

Selected Poetry.

THE RICH MAN'S CHOICE.

BY VIRGINIA F. TOWNSEND.
And he was sad at that saying, and went away grieved, for he had great possessions. — Mark 10: 23.

Farmer's Garden.

As a general thing farmers do not themselves with good gardening; at least so the writer has travelled he has seldom seen who he would call a good gardener on farms. The excuse for this neglect is generally the same with all of them—they "have no time to attend to such small matters." And yet it may safely be asserted that an acre of ground appropriated to a good garden will be more profitable to the farmer than any other ten acres of the farm.
The interests of the farmer, the comforts of his family, the good condition and health of his whole household, require such a garden on every farm in the country. And it should be a garden, not a mere excuse for one, a mere weedy patch. It should be one, so managed and arranged, that every vegetable of a whole some quality for human food should be raised in it, in perfection, and at the earliest season.
After a winter's diet on solid and generally salt animal food, the human constitution requires the deterring operations of free vegetable and fruit diet; and as a general rule no one can dispense with it safely. Besides this, the natural appetite calls for it, and there are few pleasures that may be so safely and even beneficialy indulged in. In the latter part of winter and early spring, measures should be taken to secure early vegetables of all kinds capable of very early cultivation. Details will not be expected here; there are other books and papers appropriated to such information; but I cannot help saying, that when I am at a farm-house at a season when early peas, beans, cabbages, cucumbers, potatoes, green corn, lettuce, &c., are properly in season, and find none of these luxuries on the table, nothing but the blue beef, salt pork and beans or potatoes of winter, I am free to say I do not envy that farmer's life, nor his family their enjoyments. These very people are fond enough of such things when they go to the city, and it is not therefore want of taste. It is simply the fault of negligence.
Why may not every farmer in the state raise every kind of early vegetables on his farm, as early as any gardener near the cities can do them? There is not a single reason why he should not, while there are a grove near a very considerable expense in manure for his hot beds, while he has everything to purchase, and draws nothing to buy. The small quantity required is probably rotting and maturing during winter for him to consume and bed for use. Having done this, in a short time, when the season arrives, get his garden ground in order and make his plantations. And then he will have all these vegetable luxuries as early as any of his town friends can purchase them. It only requires a little industry and attention to accomplish this, and even his interest, as well as the comforts of his family, will be benefited by it.

Miscellaneous.

Church Music.

We are an admirer of good church music, and, throughout a performer in that very interesting part of devotion, feel qualified to suggest some things in relation to it. As Horace says, "A whet-stone is good for sharpening edge tools, though it is dull."
We take for granted that the object of religious service upon the Sabbath is, to gain a more intimate knowledge of the relations between man and his Maker, and to create devotional feeling,—and that music is as much a part of the service as prayer, or the singing.
Consequently, whatever does not contribute to such a result is out of place, and tending to such an expiration, why sing a tune played over before hair begins of trombones and violins, or brasses, that in our way of thinking, is out of place in any place of worship. It is not that we object to songs and oratorios, balls, glee, and fandangoes—"Nelly, Nelly" and "on," "First two come forward, and the entertainment after a mar-adel. We are aware that there was prietly in this custom, when the whole on-joined in singing, and the tone d or whistled over that all might That reason does not hold now, the church has the time before them.
