The New York Post's Washington correspondent says: 'Prominent Republicans who have had interviews with the President within a few days assert confidently that he agrees with the average sentiment of Congress upon the subject of reconstruction.

The New York Journal of Commerce thinks that though all classes of dry goods show a decline, 'that it does not follow from any known facts that staple goods may not be as high in the spring as they have been this fall.

At the Virginia Methodist Conference, now in session at Danville, Va., we notice the names of several prominent clergymen present, among the rest the Revs. D. S. DOUGLASS, JAMES A. DUNCAN, JOHN E. EDWARDS, LEONIX M. LEE, NICHOLAS HEAD and LEONIDAS BOSHER.

CHARLESTON. SATURDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 2, 1865.

OUR READERS will be pleased to find, this morning, the Addresses of the two Governors of this State, upon the occasion of the installation of the Constitutional Governor. They will also be pleased to see the hopeful, manly spirit expressed by both.

It is to be hoped, however, that the process of restoration will be as rapid as is suggested by Governor PERRY. That this would be to the interests of our people, there can be no question—to the interest of ourselves, for much of our prosperity depends upon an early adjustment of difficulties, and that restoration of confidence in stability and order indispensable to successful enterprise; and to interests of the Union—for much of the prosperity of the whole country must depend upon the successful cultivation of the South.

The spirit exhibited in these addresses, commendable to these distinguished citizens and officers as it unquestionably is, is in just accordance with the spirit of our people received, and that the praiseworthy aspirations expressed may soon be realized in the experience of our State. It may be stated, also, that the sentiments of both are justly elevated to the occasion; both recognize the superior and paramount power of the General Government, and the possibility that it may be exercised in an adversary spirit; but both are in assertion of a true and proper manhood, and the fitness to meet propitious fortune with the readiness to meet the fortunes, be they propitious or otherwise, which fate may have yet in store.

WE PUBLISHED, yesterday, the form of a contract with freedmen for agricultural labor, and we commend it to the attention of our readers. It presents a plan, in accordance with which, if the labor shall be performed, the business of planting will be more pleasant and profitable to the proprietor than it has ever been, while it will be entirely in accordance with the interest and well-being of the laborers. That the labor will be performed efficiently, under the more provisions of this contract, it were, perhaps, too much to assume. There are apt to be, in all schemes of progress upon unexplored territory, something to perplex the programme; but it is reasonable to suppose that, under this contract, labor will be performed; that, if the consideration of ultimate consequences are not sufficient to induce the utmost capacity of the negro, they are presented here in such form of immediate pecuniary penalty, as will be most likely to effect him; that, if the scheme be not perfect, it may be the best possible under the circumstances; and, if it will not colonize Eutopia, enterprise may, at least, perform the equally profitable purpose of brightening and bettering the fortunes and condition of the spots upon this State to which they may be applied.

INCREASE OF THE STANDING ARMY.—Old regular officers and graduates of West Point have been laying their heads together for some time past, and the result has been the framing of a bill which will undoubtedly be brought before the next Congress, and probably worked through, inasmuch as it is reasonable in every particular. It provides for a standing army of seventy-five thousand men, which will require the addition of twenty-one regiments of infantry, three regiments of cavalry, and two of artillery. Any increase in the staff departments is not favored. The pay of general officers is to be reduced, and all officers to receive fixed salaries, as in the civil service. The scale of pay contemplated by the bill is, for lieutenant-general, five thousand dollars; major-general, four thousand; brigadier-general, three thousand; colonel, twenty-five hundred, down to second lieutenant, who will receive one thousand dollars. These salaries are looked upon as the fair thing by old officers, although considerably reduced from the old schedule. An effort will be made to create the grade of general, and have Grant promoted to it; Sherman to be lieutenant-general, and giving THOMAS and SHERIDAN brevets to that rank. The war has demonstrated that a man does not need a

West Point education to be a commissary or quartermaster, and it is proposed to officer the standing army by graduates who have been employed as such, and to fill their places by old volunteer officers who want them. This is the state of the matter among the regulars, and a powerful effort will be made to pass it through.

TO THE MERCHANTS, OWNERS OF PROPERTY, AND UNDERWRITERS, OF THE CITY OF CHARLESTON.—The Petition of the OFFICERS and MEMBERS of the ETNA FIRE ENGINE COMPANY, respectfully sheweth: That their Engine House, Furniture, &c., was totally destroyed by the great fire in 1861. Owing to the difficulty of procuring a suitable place, out of the range of shells, wherein to place their new Engine, they were obliged to remove it to Columbia, S. C., where it was burnt in February last, in Gen. SHERMAN'S march through that city. They now need a Building and suitable Apparatus, the one now in use being in service for twenty years, and very much out of repair. The Treasury is without funds, and the Company now appeal to the citizens of Charleston to contribute what they can towards accomplishing either or both objects. The merits of this Company, in common with the entire Fire Department, are too well known to require any comments at this time. All donations will be thankfully received and duly acknowledged by E. F. SWIGGERT, President, No. 20 Cumberland-st. S. G. COURTENAY, Ex-President and C. F. D., No. 9 Broad-street. J. A. THOUEN, No. 14 Vendue Range. G. C. MONYER, G. C. CHAPMAN, J. J. MUNRO, J. J.
