MISCELLANY,

What I Live For. BY G. L. BANKS. I live for those who love me; For those I know are true; For the Heaven that smiles above me, And awaits my spirit, too; For the human ties that bind me; For the task by God assigned me; For the bright hopes left behind me, And the good that I can do!

And the good that I can do! I live to learn their story, Who've suffered for my sake; To emilate their glery, And follow in their wake: Bards, martyrs, patriots, sages... The noblest of all ages... Whose deeds crown history's pages, And Time's great volume make!

I live to hail the season, By gifted minds foretold, When men shall rule by reason, And not alone by gold: When man to man united, And every wrong thing righted, The whole world shall be lighted As Eden was of old!

Hive to hold communion With all that is Divine; To feel there is a union "Twixt Nature's heart and mine; To profit by affliction; Reap truths from fields of fiction; Grow wiser from conviction row wiser from conviction. And fulfill each grand design.

I live for those who love me -." For those who know me true; For the Heaven that smiles above me, And awaits my spirit, too; For the wrong that needs resistance; For the cause that lacks assistance; For the fulture in the distance, And the good that I can dol

The SPIDER'S PARLOR.—There is a little spider in Australia that might, with great propriety, ask the little fly to walk into his parlor, for he has a very neat little parlor, with a real door that opens and shuts on a hinge. We think there is no other animal hesides man that can make a hinge. besides man that can make a hinge. It seems wonderful that God has given this knowledge to a little insect we commonly look down upon as the most insignificant. There are none of his works we can fully despise. "All Thy works praise Thee, O Lord."

A gentleman discovered one of these little underground spider houses, and made the acquaintance of the owner, and came often to see him, so as to become acquainted with his habits. He brought him insects for his food every day, and made a certain tap on the door, which the spider soon learned to understand.

Then he would come up and push open the door, which was much like open the door, which was much like the iid of a box, and come out to get his breakfast. After he had received it, he walked back into his house and shut down the lid very carefully. The inside was made of web and carth, and was as smooth as satin. He leaves his little door ajar at times, and when some silly, peeping insect comes peer-ing round it for curiosity,

"Up jumps the cunning spider, And fiercely holds him fast."

He does not take him up, but down "his little winding stair," and, alas! "he never comes ont again."

COMPLEX RELATIONSHIP .-- A correspondent of Harper's Monthly is in-volved in domestic difficulties. He writes:

"I got acquainted with a young widow, who lived with her step-daughter in the same house. I mar-ried the vidow; my father fell shortly after it in love with the step-daughter of my wife and moried her Ma of my wife, and married her. My wife became the mother-in-law and also the daughter-in-law of my own father; my wife's step-daughter is my step-mother, and I am the step-father of my mother-in-law. My step-mo-ther, who is the step-daughter of my wife, has a boy; he is naturally my step-brother, but because he is the son of my wife's step-daughter, so is my wife the grand-mother of the little wife, has a boy, no in the because he is the son of my wife's step-daughter, so is my wife the grand-mother of the little boy, and I am the grand-father of my step-brother. My wife has also a boy; my step-mother is consequently the step-sister of my boy, and is also his grand-mother, because he is the child of my step-son; and my father is brother-in-law of my mother, my wife is the annt of her own son, my son is

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT FOR FALLING ASLEEP AT PRAYER.—A singular death occurred recently at Nottingham, England, which is thus related: A young man, the son of a widow, retired to rest about 11 o'clock About half an hour afterwards, his mother went into his bed-room to leave him a pair of clean stockings, when she saw her son kneeling on the bed, with his her son kneeling on the bed, with his hands clasped, apparently engaged in prayer. Bound his neck there was a scarf, which appeared to be fastened to something over his head, and there was an open Bible on the table by the bed-side. At first, she thought he was at prayer, but upon seeing the scarf, she became alarmed, and imme-diately cut the scarf in two with her son's pocket knife, which hav mon the son's pocket knife, which lay upon the table, when he fell forward on the table and died. At the inquest held upon the body, his mother stated that she believed he had fallen asleep while at prayer. He was in the habit of doing so, and she believed that he had fastened the scarf round his neck to prevent him from doing so. The curate of St. John's Church, in Not-tingham, stated that the deceased was in his choir, and had asked him if it were sinful to fall askeep while at prayer. Witness recommended him to use a form, and stand while repeat-ing it. "Death from strangulation."
