

WEDNESDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 11, 1865.

MY MERE, in our Northern exchanges, with a somewhat spirited controversy between the Boston Pilot and the Irish Nation, over JOHN MITCHEL, one widely known and honored as the Irish Patriot. The Pilot, it will be seen, contends that MITCHEL has lost his claim to whatever of respect and admiration was due to him in that character; and the reply is spirited, a portion of which, only, however, we feel at liberty to republish:

The Dublin Nation, with a willful blindness to all the facts in MITCHEL's case, has the hardihood, the criminal audacity, to hold him up before the Irish people as a rebel then, a rebel in like manner now! Oh! shameful prostitution of position and opportunity. The Nation, which should be the friend and ally of the people, becomes their betrayer and enemy by taking this course. JOHN MITCHEL, in 1848, found his country oppressed, and he nobly strove to throw off that oppression. JOHN MITCHEL, in 1861, found himself a fugitive in another land, protected, trusted, treated with confidence, a guest of the Republic, and he basely betrayed the confidence reposed in him, and sought to destroy the country which thus protected him. Is there no difference between the two men and the two epochs? The JOHN MITCHEL of 1848 was fighting for Ireland and liberty; the JOHN MITCHEL of 1861 was fighting against Ireland and for slavery; and yet the Dublin Nation incessantly commends him, and extolls the country whose generous hospitality he betrayed.

It will be noted that the eager zeal of The Pilot to make out a case against Mr. MITCHEL has necessitated our cotemporary to "invent a fact." "The JOHN MITCHEL of 1848" and the JOHN MITCHEL of 1861 are supposed to be a contrast. The JOHN MITCHEL of 1861 is represented as "a guest of the Republic." We would suppose this to be possibly a misprint of the word "Republic" for "Empire," but for what follows: "JOHN MITCHEL, in 1861, found himself a fugitive in another land; protected, trusted, treated with confidence, a guest of the Republic; and he basely betrayed the confidence reposed in him, and sought to destroy the country which thus protected him."

Now, everybody knows that The Pilot's "historical fact" about "JOHN MITCHEL in 1861" is a palpable falsehood. JOHN MITCHEL in 1861 found himself "a guest of the French Empire," and he surely has no "right to destroy the country which thus protected him." In 1861 the ancient and sovereign State of Virginia, by formal solemn and legal process—by the deliberate act of her established and legitimate Government—by her supreme State ruler or Governor—by her duly and legally elected public representatives and legislators—by every lawful means of action and expression—withdrew herself from the Federation or partnership previously existing between her and other free, sovereign and independent States of North America. Long after this act on the part of the sovereign State of Virginia—long after Virginia had entered into a new Federation or partnership with other like States, in the exercise of choice as free and sovereignty as rightful and legitimate as that exercised by her seventy-five years ago—Mr. MITCHEL found himself "a guest" of that "Republic," protected, trusted, treated with confidence. Did not "betray" the confidence reposed in him? Did he "seek to destroy the country which thus protected him?"

Make answer, his ruined fortunes and desolate home. Make answer, blood-dyed Gettysburg and Sumter, where his two noble boys laid down their lives defending the country which thus protected him. While The Pilot editor was going with the tide and vieing with every Black Republican in bounding on the bigoted cohorts of anti-Irish and anti-Catholic New England in a war of invasion, JOHN MITCHEL was among those who waged a defensive war, and his foot never passed from Virginian soil while the struggle lasted.

In reverting to this subject, we cannot forego the expression of a feeling of regret that it should have seemed important to the Government to proceed against MITCHEL. Whatever may be said of his prudence or his judgment, merits of which he has never been ambitious, it must be confessed that he is singularly gifted and singularly true to his convictions. No one can suppose that he was influenced by any other than the purest motives in siding with the South. With his great hold on the Irish heart, he might have aspired to any object of ambition; at the North the numbers of that nation who energized the General Government, would have made him a power, while the Confederacy had nothing to offer. There were within its limits few who could respond to his stirring eloquence, and there was no inducement, therefore, beyond that which consisted in the feeling that in that cause there was something that had inspired the genius of his early manhood.

Nor was there, in his experience, anything to disappoint the humble expectations of advantage from participation in such a cause. Without the experience, or, perhaps the fitness, for military command, he had nothing left him but the life of an humble journalist. While, of his sons, one was twice or three severely wounded, another, the gallant Captain JOHN MITCHEL, besprinkled with his life's blood the battlements of Fort Sumter, and WILLIE, his last, the charming boy, took for his final resting place the field of ripening grain that clothed the slope before the heights of Gettysburg. He was, indeed, a glorious boy. Returning with his father from abroad, he could not wait for opportunity, if that were possible to one so young, but took his station in the wasted ranks of the First Virginia Regiment, and started with it on its long and weary marches; but, though weary to others, they were scarcely so to him. He had acquired a taste—how, it was difficult to say, upon the pavements of Paris—for natural science. Bugs became his specialty; his long marches through the woods and fields of Virginia was but a pleasant pursuit of entomology. The officer who inspected his arms and accoutrements, was sure to withdraw his hand from WILLIE'S knapsack covered with beetles; and thus the lad, lured from battle-field to battle-field by the charms of science, was scarcely conscious of the trials and privations of the march, and, bright and buoyant, took his place amid the serried ranks of PICKENS'S Division as, at a moment's suspension of that superhuman fire of artillery, it took its stand upon the heights of Gettysburg. All know the history of that famous charge. A crisis had come to the battle—to the war—almost to human history. At that breathless hour and moment, the battle paused—nature's self seemed in suspense—as that compact division started to advance. The way was swept by artillery; horses and riders went down at every step; the line was cut; soon they could not close the gaps; groups were melted under that remorseless fire, and but a feeble remnant straggled over the entrenchments. When WILLIE fell, or how, none ever knew. It was remembered, only, that he entered the field, but never left it; and whether his gallant heart at once was still, or whether, through suns and rains, he lingered on for days upon the still contested spot of his misfortune, was not determined; it was only certain that, amid the feeble remnant of his brigade, his merry face was never seen again.

This little episode of WILLIE'S fate has, perhaps, no very important bearing on the treatment proper to Mr. MITCHEL, but it was brought to mind by the matters mentioned in the controversy to which we have referred; and it will not fail, perhaps, of some little force to the declaration that the father has at least not been selfish in his course. He is, as we have said, a man of much ability; he is still dear to the Irish citizens of this country; he can scarcely be off their danger or inconvenience to the Government; and we truly wish it might be found consistent with the present policy of the Government to spare him further suffering and humiliation.

The broom corn crop, now being harvested, is one of the best ever raised in the Connecticut valley.

THE SUDDEN advance in the gold premium is not due, as some assert, to the announcement made by the Secretary of the Treasury, relative to the funding of the compound interest legal tender notes, but rather to an increased demand for export. On this subject, the New York Herald says: "While one imports range from five to nearly eight millions a week in gold value, our exports are at the rate of three millions or less per week in currency value, those for the week just ended having been only $2,415,527. Nor is there any immediate prospect of an increase in our export trade, or a diminution in our imports. The prices of the gold leading brands and previous range higher in this market than at Liverpool, and exportation hardly allows of profitable shipment. Moreover, we have no superabundance as yet offering at the seaboard. Under these circumstances, it is very evident that gold must be exported to pay the difference between the credit and debit sides of our foreign accounts. It is true that the amount of gold in the banks of the city and the Treasury is large, the amount in the latter, on September 30, having been $32,740,788, and as is to be inferred, deducting $18,443,415 for the payment of the November coupons, and that the banks hold more than thirty millions and a half millions. But the amount elsewhere in the country is small, the private hoards having been to a great extent absorbed."

Martin F. Tupper has become a playwright, and a new five-act historical drama from his pen is soon to be produced at the Haymarket Theatre, London.

Hon. Charles Macbeth, Mayor.

Can it be true, sir, that you decline a re-election to the honored position you now so worthily fill? Can it be true, that in our time of trouble and disaster you are willing to withdraw yourself from the public service, and leave to other hands the great work of re-establishing civil authority and restoring prosperity to our institutions? We know that we have nothing to offer you; we know that your trials have been great; we know that we ask great sacrifices; but we ask them in full confidence that the unwavering patriotism which for eight years has taken care that we should receive no detriment, will not fall as now when clouds darken our horizon, and dangers and difficulties beset us on every hand. We firmly believe that the brave man upon whom we have so long relied will now take his place in the breach, and standing a bulwark of defence, will give his people a rallying point around which they may gather in the noble work of regenerating society, and restoring our city to its pristine prosperity and glory.

What can you ask of us that we have not given to you? Was ever greater confidence reposed? We know not what your opinions were; we never asked them; and we sent you to the convention at the head of the largest delegation in the State. And if indeed you have determined to withdraw from the public service, we would earnestly entreat you to reconsider your determination, and accept, at least for one term more, the duties and cares of the Mayorship. You have firmness, wisdom, experience; will you not be persuaded to apply these qualities to the services of your fellow-citizens, who have nothing new to offer you but their love and reverence? To you the care of our city was entrusted with unflinching confidence through the darkest period that city has ever known. Upon your truth, your wisdom, your patriotism, we implicitly relied. Hitherto you have never failed us. Can it be true, that at a time like this, you will compel us to entrust our highest interests to the hands of other men? The people look to you, sir, and you cannot, if you would, evade the responsibility. You have become a leader of the people—you cannot now be a follower of other men. We will not allow it.

CONSTITUTION WATER.

CONSTITUTION WATER, the only known remedy for Diabetes, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick Dust Deposit, and Mucous or Milky Discharges, Irritation of the Bladder, Inflammation of the Kidney, Catarrh of the Bladder. The astonishing success which has attended this invaluable medicine renders it the most valuable one ever discovered. No language can convey an adequate idea of the immediate and almost miraculous change which it occasions to the debilitated and shattered system. In fact it stands unrivalled as a remedy for the permanent cure of the maladies above-mentioned, and also DIABETES, IMPOTENCY, LOSS OF MUSCULAR ENERGY, PHYSICAL PROSTRATION, INDIGESTION, GLEET, and every disease any way connected with the disorder of decay.

Persons, if conscious of any weakness, should take the CONSTITUTION WATER, whether broken down by excess, weak by nature, or impaired by sickness, the unstrung and relaxed organization is at once rebraced, revived and built up. Well may this celebrated remedy be called the MEDICAL WONDER.

The stooping, trembling victim of depression and debility becomes a new man; he stands erect, he moves with a firm step; his mind, which was previously sunk in gloom of an almost idiotic apathy, becomes bright and active, and he goes forth regenerated, conscious of new vigor. The medicine reaches the constitution itself, and restores it to its normal condition.

For these diseases it is truly a sovereign remedy, and too much cannot be said in its praise. A single dose has been known to relieve the most urgent symptoms. Try it in these cases, and you will give your praise to CONSTITUTION WATER.

MALES OR FEMALES, are you troubled with that distressing pain in the small of the back, and through your hips? "Constitution Water" will relieve you like magic.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—GREAT OAKS FROM little acorns grow. The worst disease known to the human race spring from causes so small as to almost defy detection. The volumes of scientific lore that fill the tables and shelves of the medical fraternity only go to prove and elaborate these facts.

Then guard yourselves while you may. The smallest pimple on the skin is a tall-tale and indicator of disease. It may fade and disappear from the surface of the body, but it will reach the vitals, perhaps, at last, and death be the result and final close. MAGGIE'S BILIOUS, DYSEPTIC, and DIARRHEAL PILLS cure where all others fail. While for Burns, Scalds, Chilblains, Cuts, and all abrasions of the skin, MAGGIE'S Salve is infallible. Sold by J. MAGGIE, No. 43 Fulton-street, New York, and all Druggists, at 25 cents per box. September 25
