Selected Poetry.

From the Waverly Magazine. THERE'S BEAUTY EVERYWHERE.

Oh, earth is full of beauty, Of glory and of light, And all that God created Is radiant and bright. Oh, who can gaze around him. With cold and careless eye, On all the glorious beauty That decks our earth and sky.

There's beauty in the forest,

So shadowy and lone, Where the wildwood songster warbles Its dear, melodious tone : There's grandeur in the storm-clouds That gather in the sky.

And in the flashing lightning As it quickly hurries by.

There's beauty in the morning As it gaily dawns on earth, Enlivening all nature With melody and mirth: And in the golden sunset Of a closing summer's day-There's beauty, calmer beauty, In the day-god's parting ray.

There's beauty, calmer beauty, When the sun has snuk to rest, And the lovely scene reminds us Of the regions of the blest; The morn looks down in beauty, In purity and love, And tells us, sweetly tells Of a happy home above,

Where we shall meet the loved ones Who parted here in tears, And live with them in heaven Through long unchanging years; Oh, there is beauty all around us To glad this world of ours, If we would only pass the thorns And cull the sweetest flowers.

OF which this is a correct cut. The exclusive right of which this is a correct cut. The exclusive ritories, now belongs to the New Haven Manufacturing Company. New Haven, Conn., to whom all orders must be addressed. After having three years acquaintance with the above Mil, the New Haven Manufacturing Company have adopted it as a portion of their bushess, knowing this Mill to be the best portable Mill for all kinds of grain which has been in use by over 160 per cent.

These Mills are celebrated above all other mills, first, for their superior construction—they are built in the best workmanike manner, from the best French burrs-tone, 30 Inches in diameter, and all snurgly enewed in a fine east-iron frame, and so arranged that one man can set one of these Mills up file-st than two hours, ready to use; and when thus put up, all the repairs they would require for five years, would be but a trifle; second, they are so constructed, that when set so as to make the finest flour, the stones with or without feed will not come in contact; hence, they leave no grit in the meal, and no power is used except for crusting the grain. Third, these Mills are self-cooling, by a blast of cold air driven through an aperture in the easing, and around the stones; hence, they can be run 21 hours without soupling, and without heating.

Pourth, these Mills will grind 250 bushels of corn into fine meal in 10 hours, and that too with 14 horse-power; and will grind 120 bushels of wheat into fine flour in ten hours time, and with one-half the power required by the common mill. Price $200. Packing $4.

Circulars, with instructions for using, with certificates from the best and most reliable sources in relation to this Mill, can be had by addressing as above, post paid.
