Selected Poetry.

WRITTEN AT MY MOTHER'S GRAVE. BY GEO. D. PRENTICE.

The trembling dew drops fall Upon the shutting flowers-like souls at rest-The stars shine gloriously-and all Save me is-blest.

Mother-I love thy grave!-The violet, with its blossoms blue and mild, Wave o'er thy head-when shall it wave Above thy child!

'Tis sweet flower-yet must Its bright leaves to the coming tempest bow, Dear mother-'tis thine emblem-dust Is on thy brow?

And I could love to die-To leave untasted, life's dark bitter streams, By these, as erst in childhood, lie And share thy dreams.

And must I linger here To stain the plumage of my sinless years, And mourn the hopes to childhood dear With bitter tears?

Aye, must I linger here A lonely branch upon a blasted tree, Whose last frail leaf untimely sere, Wet down with thee

Of from life's withered bower, In still communion with the past I turn, And muse on the only flower In memory's urn.

And, when the evening pale, Bows like a mourger on the dim, blue wave, I stray to hear the night wind's wail Around thy grave.

Where is thy spirit flown? I gaze above—thy look is imaged there— I listen, and thy gentle tone Is on the air.

Oh, come-whilst here I press My brow upon thy grave—and in those mild And thrilling tones of tenderness Bless, bless thy child!

Yes bless thy weeping child, And o'er thy uru-religion's holiest shrine-Oh, give his spirit undefined To blend with thine

From the Charleston Mercury. Small Grains.

MESSES. EDITORS:-The cultivation of the different kinds of small grain has not yet re ceived from our planters that attention which they so fully merit and so amply repay. It is of England fine crops are obtained by a high pretty generally proved that Wheat cannot be state of tilth and early sowing—these requisites produced on our Sea Island lands, but it is not necessary to go far from salt water in order to be able to grow it with reasonable success. When it can be grown so cheaply, I can see no reason for devoting every effort for the production of a staple so uncertain, and at times so unprofitable, as Cotton, and depending upon other States to supply us with wheat flour, which can be made quite as good and as cheap at home.

To raise Barley, it is absolutely necessary that it should be sown in land rather sandy. and either naturally rich or made so by liberal manuring. Barley is not used among us as chaff. Very early oats may be cut somewhat greenfood, but when cut green is the sweetest, and er, as they will ripen afterwards in the midst of food, but when cut green is the sweetest, and among the earliest, of all the small grains, and when ripe furnishes excellent and very early greener in this country of hot sun, than in the of goods can be bought (upon the same terms) in any among the earliest, of all the small grains, and hot weather-a reason why they may be ent food for horses and poultry.

cold and close pasturing much better than eith-all the small grains. For cutting green or pasturing, Septembes is the proper month for sowing all of these grains, of carbon, and from 13 to 18 per cent of nitrobut when the grain is the consideration, Octo. ber is the better season. When sown later, both Wheat and Rye are less productive, more liable to rust, and more uncertain; while Oats a long time is required for their decomposition, and Barley may be profitably sown during the their action may often last for seven or eight months of January, February and March, though the earlier shey are sown, the more when made into a compost for potatoes, turnips, that we usually have in February, which would kill them if in the white sprout. The largest and best crops of all of these grains that I have ever made were made, by by running a furrow with a small plow, whether Barshare or Bull-tongue, on the Cotton, therefore, at 13,000,000, the number of indi-Corn or Pea beds, as close as the stalks or vines which need not be cut for this purpose, as can be done conveniently, turning the earth downwards into the alley. The grains are then sown by hand, and covered by another furrow, of the same plow, taken from a little higher up.

The quantity of seed necessary will materially depend upon the fertility of the soil and the contrary, such is our carelessness or indothe time of sowing. Early sowing and fertile lence in those matters, is, I believe, invariably soils require less seed than late sowing a poor swept away in streets or sewers, and utterly wassoil, when sown in the above manner about ted .- Farmer's Manual of Agricultural Chemhalf the usual quantity of seed per acre only is istry. required as it tillers much more; when a large crop is required, and the cotton seed can be had six parts of cotton seed may be mixed with cach part of grain, and the two sown together. BARRY'S TRICOPHEROUS, Hauel's Eau Lustral, Phalon's Invigorator, Radway's Circassian Balm, It is easy to judge when the sowing is as thick Jayne's and Louden's Hair Tonic, together with most as desired. I have successfully pursued another p'an in root potato land, where no hogs are kept or allowed to have access; this consists in stripping down the vines and siding or undermining the beds as usual, then strew or sow the oats &c. over the vines &g, and cover by pulling with care, the earth from the middle of in good repair, with an excellent well of water. Crops sown in either way neither admit of nor require any farther cultivation, even in very stiff soils, resist drougth or rains much better than when sown in the usual way, and produce very nearly, if not quite, as much. Oats by plowing up the land, trenching furwhite, and suitable for plastering and all other purporows every 25 inches with the bull tongue plow ses for which Lime is used. and covering with another furrow of the same plow; but when thus sown, they require to be worked in the spring at least once, and the best cultivation then in stiff soils, is one furrow of a subsoil, or rather ground mole plow, which breaks up the soil three or four inches deep. Without some such plowing, the crop on such soils is apt to be poor, even though worked through with the hoe. This working can very seldom be given without much inconvenience. The crop thus made, even though it may sometimes prove a better one, yet always costs much and sometimes more than it is worth.

If the corn, &c, stalks are at any time cut down, these crops might, even in bedded lands, be harvested with little labor or loss of time, by using the reaping machine of either Hussey or McCormie.

In connection with the above subject, I would say that I have seen most of the straw cutters made in this country, and tried several, and have no hesitation in recommending the one now made by R. Sinclair, jr, & Co., of Baltimore, as the most efficient and durable, and in the long run, the cheapest that I have ever seen. Its cost in Baltimore is $30, freight to Oharleston $1. Yours respectfully,

AN ISLAND PLANTER.

Cultivation of Oats.

One of the best articles on the cultivation o oats which has appeared, is the Essay of J. Rowlandson, as published in the last number of the (British) Farmer's Magazine. As the same rules of cultivation will apply in a great measure to both countries, we shall perhaps render an acceptable service to our readers by giving a brief outline of the facts stated in that article, so far as they may be of general application.

Soil .- Any soil in good condition will duce good crops of oats-they can be profitably grown on soils too poor for other cereals, rye excepted-and on all intermediate stages of fertility up to rich virgin land. Some rich, newly drained peat soils have produced from 80 to 100 bushels of light grain per acre. With regard to climate, oats will flourish under a very wide range. The heaviest and best crops are grown on soils the most productive of ordinary farm crops. For all seasons, friable loam situated on broken limestone, has been found best. Heavier or more cloddy soils are apt to suffer from drouth, to remedy which, sow early and rather thick. If sown late and thin, a miserable crop will be the result. On marly soil, the grain is heaviest, being often 45 or 46 lbs. per bushelheavier crops, however, are obtained on rather looser or more friable soils. The heaviest crops on rich and moist drained peat, are raised during dry seasons, when the crop is sown early. On gravelly soils, unless in very good tilth, oats suffer most from drouth.

Cultivation.—The best preparation for luxu riant crops is freshly broken up grass land. The only objection is the small pecuniary return for so valuable a preparation. In the warmer parts doubtless being still more important in the warm-er climate of the United States. Drilling has proved quite successful, in the few instances where this mode of sowing has been adopted, resulting in ten to twenty per cent saving in seed, and in additional product. Few crops derive more advantage from rolling. Early sown crops are invariably the best. If sown late, the chances are ten to one against a productive one, as the young plants are checked by dry weather, from which they rarely recover. The best time for cutting is when a few of the grains retain the slightest possible trace of green color on the cooler climate of England. Oats are more lia-Rye can be grown in almost every soil, even ble to heat in the stack than either wheat or the poorect, though it prefers a sandy one, and barley, on account of their more compact laythe product very materially depends upon the ers, and hence should be left in the shock till fertility of the sail. For cutting green it is well dried. In dry soils and climates, autumn

The results of many experiments are given to show the comparative value of different varieties, but that are here omitted as being not generally applicable to this country .- Northern Cultivator.

HINTS AS TO MANURES .- Hoofs, hairs, feathers, skins, wood, contain more than 50 per cent gen, besides sulphur, salts of line, of soda, and magnesia. These substances hold, therefore, the first rank, as it were, amongst manures; and as years. They yield excellent results, especially productive and certain the crop will generally hops, hay, and generally, on meadow land. prove. An excellent time to sow Oats is the Hairs spread upon meadows are said to augment first half of January, as when sown at this time the crop threefold; and the Chinese, we are they will be up and green before the cold spell told, are so well aware of the great value of that manure, that they carefully collect the hair every time they have their heads shaved-and sell it to their farmers. Now, the crop of hair which every individual leaves at the hair cutter's yearly, amounts to about half a pound; reckoning, viduals who in Great Britain and Ireland are undergoing the process of shaving and hair cuttling, we have a production of about 3000 tons of hair-that is, of manure of the most valuable kind-since it represents, at least, 150,000 tons of ordinary farm yard manure, which might be collected almost without trouble, but which, on

> Professor Alexander C. Barry's TRICOPHEROUS,

OR Medicated Compound, for preserving, fastening, softening and promoting the growth of the hair, cleansing the head, and curing diseases of the skin, and external cuts, bruises, &c. The common consent of all who have used Barry's Tricopherous, whether for the improvement and invigoration of the hair, or for eruptions, cuts, bruises, &c., places it at the head of all preparations intended for like purposes. This is no ill considered assertion. Figures and facts bear it out. The sales average a millions of bottles a year: the receipts, in cash, $100,000. This year the business will exceed that amount. The number of orders which daily arrive at the depot and manufactory, 137 Broadway, New York, addressed to Professor Barry, enclosing cash, and requiring immediate attention would scarcely be believed. The wholesale demand is from 2,000 to 3.000 bottles a day, probably exceeding that of all the other hair preparations conjoined. The popularity of the article everywhere, and the liberal terms to deniers, combine to increase its sales with great rapidity; and improvements ir its compo-sition, made at considerable expense, adds to its reputation as well as its intrinsic value.
