News Summary.

Official information received in Washington represents that there will be great suffering in Alabama during the present winter, owing to the small corn and grain crops, the result of the want of necessary labor, and the severe drouth which prevailed over most of the productive lands of the State. It is estimated that there are no less than 200,000 persons, both black and white, who must be furnished with food until they can raise it for themselves. The Freedmen's Bureau, however, is under instructions from the Secretary of War taking the necessary steps to relieve these people as far as possible at an early day.

A second part of Capt. HALL's report on his search for fuller information about Sir John FRANKLIN'S Arctic Expedition has been received. The wrecked ships of FRANKLIN appear to have been visited, the remains of a large number of their crews seen, frozen and mutilated, and the valuables left in the ships appropriated by the Esquimaux. They encourage Capt. HALL to believe that some of the men may still be living.

Brigadier-General FRANCIS B. SHOUP, of the late Confederate army, has been elected to the chair of Physics, Astronomy and Civil Engineering of the University of Mississippi.

The entire number of Indians inhabiting all parts of our country amounts to about four hundred and eighteen thousand. The estimated number in the unexplored territories is thirty thousand; in Texas, about twenty-four thousand; of the tribes living in New Mexico, about ninetytwo thousand; in California, something over thirty-two thousand; in Oregon, about twentythree thousand; and in Utah, between eleven and twelve thousand. Many of the New Mexican Indians are civilized, and have fixed habitation s and towns.

There will be a proposition before the Finance Committee of the Senate, and probably before the Committee of Ways and Means of the House, to reduce national taxation to a point that will yield no more revenue than what is sufficient to pay the expenses of the Government, including interest on the public debt and a sinking fund for the principal. It is expected that the proposed reduction will be great enough to allow of the repeal of the Income Tax. There are many reasons why this particular form of tax should be withdrawn at the earliest possible opportunity. In its nature, its collection is vexatious, because the means which the assessors are obliged to use to get full and true returns are, to a large degree, inquisitorial, It is, in fact, the most objectionable form of tax, and it is only resorted to in Great Britain, from which country we copied it, as a revenue during the continuance of war. As soon as the pressure for money is over, this tax is taken off. The news that it is likely to be dispensed with in this country will, therefore, be hailed with great pleasure. If any one desires to see a busy city he can find it in New York. The retail stores are crowded with customers, and the most expensive articles mania for spending money, and nothing is too extravagant for the tastes and purses of the citizens of New York. These remarks apply not only to the luxuries of life, but to the necessities as well. The increase in prices does not operate to check sales, either in articles of food, clothing or ornament. The manufacturers of furniture are pressed to their utmost ability to meet their orders. The importers of rare and costly works of art are not able to supply the demand. The carpet stores have been reduced to the lowest stocks, and could not open goods with sufficient rapidity to supply their customers. It is certain that New York never knew such prices as have been paid this fall, and we only echo what we hear from all the retail dealers in saying that there was never such a busy season.

Governor BrownLow's late course in rejecting the votes of several counties, on the ground of their illegality, causes much excitement in Tennessee. In the Legislature an excited discussion arose on a resolution offered by Mr. Brandon, of Stewart county, which was intended as a censure of Governor BROWNLOW. Mr. BRANDON WAS a rebel Colonel, and was wounded at Fort Donelson. He was sustained in his assault on the Governor by Heron, Steele, GARRETT and other copperheads. The resolution was tabled by a decisive vote. Brandon and others were very bitter in their denunciation of the Governor.

On the evening of November 2d, a carpet bag was stolen from ALBERT PIKE, at the depot of the Richmond and Fredericksburg Railroad, in the former city. It contained all the original treaties made by the Confederates with the different Indian tribes, and a number of Masonic documentsthe former being of great importance to our Government. Secretary STANTON has ordered Gen. TERRY to make all diligent search far the stolen documents. It is stated that Secretary STANTON, in his forthcoming report, will recommend that by the 1st of January next the army be reduced to 50,000 men. It is now about 175,000. In May last it numbered

CHARLESTON.

SATURDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 9, 1865.

IT IS APPARENT, from the late Washington news, that the subject of the restoration of the Southern States is as prominent among politicians there as it is in our own minds. It will be seen that, before Congress met, a Republican caucus had settled the immediate course of action of that party in relation to the subject. The resolution presented by the committee, of which Thaddeus Stevens was chairman, does not indicate the ultimate policy of the Black Republicans, but is important in showing two things-that, in their view, the Southern States are not members of the Federal Union; and that their readmission, if not denied, is to be delayed.

The election of Mr. Colfax, as Speaker, dangerously betokens opposition to President Johnson's views, and no circumstances of encouragement appear but the fact, hardly worthy of notice, that Senators DeoLITTLE and DIXON will oppose the resolution of STEVENS, and the important one that the President has not yielded his moderate views to the demands of the Congressional majority. Moreover, we are not to forget that the justice of our claim to readmission is a strong ground for predicating its ultimate success.

Two classes of objections can be urged against the restoration to this State of its rights under the Federal Constitution-the one addressed to the insufficiency of the demands made upon it by President JOHNSON, and the other to the manner in which those demands have been responded to. To the former belong the manifestoes of STEVENS and LANE, whose violence and unreasonableness will, we trust, destroy, in the minds of moderate Northern men, the respect they might otherwise be disposed to attach to the utterances of so prominent and able leaders. The task of President Johnson, in prescribing the conditions upon which the restoration of the Southern States is to be effected, has been peculiarly difficult. No Code of Revolutions exist. Law does not contemplate the possibility of their occurrence, and History records no precedent for the treatment of sovereign and corporate traitors. President Johnson has had the task of supplementing the Federal system with a series of rules for the adjustment of difficulties, which that system did not provide for. The result has been the "Reconstruction Policy," to which the merits of good sense, and of being as little exacting as might be expected under the circumstances, can be readily conceded. It is a very simple scheme, and its distinctive feature consists in restricting the conditions on which the readmission to the Federal Union of the States of the late Confederacy is to depend-to the official expression by them of their loyalty to the Constitution of the United States, and to the proof of the sincerity of that loyalty by certain prescribed concessions.

The second question which arises is, whether those conditions have been performed by the States of the late Confederacy? We undertake to answer for the State of South Carolina, that they have been. She has performed the penance prescribed by a ritual whose authority she has not questioned, and she now claims the promised shrift. Late events render it doubtful whether our hopes are to be find ready and rapid sale. There seems to be a realized; but we are of those who believe that moderate views and the sense of justice will. ere long, prevail, and secure the blessings of self-government. Malignant men there are, however, whom we cannot satisfy-political pathologists, keen to detect symptoms of disease in our body politic; and by such the enactment of the Negro Code, and the election to Congress of men prominent in support of the lost cause, have been urged as evidences of bad faith on the part of the State. Now, to yield the right of enacting such a Code would be simply an abdication by the State of its sovereignty-the destruction of which is no part of the President's scheme-and the Code itself is no revocation of the concessions made in relation to slavery. Special legislation for classes in a community is no novelty, and that now proposed for the negro is just to him and absolutely necessary to the resuscitation of production. As regards the late election, it would be as useless to deny that men's minds are influenced by the recollections of the past four years, as it is captious and unjust to make that fact a ground for disfranchisement. There is no Lethe but time to wash out our memories; there is no contingency, short of a miracle, that can make them dangerous. There is no attempt to reward services rendered against the Federal Government: but those services, as proofs of human character. cannot be entirely ignored, and it may safely be asserted that fidelity to past obligations is the best guarantee for the performance of those newly assumed. The political action of this State has been persistently directed, during the past few months, to the purposes of obtaining the restoration of civil rights and a relief from military occupation. To attain this object, it has done all that was left to it to do; it has made sacrifices of opinion and pride, and buried in a grave, around which hover no hopes of resurrection, its traditions and hopes. It is fair that the consideration should now be paid, and that the Rettlement of political affairs should leave our people to turn undivided attention to their pressing wants. The Southern States are ready to assume the duties, as they have already been performing the obligations, of members of the Federal Union; and they have given pledges of the spirit in which they propose to act, by yielding, in the way of concession, all that has been asked. We pray that no more will be demanded, lest that be required which honor cannot yield to policy; and that our rights will be no longer withheld, lest the spirit of conciliation give place to a conviction that its exercise is useless.

MARRIED.
