human nature to start with, and their long, successful career in monkeying with silly cotton farmers have taught them how to deceive the farmer on one plan this time and then another different plan at another time.

About this time last year these cotton speculators were playing a fine winning game with gano tugs, and were searing the cotton out of the farmers' hands right along at 7 cents, while his plucky neighbors were holding on to their 10 cents but many of them done half a cent better.

Now the difference in the farmers' prices and the prices set by the buyers of today is not near so great as it was last season, and the demand is better today and the surplus not so large as last year at this time, and when we think of all these favorable conditions we are at a complete loss to account for the reasons for some farmers selling a present price.

Support Your Organization and Your Organization Will Thrive, And Thereby Support You in Time.

Have you paid up your dues? If not, let me tell you, brother, that you are not doing your duty. You are well aware of the fact that if you do not cultivate your crop after it is planted that weeds will grow up in your fields and smother your crop unless you keep the weeds down. So it is with the Farmers' Union. It is good seed sown in good ground and you should attend your Union regularly and pay up your dues promptly, or the weeds—your enemies—will spring up among you and choke down your progress and growth.

The dues are very extremely small to each individual member, but the aggregate sum is sufficient to support the organization if all will pay up promptly, but we cannot expect our organization to support our cause unless we support our organization.

Where is the farmer that would be willing to leave his home and work to go out to work for the good of all our farmers without pay? We haven't enough patriots about us to do this unless we should not expect others to do it for us. Pay up, boys like men and you will feel good for it.

South Carolina Made Too Much Cotton.

It is now an established fact that South Carolina farmers make too much cotton. Beyond doubt, a large percent of her best farmers have reduced their acreage last season; but did they lap back into the remaining acreage the fertilizers and labor and have gone ahead and produced a crop about as large as our largest? These significant figures have caused Texas farmers to revolt, and there is now a movement on foot there that it is feared will terminate in Texas growing four million bales this year. E. F. Taylor, the late out vice president of the Cotton Association, who is one of the leaders in this disastrous movement, is claiming that South Carolina farmers have twice as much cotton as Texas farmers now take care of her interests by growing all the cotton she can, which of course means ruinous prices that will play into the hands of the speculators.

South Carolina farmers had better take warning now while they are laying their plans for this crop or they are sure to meet disaster next fall.

There is too much gano going out! The times ahead are frightful to think about, we must build our fortifications now and have something to stand behind when the trouble comes next fall.

Moonshiners Fined on Revenue Officers.

Greenville, Feb. 28.—Fifty or more moonshiners were exchanged between moonshiners and a party of officers at noon today as the officers were starting toward Greenville, after a raid in "Dark Corner." No one was hurt, the range being long. The moonshiners were armed the same as the officers, with repeating rifles carrying smokeless ammunition and with hidden magazines and bluffs, so that no target was afforded the raiders, who put spur to their horses, firing into the brush as they rode.

In the party besides Special Deputy Collector E. A. Alden, the leader, were Deputy United States Marshal McDaniels, Constables Bell, Charles and Cooley, of this city, and Constable Mulligan, of Spartanburg. They left Greenville on Sunday afternoon, and destroyed two distilleries. One was a steamer of 15 gallons per day with 10 fermenters and about 1,000 gallons of beer. The other was a copper still of 30 gallons with 10 fermenters and 700 gallons of beer. The stills were destroyed. The latter party was found within 400 yards of Glassy Church, 24 miles above Greenville, near the North Carolina line. No arrests were made.

After completing their work of destruction, the officers started homeward and when within eight miles of the church the sharp, clean report of a Winchester rang out from an overhanging shelf, and was followed by a steady fusillade to which the officers replied at great disadvantage, since their assailants were sheltered by the cliffs and moreover were using smokeless powder. The officers' pursuers have frequently been fired upon in the "Dark Corner." Yesterday the veteran raiders, who had been under fire before, knew enough to spur up and steel jackets and bullet-proof vests, and slipped limbs from trees alongside, but for a miracle there were no casualties.

A comparison of the Ocala Osgood Distillery with those on the market will show a one-half cent superiority for every point. This is the cheapest. Buy a Ocala from Sullivan Row, O.

STATE NEWS.

—Truck growers around Charleston are shipping strawberries to Northern markets.

—Thomas Somar, a Spartanburg negro, died recently leaving about $10,000 in bank and mill stock.

—Harry Beard, the two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Beard, was burned to death at Bennettsville.

—Charles M. Rich, of Clarendon county, who tried to kill himself, is said to be improving and may recover.

—Two fires of incendiary origin were extinguished by Charleston firemen in one day. The damage was slight.

—The negro laborers employed at the Read Phosphate Works, near Charleston, have threatened to go on a strike.

—Simon A. McLendon, a Confederate veteran of Marion county, died suddenly while traveling along the public road in his buggy.

—A movement is on foot to build a new railroad from Saluda to Greenwood, which will mean much for those two counties as to railroad facilities.

—Spartanburg is already preparing for her annual spring musical festival. It is the aim of the promoters to make this the best that has yet been held.

—K. D. Windham, a young merchant of Lamar, is being held in connection with the murder of Charlie Anders n, who was stabbed to death.

—The farmers around Blackville have decided to engage in the raising of cantaloupes on an extensive scale. Several of the farmers will plant large crops.

—A negro woman in Greenville bent on suicide threw herself before a train and was rescued and later soaked herself with kerosene and set herself on fire.

—Chas. G. Sherman, an operative in the Huguenot mills, Greenville, has brought suit for $15,000 against the mills for injuries received by a falling elevator.

—In some sections of the State many owners of fine dogs have been so unfortunate as to lose them, recently, with a disease resembling pneumonia. Hunting dogs seem especially in danger.

—Alex Gillam, colored, was arrested in Kentucky on the charge of stealing a church communion service from the house of his brother in Chester county. The theft was committed two years ago.

—Wilson G. Harvie, of Charleston, has declined his appointment on the board of pardons, because he is acting as alderman, which disqualifies him. Another man to take Mr. Harvie's place will be named in a few days.

—Hiram Tillman shot and killed Edward Thomas Thursday night on the plantation of Edward Calhoun, about twelve miles west of Abbeville. The cause is alleged to have been family troubles. Tillman came in later and surrendered to the sheriff.

—Ransom Barnes, a prominent farmer of Lee county, was shot and perhaps mortally wounded with a shotgun while sitting in his home by the fire on Wednesday night. Jim Deansure, colored, has been arrested charged with the crime. The evidence is strong against him.

—A bunch of applicants are after the job of State bank examiner. Governor Hoyward in making the appointment will be largely influenced by the recommendation of the State bankers association. There are three vacancies on the shell fish commission and the places are also being much sought for.

—Congressman Ellerbe is at work in an effort to provide for the erection of a monument to Marion, the memory of Gen. Francis Marion. Mr. Ellerbe has introduced a bill providing for an appropriation of $25,000 to carry out the project. The citizens of Marion propose to remove the remains of Gen. Marion from their present resting place to Marion court house.

—Joseph Schultz and A. J. Beckwith, two of the pickpockets arrested at the State Fair last fall, were convicted in Columbia on Wednesday and were sentenced to the penitentiary for ten years. H. M. Miller, a Chicago lawyer representing the defendants, offered the deputy sheriff $250 to fix the jury. The officer reported the matter to the court, and the lawyer was arrested and committed to jail on the charge of attempting to bribe.

—Dabois Sellers, the 16-year-old son of P. B. Sellers, a leading lawyer of Dillon, was instantly killed at the Railroad street crossing by Railroad avenue Wednesday evening. The young man was driving homeward and the approaching train was obscured by box cars standing on a siding. The buggy was demolished throwing the young man on the tracks and before he could recover he was caught by the engine and his life crushed out.

—T. Moultrie Mordson, of Charleston, who represents most of the large creditors of the dispensary, has arranged to have a conference with the sub-committee this week to figure out exactly what the committee wants, and how to have his clients comply with the wishes of the committee if they can do so. More than half a million is involved in this procedure awaiting the "O. K." of the dispensary committee, and there are likely to be some interesting developments.

GENERAL NEWS.

—The body of a white babe sealed in a quart pickle bottle was found near Atlanta.

—Harvie Jordan will make a tour of the cotton States. He will leave March 1, and return April 10.

—H. Y. Stack, a railroad man, was shot and killed by Miss Hannon, a 14-year-old girl, at Concord, N. C.

—Nearly one hundred thousand dollars have been subscribed by the citizens of Atlanta to the 1910 exposition.

—In Roanoke, Va., Ex-Sheriff John B. Trayham was assassinated with an axe by some one who got into his room.

—John D. Rockefeller's wealth is said to equal the annual budget of fifteen European States, and if put into dollars would form a double circuit around the earth.

—Claude Sims, a negro convict working at the rock quarry in Athens, Ga., had both eyes blown out and one of his hands torn off by a premature explosion of a charge of dynamite.

—Virginia, through attorney general, petitioned the Supreme Court for permission to enter suit against West Virginia for a portion of the debt contracted before the two States separated.

—Rev. H. Lee Harrell, a Presbyterian minister of Monticello, Ga., was accidentally shot and killed on Thursday by his friend R. R. Howell, a cotton buyer, while they were hunting birds together.

—E. Spencer Blackburn, the only Republican congressman from North Carolina, was indicted by the Federal grand jury at Asheville for accepting retainers for services before the departments in Washington.

—Mrs. Grogan and her four children were brogan to death in a burning building at Tunnel Hill, near Johnstown, Pa. Two other members of the family jumped from the second story and were seriously injured.

—It is estimated that the presents received by Miss Alice Roosevelt, now Mrs. Longworth, represented a value of not less than $250,000. The value of the presents received by Nellie Grant when she was a White House bride was about $69,000.

—Mrs. Carrie Nation was ejected from a barroom at Hot Springs, Ark., on Thursday and committed to jail on the charge of disturbing the peace, she having gone in there to deliver a lecture against drinking. She was released later in the day.

—A fire recently swept through the woods near the State university at Berkeley, Cal., and disclosed that a freshman had been living in a tent in the woods and cooking his own meals. He was too poor to rent a room. It is said he is an excellent student.

—As a result of Wednesday's election in Philadelphia the Republican party is again in the minority. The contest hinged on the election of two police magistrates, and the reform or city party candidate, with Democratic endorsement, led his Republican opponents by 10,145 votes.

—Three young white men, William Dunsuway, William Turpin and James Gamble, stepped from the train on a trestle 80 feet high over the Tennessee river at Knoxville on Wednesday night and were instantly killed. The name of the station had been called out and they evidently thought they had reached it.

—Miss Lizzie E. Wimbish, a native of Montgomery, Ala., and one of the best known Southern female missionaries of the Presbyterian church in the Orient, died last Friday in Kobe, Japan. Miss Wimbish was 51 years of age and had been engaged in foreign mission work since 1887.

—The United States is becoming a bankrupt government. This may sound harsh, but a deficit confronts the high financiers at the head of affairs. Notice from the last treasury statement that for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1905, the expenditures exceeded the receipts $25,000,000. And this at the flood tide of prosperity too.

—Samuel Thomas, the largest manufacturer of pig iron in the United States, died at Cataques, Pa. He was 79 years of age. He was a son of David Thomas, who first successfully introduced the anthracite blast for the manufacture of pig iron. Samuel Thomas organized the Pioneer Mining and Manufacturing Company, at Thomas, near Birmingham, Ala.

—The 18 months-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Stanford Jordan, in North Bristol, Va., is in a critical condition as the result of having been attacked by a game rooster which Mr. Jordan had just brought to his home. The rooster attacked the child in the yard and cut ugly gashes in his face and head before the mother discovered what was going on. Blood flowed freely from the wounds, and but for timely intervention the child would have been killed.

—The winner of the $25,000 prize for correctly naming the attendance at the St. Louis exposition in 1904 was Frank Campbell, a convict in the Nebraska State penitentiary who still has about one year to serve. Campbell was convicted of embezzlement. He will receive only $12,500 of the prize, as he fearing difficulty in securing the money while he was imprisoned agreed to pay a lawyer half of the prize in case of success in securing it. Campbell's attorney had a conference with him at the penitentiary in regard to the disposition of the money which will be received in a few days. The convict will be unable to use the money until his sentence expires.
