Selected Poetry.

Young and Old. I often think each tottering form That limps along in life's decline, Once bore a heart, as young, as warm, . As full of idle thoughts as mine! And each has had its dream of joy. Its own unequalled, pure romance; Commencing when the blushing boy First thrills at lovely woman's glance.

And each could tell his tale of youth-Would think its scenes of love evince More passion, more unearthly truth, Than any tale before or since. Yes! they could tell of tender lay, At midnight penned in classic shades, Of days more bright than modern days, And maids more fair than modern maids.

Of whispers in a willing ear; Of kisses on a blushing cheek; Each kiss, each whisper far more dear Our modern lips to give or speak, Of passions too untimely crossed; Of passions slighted or betrayed; Of kindred spirits early lost, And buds that blossom but to fade.

Of beaming eyes and tresses gay, Elastic form and noble brow. Of forms that have all passed away, And left them what we see them now ! And is it thus-is human love So very light and frail a thing ? And must youth's brightest visions move Forever on time's restless wing?

Must all the eyes that still are bright And all the lips that talk of bliss, And all the forms so fair to sight, Hereafter only come to this? Then what are earth's best visions worth, If we at length must lose them thus? If all we value most on earth Ere long must fade away from us?

for the Farmers.

DR. CLOUD-Dear Sir :- A few years since the opinion generally presailed that peas were poisonous to hogs, and having little experience I adopted it, made but few peas, plenty of corn, and allowed my hogs to run in the woods twothirds of the year, lost more or less every year by disease, and raised a great many runts, which, upon examination, always proved diseased in the bowels or kidneys, or both .-About this time it occurred to nie, in witnessing the examination of several animals that had died suddenly, that some of the smaller passages of the intestines were found completely clogged with unmasticated food, and never having detected any poisonous effects from the use of the pea, I attributed their unwholepeas, and knowing that green peas would not swell, I always managed to admit the hogs to one field before the peas were ripe, always leaving the little nubbin and decayed corn in the field. I still lost some hogs, but could not attribute it to the peas.

hogs in the plantation the year round, occasionally sprinkling a little spirits of turpentine on their back, and now disease appears almost to friends either in selling Cotton or purchasing Supplies. have left my stock, and a death rarely occurs, unless by violence. Last year my pea crop was abundant; I turned in my stock and fat tening hogs in October; several sows brought forth about that time, and were suffered to run on them until the peas were exhausted, which was late in February, and I now have shoats from the above litters that will compare favorably with the best, and are decidedly superior to any that I have ever raised.

isfaction is this: Sow the speckled or wild goose pea broadcast, when you lay by your corn, half bushel to the acre; pick your seed pens soon after taking your fodder, and give the second crop to your hogs, which will be in a ripening but not swelling condition, early in October ; there will be many ripe ones at that time, without doubt, but the hogs will prefer the green ones, and first fill themselves with them, which cannot burt them as they do not swell, and after the first bite or two they will not eat so burniedly and greedily.

When it happens that we are prevented from putting our hogs in the field while the peas are yet green, we give them plenty of corn the first day or two, which appears to obviate all difficulty.

pea a most healthy and nutricious food for horses and colts, and I find that colts may be weaned from their dam on a pea field, more particularly while the peas are green, with less loss than any other way that I have tried. I prefer the speckled pea, first because stock are more fond of them; secondly, they are not so easily killed by the autumnal frosts, frequently escaping white other peas are killed; owing to their habit of bringing a partial crop in early, so that enough for seed may be gathered before the season for picking arrives, and if these are taken off, the same stems will produce another by the middle of October, land and seasons permitting.

The Albany Evening Journal says: "After an almost entire 'total abstinence' for twenty years, our farmers begin to profitably resume the cultivation of Wheat. We have a fine sample from near New Baltimore before us, which returned over forty bushels to the acre. It would trouble the Genesee Valley to do bet-

Before the Revolution Albany county produced a good deal of Wheat, it being the staple of the Dutch settlers under the Patroon, for several generations, yielding, according to authentic history, from 20 to 40 bushels per acre. Auxious to make all the farmers in the State tell their own stories as to the amount of their respective crops in 1845, we so prepared the census schedules for that year as to attain that object. In Albany county they reported 233,295 acres of improved land. Of this only 6,112 acres were in wheat, producing 44,149 bushels, being an average of 7 1.3 per acre. The average in Columbia county, which lies just below Albany, on the east side of the river, was but seven bushels; and in Dutche vield is said to be double what it was at the last State census.

In all sections where the land has been partially exhausted, it is very important that a better system of husbandry be introduced, and patronised by agricultural societies, until a general reform is brought about. Liming and manuring are so expensive that many farmers not entirely free from debt, do not feel able to embark in these operations; and it is only by slow degrees that wheat culture can be re established on old and badly impoverished fields. This auspicious result, however, is attained wherever guano is introduced; and where farmers keep stock enough to make a fair supply of manure for the use of the farm. By the keeping of hogs and neat cattle many a poor farm has been so improved that its crops once averaged only fifteen bushels per acre, now averages forty-five bushels; and they will readily sell for four times the money that could have been obtained for them twelve years ago .-Railroads are entitled to much credit for raising the value of farms, long ago deteriorated by excessive croppings. Giving the farmer a better market for every kind of produce, they foster deep plowing, more thorough cultivation every way, and render the collection and economical use of manure a matter of certain prof-

Professor Alexander C. Barry's TRICOPHEROUS,

R Medicated Compound, for preserving, lastening, softening and promoting the growth of the hair, cleansing the head, and curing diseases of the skin, and external cuts, bruises, &c. The common consent of all who have used Barry's Tricopherous, whether for the improvement and invigoration of the hair, or for eruptions, cuts, bruises, &c., places it at the head of all preparations intended for like purposes. This is no ill considered assertion. Figures and facts bear it out. The sales average a millions of bottles a year; the receipts, in cash, $100,000. This year the business will exceed that amount. The number of orders which daily arrive at the depot and manufactory, 137 Broadway, New York, addressed to Professor Barry, enclosing cash, and requiring immediate attention, would scarcely be believed. The wholesale demand s from 2,000 to 3.000 bottles a day, probabl, exceeding that of all the other hair preparations conjoined. The popularity of the article everywhere, and the liberal terms to deaiers, combine to increase its sales with great rapidity; and improvements in its composition, made at considerable expense, adds to its reputation as well as its intrinsic value. For sale whole sale and retail, by the principal merchants and druggists throughout the United States and Canada, Mexi co, West Indies, Great Britain and France, and by Dortch, Jones & Co., Camden.
