COLONEL TRIBLE JOINS CAMPAIGN.

Has Been Confined to His Home on Account of Illness, but Leaves Today to Push His Candidacy.

Col. M. P. Tribble, who has been confined to his home on account of illness and who has not been able to join the campaign since it opened, has recovered his strength sufficiently to make the trip and leaves today to join the party at Gaffney.

The impression has been made on the public it is said by some of his opponents that he would never be able to make the race, and that if he made the race and won that he would never be able to take charge of the office of Secretary of State.

Col. Tribble is just like everybody else, liable to get sick and die and just as liable to get sick and get well. It is fool talk to say that just because a man has been down sick for a few weeks that he will never get well again. Col. Tribble has too good a constitution to lay down, pine away and die for nothing. He stands just as good a chance to see the dirt shoveled in on his opponents as they have of seeing it thrown in on him.

Col. Tribble is about himself again and within a few days will be able to get about as lively among the voters of South Carolina as any of his opponents.

The name of the next Secretary of State will be M. P. Tribble.

At Last.

Although there is some doubt as to whether the Health Officer has a right to inspect slaughtering pens outside of the city, Officer Martin has made a trip to the slaughtering pens. It is said that the officer found some of them in rather bad condition. One in particular, it is said, was in exceedingly bad condition.

In Anderson, as well as every other city, the market is the biggest item in the eating bill, and it is strange that the markets of this city do not receive more attention from officers whose business it should be to make trips daily to markets, and where they find spoiled meats or meats not butchered right, to condemn them and see that they are not used on sale. In cities where there are meat inspectors a day never passes but what great quantities of meat are condemned. In Anderson has there ever been a pound of meat condemned in the markets by an officer?

Real Estate Deal.

The Fretwell-Hanks Company have bought from the Messrs. Sullivan the stable building on Depot street, formerly occupied by Mr. Clarence Osborne and will at once remodel the building, put in neat stalls and run a feed stable.

Anderson has been in need of a place for some time where country people could send their teams for a feed or where you could hitch your teams and feed them yourself. The Fretwell-Hanks Company realized this and they will provide the people with what they want.

This does not mean that the Fretwell-Hanks Company will leave their old quarters, but means they are doing such a big business that they have to branch out in order to accommodate their friends. They will still occupy their old quarters and say they will handle more horses and mules and vehicles than ever before.

The feeding stable on Depot street will be open to the public about the 15th.

Blind Tigers at Piedmont.

The last issue of the Greenville Mountain says:

It being whispered around that some one in or near Piedmont was turning loose some blind tiger liquor in that community, Chief Cuscuton directed Constable James Altom on Thursday to go down and keep watch for several days. Accordingly Mr. Altom went down and was met by Constable J. T. Davis and the two began to look around. They soon got evidence sufficient to swear out a warrant against C. L. and E. H. Lowery, who live just above town on the place of Mr. Linky. A hearing was held before Magistrate J. J. McWhorter on Friday and testimony was given sufficient to bind them over to court to answer to the two charges of selling liquor and maintaining a nuisance.

The constables seized fourteen and a half gallons of liquor Lowery, after the hearing, acknowledged his guilt to Mr. Altom and expects to enter a plea of guilty when the case is tried.

The good people of Piedmont and vicinity are much gratified at this good news, and hope the constables Lowery has been suspected for some time for a blind tiger liquor could be secured before this.

SALUDA ASSOCIATION LARGELY ATTENDED.

The Old Officers Re-elected—Honea Path's Hospitality.

The Saluda Baptist Association met Tuesday morning at Honea Path. The old officers were re-elected, as follows: Rev. Mike McGee, Honea Path, moderator; Rev. W. W. Leathers, Anderson, clerk; Calma O. Burris, Anderson, assistant clerk and treasurer.

The introductory sermon was preached by Rev. R. E. Small. Two new churches were admitted to the Association, the church at Brogon Mills, Anderson, and Chiquola church, Honea Path, making a total of 46 churches.

The people of Honea Path entertained the Association in a most creditable manner and fully sustained their reputation as lovers of good things to eat and hospitality in abundance. Though the weather was uncertain, a tremendous crowd was present and everybody enjoyed themselves.

The handsome pebble-dashed Church just completed by the Baptists at Honea Path received many compliments for its beauty and its arrangements.

A sumptuous dinner was spread in the grove around the church and the delegates and visitors enjoyed an hour partaking of refreshments, shaking hands and renewing old acquaintances.

A resolution was passed pledging the Saluda Association to try to raise five thousand dollars for the new dormitory of the Greenville Female College, and a committee was appointed to apportion this amount among the different churches. Rev. Victor I. Masters and Rev. Louis J. Bristow spoke for the Baptist Press and Rev. Hoir for the Baptist Courier.

The Saluda Baptist Association comprises forty-three Baptist Churches, all in Anderson County, except one, the Little River in Abbeville County. These churches have an aggregate of 7,250 members and contributed to all objects last year more than $26,000.

The Saluda dates back to 1803, when it was organized at old Salem Church above Anderson.

Report of the Committee on Temperance, at Saluda Association, in Session at Honea Path, S. C.

Seventy-five years ago the crusade against strong drink had hardly begun; prohibition was unknown. The ideas of Jefferson and Jackson as to freedom and democracy were rampant in America, they had almost been carried to the extreme and the idea of personal freedom with many persons was practically equivalent to unlimited license. A writer in Munsey's Magazine (July or August, 1905) shows that at that period the liquor drinker's habit was well high universal in this country; that there were many hundreds of thousands of Americans who drank to excess; that there were many more hundreds of thousands who drank regularly, but with some moderation, and that the per capita consumption of liquors were very much higher than now.

But about this time war on rum was declared. The conscience of the nation began to awake and common sense and American manhood began to assert themselves. Public sentiment began to change. Everywhere from one end of this country to the other, people commenced to take a truer and saner view of the frightful evil of drink, and for seventy-five years, led on by such pioneers as John B. Gough and Lorenzo Dow, and later by such great leaders as Frances Willard and Dwight L. Moody, the Christian manhood of the nation has marched against this central stronghold of the evil one. Open drunkenness is no longer tolerated among good people, and it is no longer regarded as the distinguishing mark of a gentleman to sit longest at the banquet board and be the last to go under the table. Prior to this awakening even many of the preachers drank, and they do in England and some other countries today, and nothing was thought of it. We have had old inhabitants to tell us of preachers of the olden time who thought nothing of taking their morning dram and who would even join their parishioners in disposing of a bottle on the streets of the town.

What a remarkable advance in public sentiment in America since that time! Today one-half of the American people have prohibition laws and the remaining one-half have restricted the traffic in varying degrees. The article in Munsey's gives a map showing that all of Maine and Kansas, nearly all of Mississippi and several other States, and hundreds of counties in New York, hundreds in Ohio, hundreds in Indiana and Illinois, hundreds in Georgia and Texas and in other great States have entirely prohibited the sale of intoxicating liquors. In fact, in these great States and in nearly all other States except in the very far west, the sale of liquor is now practically confined to the great cities, and it is plain to be seen that it is only a matter of time until this damnable traffic must give way everywhere before the onward march of intelligent Christian sentiment.

If we of this generation do your duty in the matter, the next twenty-five years will see an advance as great as that made during the last seventy-five years, and the century from 1828 to 1930 will mark the everlasting doom of this everlasting traffic. We look back with surprise and horror upon the conditions that existed in our country seventy-five years ago, and we think we have advanced—which unquestionably we have—but our descendants seventy-five years from now, in studying the history of this generation, will regard with equal surprise and horror the conditions of the present time and will be equally thankful for the cycle of progress covering the seventy-five years between our time and theirs.

South Carolina, thank God, is making some progress. Counties containing almost half of her population have said that it shall be no longer legal within our borders for men to sell to their brethren the poison that destroys them, body, intellect and soul, and condemns their innocent families to suffer. Since this Association met last fifteen counties have voted out the dispensary, Union, Laurens, Williamsburg, Newberry, Marion, York, Horry, Lancaster, Darlington, Oconee, Spartanburg, Greenville, Anderson, Edgefield and Saluda. Two counties, Cherokee and Pickens, had already done the same thing. Two other counties, Greenwood and Marlboro, had never had a dispensary, so that nineteen of our counties, or nearly half of the total number, have shown their intention that the whiskey traffic shall not be legalized within their borders, although in Williamsburg and Laurens the elections were declared invalid by the court.

For the first six months in the city of Anderson this year there were 404 cases in the police court. The last year for a corresponding period there were 702. For the first six months this year there were 140 cases for drunkenness; last year there were 339. For the first six months of this year in the city of Greenville there were 337 arrests; for the six months preceding that time, when the dispensary was in operation, there were 647 arrests. Other statistics send similar reports. And these facts are most gratifying to all of us who have lifted a voice or cast a ballot for the purity of the home and the peace and good name of our counties and our State.

But there is work yet to do, and a great deal of it. Brethren, we call upon you to do your duty in that work.

Two things now call for your most prayerful attention as Christian citizens—1. To do all in your power to enforce the laws that we have on the subject; and (2) to aid in improving those laws. Intelligent citizens need not be told anything more of the gigantic system of fraud and corruption that has grown up in this State under the State dispensary system; they need not be told any more about the enormous increase of the sale of liquor under this system within the past few years; they need not be humiliated by pointing to the spectacle of their own fair State engaged in the business of pushing the sale of the wares of whiskey drummers and whiskey houses to the destruction of its own citizens. They know enough of these things already, and they have quietly made up their minds as to what they are going to do, regardless of politics and politicians. The success of any politician means less to them than the welfare of the boys and girls, of the mothers and homes, of their county and their State. They have no quarrel with those that do not see as they do; they concede to them equal honesty of purpose; but with love and toleration, with determination and firmness, with hope, faith and consecration they are moving upward and onward towards the only final solution of this great problem that is possible—the right solution—the triumph of right and the suppression of wrong.

Respectfully submitted,
B. F. Martin,
Chairman.

Slabtown News.

Miss Addie Scott has returned from a visit to friends in Hartwell, Ga., and is entertaining a house party this week, in her lovely country home near Pisgah.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Blessingame of Van Alstyne, Texas, are on a visit to relatives and friends. This is the first visit back since leaving here for Texas fifteen years ago. Their old friends are giving them the glad hand of welcome. It is not to be wondered at that the wanderers turn again with eager feet to the dear old home State.

Why should not there be a home coming day for South Carolinians as well as Georgians and Kentuckians? There is not a better State in the Union. What it lacks in size it makes up in the extra quality of its people and its products.

Mrs. S. E. Paxton and daughter, Miss Mabel Paxton, of Fort Worth, Texas, are the guests of Mrs. J. M. Browne and family, also Mrs. Myrtle Ahlman and children. Dr. Ahlman was recalled to Texas last week by the demands of his extensive practice. Mrs. Paxton was a Miss Miller before marriage and a native-born South Carolinian. Like all others she loves to return to the land of her nativity occasionally.

Protracted services will commence at the Presbyterian Church here Wednesday night, conducted by the pastor, Rev. A. W. White, assisted by the Rev. W. A. Matheson of Easley. We hope the services will be well attended and productive of much good.

F. M. Glenn, our accommodating Rural Carrier, visited relatives at Easley Saturday.

Mr. T. J. Watkins of Nashville, Tenn., is visiting his father, Capt. Willis Watkins, who is still quite sick. Miss Ida Jamison, one of Pierce-town's most estimable young ladies, visited friends here last week.

Miss Jennie Blessingame has returned to Pickens after a stay of some weeks with the family of her uncle, Capt. G. A. Rankin.

We are glad to note that Mr. John Prince is able to be out again after a protracted illness of six weeks.

The rains have held up for the last few days and farmers are busy sowing turnips, and putting in the long delayed last work of laying by crops. The continued rains has caused cotton to make a large weed, but it will be found at gathering time that the July crop will be short.

Senator Hood Withdraws.

Hon. John K. Hood, who filed his pledge as a candidate for the State Senate at the eleventh hour last Friday, has withdrawn from the race.

It has been known all along that Senator Hood did not desire re-election but he would have made the race had Capt. Sullivan not entered.

Senator Hood was very anxious for Capt. Sullivan to run and after he learned for certain that the Captain would remain in the race he then withdrew.

In withdrawing from the race Senator Hood writes a card to The Intelligencer which explains itself:

Editor Intelligencer: When I filed a pledge for the Senate the other day just a few minutes before the time expired for filing, and after learning that Mr. Breazale had withdrawn and that Mr. Watson had entered the race, I had no intention of making the race if Mr. Geo. W. Sullivan continued in the race, as I hoped he would.

Mr. Watson and I disagreed so seriously during the last session of the legislature with regard to certain matters connected with the dispensary that I felt it to be my duty to file a pledge, under the new conditions so quickly occurring so as to insure an opportunity to the voters of this county to decide between Mr. Watson's views on those matters and the views of those who disagreed with him, should Mr. Sullivan be unable to make the race for any reason.

Hence I filed a pledge so that Mr. Sullivan, who was not in the city that day, could be informed of the new situation, and as he has written that he will remain in the race to the finish, I have withdrawn my pledge, and, of course, will not enter the race.

J. K. Hood.

BIG RAILROAD MEETING AT TOWNVILLE NEXT FRIDAY.

The big railroad meeting to be held at Townville next Friday, August 10th, promises to be one full of business with some fun thrown in to keep everybody in good humor.

The people of Townville want a railroad and are determined to have one. They propose to project a line from their town to Westminster, and of course it will have to run from Townville to Anderson before it will ever be a success.

Townville is one of the best sections of this county, full of good people, good land, good timber and many other good things.

Many people from Anderson will attend this meeting, some of whom are interested in the building of this road. It is a well known fact that whenever an Anderson man takes hold of anything that work will soon commence on the project.

The following is the program: Music 8 to 9 a. m. by Anderson Cornet Band, led by Col. J. W. Trowbridge.

Match game of ball between Townville and Seneca, 9 to 10:30 a. m.

Music by Band.

Railroad speeches by Capt. H. H. Watkins of Anderson and Hon. J. E. Boggs of Pickens, 10:30 to noon.

Meeting of stockholders of railroad, 12 to 2 p. m.

Dinner on ground, 2 to 3 p. m.

Music by Band, 3 to 4 p. m.

Match game of ball between Townville and Westminster, 4 to 5:30 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to attend and bring well filled baskets. The town authorities will have a number of deputies on the ground all day and the best of order will be assured.

STATE NEWS.

— Every candidate for county offices in Oconee county is opposed to the dispensary law.

— The rains in the lower part of the State have delayed crops two weeks.

— J. J. Harby was shocked very much by a live wire at Sumter Tuesday evening, and Eugene Moses met with a similar accident in trying to relieve Mr. Harby.

— Bethel Methodist Church in East Union was dedicated Sunday. Rev. L. E. Wiggins is pastor.

— R. N. McCain, an employee, was killed by being mangled in the wheel of the engine in the oil mill at Camden.

— A. H. Keen of Philadelphia, has been appointed to succeed G. H. Retlaw as superintendent of the Greenville Traction Company.

— All the business men of Pickens except one say that they are pleased with prohibition and do not desire the dispensary restored in that county.

— It is likely that Mr. Brayn will be invited to attend the State fair at Columbia and make an address this fall.

— The Third Regiment has returned to their homes in the lower part of the State from the encampment at Chickamauga.

— The people of Hartsville are much surprised at the arrest of D. L. English for complicity in the murder of Mose Hughes at Union. They believe he will be completely vindicated.

— Frank Buffington, who escaped from the Sumter Jail last week, has been re-captured. Mann and Collins who escaped at the same time, were recaptured the night following their escape.

— W. P. Fellock has withdrawn from the race for congress in the Fifth district on account of prolonged illness. This leaves the contest between Congressman Finley and ex-Congressman Straight.

— Senator Tillman stated at Johnston that he understood that Lanahan's agent, whose name was not allowed to be given by Mr. Parker in the investigation last spring, is a member of the investigating committee.

— Frank Harris, an old negro, claims to have been poisoned by "Dr. Staubb" of Aiken, who drove into the country with the negro in the latter's buggy. After poisoning the negro and leaving him unconscious Staubb took the horse and buggy to Aiken and tried to sell it. He has not yet been located.

The Speaking Last Thursday.

There were probably 1,000 or more people at Bunes Vista park Thursday when the speaking commenced, shortly after 11 o'clock. T. Frank Watkins, Esq., presided, and Rev. J. D. Chapman, D. D., pastor of the First Baptist church, offered the invocation.

Senator Tillman was the first speaker. He was greeted with a hearty round of hand-clapping as he was introduced. The Senior Senator dwelt along the same line that he has been following all along—defending the State dispensary. It is the opinion of a great many that hardly half a dozen voters were changed as to their opinion of the dispensary.

After Senator Tillman had finished Senator Latimer and Congressman Aiken and Hon. Julius E. Boggs spoke.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank our kindred and friends for their many acts of kindness during the illness and death of our daughter and sister.

W. T. Browne and children.
