

DAILY NEWS. CHARLESTON.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 18, 1865.

It is now understood that General Hampton has publicly declined being a candidate for Governor.

It may be proper now to state, what is well known by Colonel Orr's friends, that he acknowledges General Hampton's hold upon the favor of our people, and that he would not have allowed himself to be put in nomination except upon the understanding that the General would not consent to run.

It may be added, too, upon undoubted authority, that Colonel Orr's dispositions towards the low-country are most kindly and generous.

Colonel Orr will now be the only candidate in the field. It is to be hoped that our people, in this first popular election for Governor, will give a hearty and general vote for the candidate from the upper country, and so inaugurate a cordial and thorough union between the two sections of the State.

Editors Charleston Daily News: I was in Columbia last Friday, and heard casually from some of Gen. Hampton's friends that he had declined being nominated for Governor.

CHARLESTON, October 17, 1865. COLUMBIA, October 16, 1865. To Hon. H. D. Lesesne: I have declined to be a candidate.

WE ARE gratified to learn that the steamship Granada arrived safely at her wharf in New York on Saturday morning at half-past 9 o'clock, making an excellent run.

This gentleman has served in the Senate for over four years, with perfect acceptance. Nor is there any member of that body who enjoys more general confidence and esteem.

In accepting your nomination as a Candidate for the Senate of South Carolina, let me, in this public manner, return you my sincere thanks for the high and unexpected compliment you have paid me as a working man and mechanic.

A city entitled to the delegation we are now called on to elect should seek out a full representation of all ages and classes of virtues and talents of citizenship.

Among the new names offered for the very important election of this day, many have been pleased with that of THOMAS P. RYAN.

The son of a good, worthy citizen, Mr. THOMAS P. RYAN, after receiving a full education, had been prepared for law practice, and had entered that calling.

We are pleased to see the name of this worthy fellow-citizen on the various tickets for the Legislature.
