LOVE FOREVER.

Thou gazest deep and earnest-Deep and earnest are thine eyes: I know that in our being There are answering sympathics: I know there dwells upon mo An affection rich and pure, And ask, with anxious yearning, "Will it ever, thus, endure."

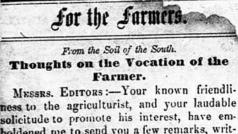

Quick changes come upon us-Changes not in our control; There are shadows and eclipses, And dark tides upon the soul. With tremplons emotion. I accept thy bounteous store, But ask, with anxious yearning, "Wilt thou love me evermore !"

Thou knowest all my weakness, Thou knowest all my power; Thou'st read my life, and knowest Every weed and every flower; And if within my nature Any gracious gift there be, I would its brightest radiance Should transfuse itself to thee.

THE MOTHER'S GRAVE.

"Father, wake-the storm is loud, The rain is falling fast; Let me go to my mother's grave, And screen it from the bla t. She cannot sleep; she will not, rest, The wind is roaring so; We prayed that she might lie in peace-My father, let us go."

"Thy mother sleeps too firm a sleep To heed the wind that blows; There are angel charms that hush the noise From reaching her repose. Her spirit, in dreams of the blessed land, Is sitting at Jesus' feet, Child, nestle thee in mine arms and pray Our rest may be as sweet."

boldened me to send you a few remarks, written in such brief intervals of leisure as an active life on a plantation afforded. I wish they possessed some charms of style to palliate the rant of method and clearness, but I indulge the hope that the reader will overlook faults which are frankly confessed.

It is not my purpose at present to descant upon the different modes of cultivation in vogue. for to enumerate the implements daily invented to simplify and diminish labor, but to endeavor to the best of my ability to inspire respect for agricultural pursuits, and to remove the silly prejudices cherished against them. It is a prevalent notion in some quarters, that the farmer leads a drudging, undignified, and dull life; that the nature of his avocations utterly disqualifies him for participation in the refined pleasures of social life ; and if he enters life as man of any scientific or literary attainments he unavoidably loses them, and sinks down into acountry bumpkin. These notions have infected the women, and in some cases lead to the banishment of the domestic employments, which once so honorably distinguished our ladies. The young ladies are only ambitious of neighboring city or town and in pursuance of this unwise resolution, refuse advantageous connexious on account of their being farmers. The son before he Ins, fairly, escaped from elouts, begins to regard his farmer father as an antedeluvain relic, and by the time he is eighteen, has resolved to enter upon the study of a profession. What are these consequences of to the enterprise and made a shameful and ignominous failure. He becomes a drone in society, corsuming a substance he does not in search of a Lethe for his own reproaches. So is a condensed history of hundreds and thousands of young men, who, squandering the patrimonial pittance left to them, in acquiring, a profession, and in vainly waiting for business tall victims to dissipation in the prime manhood from a respectable position in society. Lawyers and doctors multiply so rapidly as to remind one of the wish of Sir Thomas Browne, that "men might procreate like trees." Must a man belong to one of the learned professions to command respect. For one, I differ from any such opinion. Is not the farmer more independent in the true sense of the term than all other classes ? Is there anything in his pursuits incompatible, with the culture of his mind? He lives in daily and hourly communion with nature, en joys unlimited opportunities of observation and reflection, and may ramble at pleasure among the beauties of animated nature. The vernal bloom of spring and the mellow affluence of autumn, dispose his mind to contemplation and lead him to look up to the " Giver of every perfect gift," with a heart melted with gratitude. Nor is he precluded by his avocations from the improvement of his mind by reading and study. There are moments when reading stands to him in the stead of the boisterous gabble of the bar room, and the beastial orgies of the brothel. When prevented from stirring abroad, reading becomes a solace and amusement, instead of being resorted to merely to kill time. These moments, rightly improved by judicious reading, will enable him to accumulate stores of information. The ant hill is formed by successive accretions of the minutest particles, and knowledge is gathered the same way. Let us compare him with the members of the learned professions, that we means of mental culture and capacity for hap piness. The physician stands so much by the couch of sickness and beholds so much suffering that his finer feelings are blunted and chilled. If he is a man of proper feelings the conviction of his inability to relieve the suffering of disease, must harrow his soul. He who hourly witnesses so much suffering, is but too apt to become cold in heart and callous in feeling.

lanimity of the poltroon, furnish him employ. ment and bread. Crime is sitted in all its workings are hid from the world, blackened with crime, scorched with passion, and dwarfed by selfishness, until he becomes to regard virtue as an empty name to cozen fools with, and friendship but the jargon of unprincipled knaves. Such impressions however unjust to mankind, utterly preclude him from the noble enjoyments of reciprocal friendship. The lawyer by pleading on all sides, is too ant to lose sight of the great principles of truth, and to multiply crimes by the facility of escape.

Let us undazzled by the glare of public life and the trappings of the officer, take the gauge and dimensions of the happiness of the politie cian. The sword of Damocles hangs by him day and night. Ilis life is an occilation between hope and fear. He is the object of general abuse and calumny. His motives are rancorously assailed, his integrity called in question, and his course however open, is misrepresented and calumniated. To-day, thousands, guided by caprice, or tickled by his tinsel rhetoric, conspire to make him a demi-god, but to-morrow a rival, whom he had overlooked, forces him into retirement. He may plant his foot on the topmost round of the ladder of fame; vast assemblies may hang on his words, and newspapers vie with emulative toadyism in fulsome adulation, but the next gyration of the political wheel hurls him to the dust amid the jeers and exultings of his foes, and the stimulated regrets of his party friends. The evening of his days, instead of being enlivened by cheerfulness, is querulous, discontented, and embittered by chagrin and party hatred. These wayside reflections have allured me into a slight deflection from the subject matter of this article, but I flatter myself they will facilitate the accomplishment of the object so much and so earnestly desired by all farmers, vize the removal of the absurd prejudices. against the vocation of the agriculturist. Do not misconceive my meaning. I am not attempting to show that farmers sons are unequal to the performance of the duties of the learned professions. Whence sprung the orators, who have successfully contested the palm of eloquence with the laureled sages of antiquity; and the statesmen, who have guided the vessel of State, and shed such lustre on our national history? They were not the puling scions of a purse-proud aristocracy, nor the sickly products of the feculent hot-beds of fashion. They were not reared amid scenes of luxury and profusion, nor initiated into the grog-shop and brothel, ere they got rid of clouts. They were not taught to prefer broadcloth to the treasures of knowledge and the corruscations of art, and regard manual labor as a badge of servitude, and idleness as the patent of nobility. They were reared for the most part in the seclusion of the country ; exercise gave them robust health and strength; remoteness from large cities rendered them moral and upright, and their minds having been self-taught are self-relying and independent. The city mannikin may bow with more courtliness of manner, and stare at a lady with more unabashed impudence than a plain farmer, who hangs out no false signs of wealthbut his highest achievement is to crack a watchman's head, as his ambition is to copy the dress of the cast off footman of some English lordling.

At least two thirds of our most distinguished the nore so honorably distinguished our la. At least two thirds of our most distinguished and customers, and those of the late firm, that he is and customers, and those of the late firm, that he is and customers, and those of the late firm, that he is and customers, and those of the late firm, that he is and customers, and those of the late firm, that he is and customers, and those of the late firm, that he is and customers, and those of the late firm, that he is and customers, and those of the late firm, that he is and customers, and will continue the basiness on his own accountry ; and to the habits then formed, their success in the battle of life was mainly owing. Washington appears more truly great when relinquishing the trappings of office, and seeking happiness on Mt. Vernon, than when shadowed with the laurels of the warrior, or invested with the Presidential purple. Andrew Jackson thought it no disgrace to be a farmer, his fatuity ? He has attempted to move the and the American masses decided that it should world without having a power commensurate be no ground for his exclusion from the Chief Magistracy. * Now, the question arises how is the farmer to be elevated to his legitimate rank into help to create, a tax to his friends and frequent. society, and the annual accessions to the profession ended ? As I am a farmer, I shall make lessly p'anges into the most brutal dissipation no apology for addressing myself to this question with earnestness. In the first place it is of primary importance that more attention should be devoted to such sciences as aid us in the analysis of our soils, and the application of manure. Chemistry should form the study of every person who designs to become a cultivator of the soil. Knowledge of agricultural chemistry is the corner stone of the farmer. Independently of the pleasure to be derived from its study, it will prove highly useful to one who tills the ground. We all know that some manures cause both corn and cotton to "fire" and to fail in seasons of drought, yet how few can give a rational explanation of this phenomenon, not recommending people to grasp shadows, or to adopt every untried theory, but to ac-quire a practical knowledge of all that diminshes labor, and prevents the exhaustion of the soil; to increase the usefulness and respectability of their vocation by mental improvement; and to lay aside the customs of past times, as things that have been superseded by new inventions. Secondly, as matters now stand, every one feels the evils resulting from the lack of the espirit d'corps, which common habits, homogenious interests, and kindred pursuits should inspire. Each man depends upon his own stock of knowledge, and neighborhood is divided from neighborhood as if by an impassable gulf. We know nothing of what is transpiring outside of our own neighborhood, and not unfrequently never see our nearest 'neighbors more than once in six months. The wise observant man may pick a speculation out of the conversation of the most stupid and illiterate. and improve by the blunders of others. But do we manifest any desire to gain information. to abandon our false notions, and to avail ourmay reach a just conclusion in reference to his selves of the salutary improvements of the age? The mass of agriculturists seem indissolubly wedded to the customs of their fathers. "Book Farming" is a synonym of arrant and ill success. This is a serious obstacle to improvement. If farmers would organize county societies for the distribution of the premiums, the interchange of individual experiences, the discussion of new improvements and theories, they would add to their stock of knowledge, and give a fresh impulse to agricultural progress. The social relations and neighborly charities, turpitude of human mind, the ebulition of enough to justify the formation of these counguilty passion, the griping usury of the miser, try societies. We must act with concert, if deep planned knavery, and the sneaking pusil. we would accomplish anything of moment. I shall conclude this article by invoking plan ters, however meagre their early education loathsome details, and sounded to its darkest may have been, or much neglected, to take depths of infamy. He sees human nature in agricultural papers, to throw aside their averits worst phase. He sees the human heart de sion to book farming, and to improve their nuded of all the flimsy disguises by which its minds by a judicious course of reading. Do not lag behind the age, nor cling to customs which have long since been condemned. Ba above all, employ all your arts of persuasion and influence, to dissuade your sons from embarking in professions now too overstocked. Agriculture opens a fair field for the exerercise of their talent, and affords full scope for their ambition. Edmund Ruffin has earned a fame that time cannot efface. He is more of a benefactor of his race than the hero, whose claims to fame are recorded in blood.

Low- HEADED, FRUIT TREES .- By having ow headed fruit trees, the sun, which is, perhaps in our hot and dry summers, the cause of more disease and destruction in fruit trees than all other diseases together, is almost literally scalding the sap, as it does in long, naked trunks and limbs. The limbs and leaves of a tree should always effectually shade the trunk and keep it cool. The leaves only should have plenty of sun and light, they can bear and prof t by it. If trees were suffered to branch out low, say within one or two feet of the ground we should hear very much less of "fire-black." "frozen sap blight," black spots, and the like .--The ground is always looser, moister, and cooler, under a low, branching tree, than under a high one. Grass and weeds do not grow a hundreth part so rank and readily, and mulching becomes unnecessary. The wind has not half the power to rack and twist, and break the tree, and shake off the fruit; a matter of no inconsiderable consequence. The trees will he much longer lived and more profolic, beautiful and profitable. The trees are more easily rid of destructive insects, the fruit is much less damaged by falling, and the faculties for gathering it are much greater; there is less danger in climbing, and less pruning and scraping, and washing, and the roots are protected from the blow, which is too often made to tear and mutilate them.

DIAPEPERA

Prepared from RENNET, or the fourth STOM-ACH OF THE OX, after directions of BARON LIEBIG, the great Physiological Chemist, by J. S. HOUGHTON, M. D., Philadelphia, Pa. This is a truly wonderful remedy for INDIGES-TION, DYSPEPSIA, JAUNDICE, LIVER ITY, Curing after Nature's own method, by Nature's own Agent, the Gastric Juice

Half a teaspoonful of PEPSIN, infused in water, will digest or dissolve, Five Pounds of Roast Be f in about two hours, out of the stomach.

PEPSIN is the chief element, or Great Digestng Principle of the Gastric Juice--the Solvent of the Food, the Purifying, Preserving, and Stimulating Agent of the Stomach and Intestines. It is extracted from the Digestive Stomach of the Ox, thus forming an ARTIFICIAL DIGESTIVE FLUID, precisely like the natural Gastric Juice in Chemical powers, and furnishing a COM-PLETE and PERFECT SUBSTITUTE for it. By the aid of this preprration, the pains and evils of INDIGESTION and DYSPEPSIA are removed, just as they would be by a healthy Stomach. It is doing wonders for Dyspeptics, curing cases of DEBILITY, EMACIATION, NERVOUS DE-CLINE, and DYSPEPTIC CONSUMPTION. supposed to be on the verge of the grave. The Scientific Evidence upon which it is based, is in the highest degree CURIOUS and REMARKA-BLE.

SCIENTIFIC EVIDENCE!

BARON LIEBIG in his celebrated work on Animal Chemistry, says: "An Artificial Digestive Fluid, analogous to the Gastric Juice, may be readily prepared from the mucous membrane of the stomach of the Ox, in which various articles of food, as meat and eggs, will be softened: changed, and digested, just in the same manner as they would be in the human stomach."

Circular, gratis, giving a large amount of SCIEN-TIFIC EVIDENCE, similar to the above, togeth-er with Reports of REMARKABLE CURES,

I feel it to be my duty to solemnly assure you that WORMS, according to the opinion of the most celebreted Physicians, are the primary causes of a large majority of diseases to which children and adults are liable; if you have an ap-petite continually changeable from one kind of food to another. Ead Breath, Pain in the Stomach, Picking at the Nose, Hardness and Fullness of the Belly. Dry Cough, Slow Fever, Pulse Irregular—remember that all these de-note WORMS, and you should at once apply the remedy. HOBENSACK'S WORM SYRUP.

An article founded upon Scientific Principles, compounded with purely vegetable substances, being perfectly safe when taken, and can be given to the most tender Infant with decided beneficial effect, where Bowel Complaints and Diarrheea have made them weak and debilitated the Tonic properties of my Worm Syrop are ruch, that it stands without an equal in the catalogue of medicines in giving tene and strength to the Stomach, which makes it an Infallible remedy for those afficiend with Dyspepsia, the astonishing cures performed by this Syrup after Physicians have failed, is the best evidence of its superior efficacy

Consumption Cured Daily

BY DR. HASTING'S Compound Syrump of Naptha.

Compound Syrump of Naptha. The Medical Faculty, as well as the public, are struck traotdinary medicine, and it is acknowledged by many of our most eminent physicians to be a certain and speedy cure for tubucular consumption, in its worst stages. It has been recommended by that eminent physician, Dr Mott, and is constantly used in the Marine Hospital, at Savanah, Ga., by Dr. Arnold, the senior physician of that hospital. The London Lancet, London Medical Journal, Braithwaite's Retrospect, and all others of the London Medical Journals, have spoken in praise many times of the emergine effects of surprising effects of DR. HASTING'S PREPARATION.

DR. HASTING'S PREPARATION. It has been thoroughly tried, not only in the Hospita under the charge of Dr. Hastings in London, but also by all the first physicians of England, and all have fully en-dorsed it as an unrivalled remedy in Consumption, and all other diseases of the lungs. The following are a few of the opinions expressed by the Medical Faculty of England. Dr Williams, of Manchester, thus writes: "Under its influence I have seen the emaciated being! on whose brow death hadseemed to have set his seal, ac-quiring vhoration and strength, and exchange his early mornings of suffering and distressing cough for the sound repose which alone accompanies sound health."

repose which alone accompanies sound health."

Dr. Ware, of Liverpool, says: "I regard Hasting's Syrup of Napiha as one of the first medical discoveries of any age, and consider its agency in curing consumption as established beyond all doubt ro question."

question." "Dr. Boyd of Lancaster, "Hails it as the great consump-tion antidote and cure," and Dr. Hamilton, of Bath, pro-nounces it "the only known remedy which may be relied on for moving tubercles from the lungs, and preventing the ormation of others.

formation of others." A single bottle will prove its efficacy: All the propri-eror asks is the trial of one bottle, the action of which wi ptove to the patient the virtue of this medciine.

prove to the patient the virtue of this medcline. Coughs, colds, bronchitis, decline, asthma, nightsweats, and spitting of blood, are cured in a surprisingly shorttime; the severest colds having yielded to the treatment of the Naphha Syrup in the short space of forty-eight hours. James Western, of Pontiac, Michigan, was attacked with spitting of blood, and could obtain norelief till he tried HASTING'S NAPHTHA. Wich stopped it in half an haur. To enumerate all the spitter formed by this medicine would occupy a column but for want of space. we must forbear, and say that one trial will be more satisfactory, and prove its efficacy be-yond a doubt.
