Highly Important to one Concerned!
Whereas, many of my Medical and some of my Miscellaneous Books, are scattered through the land, some with, and some without, my consent: And Whereas, many of the Instruments belonging to my shop, or to the bed room of the sick, have been missing, some for many years; therefore I do most earnestly invite all persons having possession of any article loaned them by me, or any article belonging to me, to return them to my shop at their earliest convenience.
And, while I am "putting my name in the paper," I will just observe that I have a large amount of money to raise this fall. Those persons, who for many years, have been in the habit of coming to me in the spring and saying "Doctor, I sold my cotton for but little, and had to buy my groceries out of the money, and then, when I had paid my merchant and my blacksmith, I had nothing left to pay you"—may hereby understand, that this excuse shall be taken no longer.
Why not reverse the order of things, and pay me this fall out of the first sales of cotton; especially, as I earn my money by toiling for your comfort and life, with a pained head and distressed mind, through sleepless nights, while your merchant and blacksmith are enjoying sleep? I MUST, I WILL HAVE MONEY.
