Selected Poetry.

GENTLE WORDS.

The sun may warm the grass to life, The dew the drooping flower, And eyes grow bright and watch the light Of Autumn's opening hour-But words that breathe of tenderness, And smiles we know are true, Are warmer than, the Summer time, And brighter than the dew.

It is not much the world can give, With all its subtle art, And gold and gents are not the things To purify the heart.

But oh, if those who cluster round The altar and the hearth, Have gentle words and loving smiles, How beautiful is life.

---THE LOVED.

"They are going, one by one, From the altar and the hearth, With the music of their tone And the sunlight of their mirth: With the hopes their bosoms cherished, With the joys their memories knew. Hopes that in their radiance perished Like fading flowers and early dew.

From their vallies, broad and green From their mountains stern, yet dear: From their river's crystal sheen, Silently they disappear; All the visions of their dreaming Fade away and are forgot, And the brain with wisdom teeming, Sinks to earth and rises not!

On the hill side, and the lea, Forms were sporting-where are they? On the air were sounds of glee; Listen! they have passed away; Fades the soonest all that's rarest, Hopes the brightest first decay, Friends the truest-forms the fairest, Melt like summer clouds away.'

From the Laurensville Herald.

Peas and Broomsedge. Mr. Editor : Although many are aware of the fact, it may not generally be known that the pea succeeds better after turning under broomsedge, as a first crop, than any other cultivable plant. Corn and cotton, as most of your readers have doubtless seen, will do but little as a first crop after under broomsedge, but peas will grow more luxuriantly than anywhere else, unless perhaps in ne v ground. As there are now a great many old fields thickly set with broomsedge, that will soon be brought back into cultivation, I think some good plan of reclaiming them-a matter of some importance. I will offer a plan, and it may go for what it is worth- let those who can, offer a better. It is this, turn under a broomsedge with a two horse horse plow to a depth of six or seven inches, as early in the winter as you can find leisure to do it, so that the surface may be mel lowed by the frosts. Sometime during the month of May sow it with peas and scratch them in lightly, so as not to disturb the grass sod below. Or, if you think the ground will be too foul, drill them in rows about three feet apart, so that you may run a furrow or two between them. In either case, take care and do not disturd the sod below. On this last plan I have now growing the best peas I have on my farm. A few rows were planted on the same ground; but as I expected they are a perfect failure.

When the peas are ripe the hogs may be allowed to cat them off, but no other stock should be allowed to enter. In the spring of the year following lay off the ground with a scooter or shovel furrow, for cotton. Into this furrow scatter your compost manure, or guano, if you please, and cover with a twister-after which finish your bed in the usual manner. After the cotton is up, let the culture be with the hoe and sweep. I think it would be best not to bring up the grass sod from below. Such is the plan I intend to pursue, and I expect to find my land afterwards in good heart, and ready for any judicious course of cropping. If any one knows a better course, I hope he will let it be known through your columns, before cotton planting time. I intended when I commenced this to offer a theory to explain why the pea, which is a broad leaved succulent plan, thrives well after broomsedge, which is a very narrow-leaved and dry plant; but cannot now for want of room and want of time. I presame there are but a few of your readers who will feel an interest in this part of the subject. If any do and will make the call through your columns, I will try to respond. I do not promise to throw much light upon it, but if it excites discussion, that may enlighten us. I tried a year or two ago through your paper to draw something from "Broomsedge" upon it, but he was then too much taken up with his monthly criticisms to so small a matter. I trust, if I attempt the task, he will spare me. FRANKLIN.

Guano.-This highly valuable manure is exciting much interest among the farmers of our country. Thousands of pounds are still sent into our State. Those who have used it seem to be much flattered at the result of the Cloth Table and Piano Covers. application, and continue to enlarge the amount upon their farms. Some contends that it may be applied to hoed or cultivated crops; while others say that it should rather serve as a basis of improvement, enriching the land so as to cause it to produce such green crops as may be turned in and made fertilizers. We are much inclined to agree with the latter class, for it is so highly volatile, when applied to crops which require the frequent stirring of the soil, these volatile principles must, to a great extent, pass off, before affording much nourish ment to crops. But the benefit which guano has conferred upon the agricultural interest of the country has not been direct alone; it is not confined to the increased product arising from its application, but many farmers have been greatly benefited by guano, who have perhaps never applied more than one handred pounds. The great improvement which they have seen to arise from the application of so small a quantity of a substance to their crops, has had the effect to cause them to look about and see the many means which they have around them for enriching their lands, and of which they have never availed themselves before. There are many rich fields in many parts of the country, which but for guano would have still been barren, failing to produce enough to pay the owrer for their cultivation .- Farmer's Journal.

Professor Alexander C. Barry's TRICOPHEROUS,

OR Medicated Compound, for preserving, fastening, softening and promoting the growth of the hair, cleansing the head, and curing diseases of the skin, and external cuts, bruises, &c. The common consent of all who have used Barry's Tricopherous, whether for the improvement and invigoration of the hair, or for eruptions, cuts, bruises, &c., places it at the head of all preparations intended for like purposes. This is no ill considered assertion. Figures and facts bear it out. The sales average a millions of bottles a year: the receipts, in cash, $100,000. This year the business will exceed that amount. The number of orders which daily arrive at the depot and manufactory, 137 Broadway, New York, addressed to Professor Barry, enclosing cash, and requiring immediate attention, would scarcely be believed. The wholesale demand is from 2,000 to 3.000 bottles a day, probably exceeding that of all the other hair preparations conjoined.
The popularity of the article everywhere, and the liberal terms to deaters, combine to increase its sales with great rapidity; and improvements in its compo sition, made at considerable expense, adds to its reputation as well as its intrinsic value.
