Latest Northern News.

Sheridan reports that on Monday last, a portion of his cavalry were engaged in tearing up the railroad between Hanover Junction and Richmond, while the main body was pushing on towards White House.

The London Times says the fact of the appointment of a new minister to the United States will dispel the wild fancy that England and France contemplated a sort of understanding regarding the recognition of the Confederacy on the fourth of March, by acknowledging Lincoln President only of those States which had taken part in his election.

Foots has published a letter in London denouncing the Southern Confederacy.

Nothing was destroyed in Fayetteville except the arsenal and the Observer newspaper office.

Lincoln made a speech in Washington, on the 17th, in which he expressed the hope that the rebels would employ negro troops; as he says the negroes cannot fight and work both.
