How It Works.

We frequently see in the Northern papers the most glowing accounts of the success of the experiments in freed labor among the plantations along the coast—of South Carolina especially. Such wondrous results in Sea Island cotton, such beautiful prospects in rice, potatoes, and, indeed, every product hitherto produced so successfully in this region, are thus reported, that it should not be wondered at if the Northern Abolitionists practice all sorts of uncouth antics in the sudden glory of such surprising results. Our own accounts—nearer home, and from eyes which see for themselves and not through a glass darkly—are of entirely different complexion; and we only wonder that these reports are so unfrequently allowed to appear in print. We are reminded, while we write, of an elaborate report on this subject, made by Mr. Joseph Daniel Pope, who, under the auspices of General Gillmore, made a tour through certain of these favored parishes, including some of the islands, which we should very much like to see spread fairly before our own and the Northern public. Mr. Pope's report is moderate in tone, entirely free from prejudice, circumspect, considerate and unique in its consideration of the simple topics embraced in the subject. Mr. Pope is particularly qualified for making such a survey of the plantations, and for reporting upon them. Himself a native and planter of the region in question, familiar with all the estates; with every peculiarity in their culture; knowing well the susceptibilities of the lands, and perfectly acquainted with their capacity for production, by a full knowledge of what, under the former cultivation, they were wont to produce; no person could be found better fitted for such an examination of their present condition, as will enable friend and foe equally to decide upon the results and value of the experiment. He has made a report, and one singularly fair and indulgent towards the negro. His manner is eminently judicial, and we do not hesitate to assert the conviction that his details of facts cannot be gainsaid. His evidence will be held conclusive by all who know his ability, his familiarity with the local statistics, his freedom from all rash expression, and his superiority to all vulgar prejudice. We trust that his report will be given to the public, especially of the North, with the hope that it will tend somewhat to subdue that exulting spirit which finds its facts in its fancy, and fortifies its philosophy wholly by the assertion of a prophetic faculty, which equally sets reason to the blush, and the laws of God at defiance.

War Mortality.

We are enabled, through the kindness of Mr. John R. Miot, to afford to the friends and relatives of the South Carolinians who perished at Point Lookout, Maryland, a record of all the casualties among the sons of our State occurring at that place of imprisonment. We make no comments. The record is a long and melancholy one. It will be a satisfaction to the relatives of the deceased to know that their kinsmen died in the service of the State, in what they deemed the paths of duty. The State, when this is possible, should remember, and make due record of, their public services.

The following gentlemen have been elected members of the State Convention from St. Philip's and St. Michael's: Hon. Charles Macbeth, Hon. H. D. Lesesne, W. H. Gilliland, P. C. Gaillard, James Conner, J. A. Wagoner, H. Gourdin, C. H. Simonton, F. Melchers, W. S. Henery, G. W. Williams, Hon. Edward Frost, A. O. Andrews, Hon. Alfred Hager, Wm. Ravenel, P. J. Coogan, W. M. Martin, Right Rev. P. N. Lynch, Hon. John Schriener, James Rose.

THE SOUTHERN BAPTIST THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY.—We are glad to learn that this institution will be opened for students of Theology, on the first of November next. It was located at Greenville, S. C., some years before the war, and had reached a prosperous state when forced to suspend on account of the conscription. It will be opened with its former corps of instructors, all present. We learn that information has already been received of some students who will attend.

A NEGRO TOWN WITH NEGRO OFFICERS.—Mitchellsville, it must be remembered, is the negro village on Hilton Head Island, regularly organized with negro officers, and enjoying its Councilmen and Supervisor, whom their constituents insist on styling Aldermen and Mayor. The "aldermen" settle disputes concerning claims for personal property. Before one of them came a disconsolate negress. Her hen had been stolen, and Gawky Sam was the boy who did it. The boy was summoned, the evidence heard, the case clearly made out, and two dollars fine imposed. But here stepped in another Alderman, who added another dollar to the fine. Before the money was paid, still another managed to get the case before him, and imposed a fine of five dollars. By this time the Supervisor ("Mayor") heard the story, and summoning all the parties, inquired: "Uncle Ben, why did you fine de boy two dollars?"

"Well, sah, de case was clar; de hen was a mity fine, fat un, and I reckon she wuf about a dollar. Den, sir, nobody oughtab be 'lowed to steal for less dan a dollah no how. So I made him pay de wuf of de hen to de owner, and a dollah for stealin' beside."

"Well, 'Cl'erkkis, (Anglice Uncle Hercules,) why did you make de fine tree dollah?"

"Well, de hen war wuf a dollah easy. Den de boy war ought to pay a dollah for stealin' anydow. But den, sah, dat hen war a layin' eggs, and if dat Gawky Sam hadn't done stole her, de eggs she'd a laid 'ud a been wuf 'least nuther dollah by dis time!"

Ludicrous as was the solemnity of these proceedings, they were, nevertheless, of value, as showing inherent ideas of justice.

ASSYRIAN INSCRIPTIONS.—The decipherment of Assyrian cuneiform writings has for years past been a pursuit of intense interest on the part of the learned. As an instance of the accuracy of decipherment, the following may be mentioned: Copies of the great cylinder inscription of Tiglath-Pileser I., extending to nearly 1,000 lines of cuneiform writing, were submitted to four Assyrian scholars—to Sir Henry Rawlinson, in London; to Dr. Hincks, in Ireland; to M. Oppert, in Paris; and to Mr. Fox Talbot, of Lacock Abbey; and they were invited to send independent translations under seal, on a certain day, to be examined by a committee composed of the first scholars in England, namely, Dean Milman, Mr. Grote, the historian, Professor Wilson, Dr. Cureton and Sir Gardner Wilkinson. The translations were thus sent in to the committee, and on being compared were found to coincide, not, indeed, word by word, but in all essentials of distribution of subject, reading of names and general signification, the verdict recorded by the committee being decisive as to the competency of the gentlemen engaged to read and translate the language.—Sir H. Rawlinson in the Building News.

FASHIONABLE SOCIETY.—Opposite me, in the ball-room to-night, sits a stout woman, in a wide-striped silk dress. She is the wife of a legal notability, and was, when young, a circus rider of great repute, renowned chiefly for leaping unaided upon a running horse in the ring. Another fine looking couple graduated from Fulton Market—the husband still sells bivalves in that famed locality.

[Saratoga Correspondent.]

GENERAL LEE.—A London paper says that Gen. Lee is in Germany. A Liverpool paper, on the contrary, says he has just arrived in Wales, and is now building a nine-pin alley to be run in connection with a first-class restaurant. The same paper says Breckinridge is keeping a tinware store in Jamaica. Reliable papers those European journals!

[Petersburg Express.]

A pretty accurate estimate of the defalcation of Edward B. Ketchum has now been arrived at, and it foots up the enormous amount of $4,200,000.

Local Items.

To insure insertion, advertisers are requested to hand in their notices before 9 o'clock p. m.

Our "Local" has found his way to a new establishment—that of W. J. Cormier, who has opened with a variety stock in Bull, one door from Camden street, at a convenient station for our citizens in the Eastern portion of the town. Mr. Cormier has a promising supply. We have had the satisfaction of sampling some of his commodities, and he has enabled us to answer the long vexing question, "Have we a Bourbon among us?" That is, a genuine Bourbon? We have no doubt of it. The sample given us by Mr. Cormier is that of a crown prince—a prince of the blood.

THE CONVENTION.—As the proceedings of the Convention may be expected to be of absorbing interest to all persons in the State, and as the Phoenix will make daily reports of its progress and the results from it, besides publishing in full the new Constitution the moment it shall be ratified, it will be well that persons desiring to subscribe should do so in due season. In the present scarcity and cost of printing paper, publishers cannot venture to print upon a mere speculative or possible demand. We shall publish but a few more copies than will suffice for our customers, and unless they come forward promptly, they may find themselves too late for the supply.

Interesting Discovery.

PARIS, August 4.—A few days since, a very interesting discovery was made in the Place du Carrousel. A wing of the old Palace of the Louvre has lately been torn down for the purpose of rebuilding it in harmony with the newer parts of the palace. In making excavations for the new foundations, a number of moulds for pottery and an ancient furnace were laid bare by the workmen. The superintendent sent at once for the architect, who, in his turn, addressed himself to a distinguished savant, M. Bertz, for information with regard to this treasure-trove. M. Bertz has devoted many years to the study of archaeological remains of Paris, and recognized in the furnace and earthenware fragments the work of the celebrated Bernard de Palissy, to whom the revival of the enameling of pottery in France is due. It appears, in 1500, that Catherine de Medicis employed Palissy to ornament a grotto in the garden of the Tuilleries with the most grotesque specimens of his art that he could produce, a description of which is preserved in the imperial library. Among the figures was a sea monster, composed entirely of shells and marine plants. The mould of this has been found almost entire, and corresponding in all particulars with the description in the contract written by order of the Queen. The walls of the furnace are immensely thick. The grotto itself is still supposed to exist in the Tuilleries garden, and permission to search for it has been asked. Bernard de Palissy reduced himself to extreme poverty in his enthusiastic search after the lost process of enameling. A picture at Sevres represents him cutting his furniture to pieces to make fire-wood for his precious pots and dishes. He is called Palissy, the potter; but was, in fact, a man of great learning, having delivered lectures, in Paris, on the monuments of antiquity—"on earth, stones and metals"—at the age of seventy-five years. Although employed by Catherine de Medicis, he was a Protestant, and was at last imprisoned in the Bastille, (1589,) where he died in his ninetieth year. A monument was erected to him a few months ago in his native town of Agenois.

Morris Ellsworth, (colored,) of the 14th Rhode Island Infantry, recently shot and killed his young wife at Newark—cause jealousy.
