

Arrangements, D Lesly, Dr. J. F. Livingston, T. P. Spierin, R. H. Wardlaw, H. A. Jones, Dr. J. Davis, Wm. Hill, J. S. Wilson, W. H. McCaw, John Brownlee, A. Kennedy, D. McCants, J. W. Moore, W. Eddins, M. W. Coleman, M. O. McCaslan, B. F. Gilbert, Jas. Fair, A. K. Patton, Jas. Baskins, J. R. Wilson, Rev. W. B. Martin and A. Gillepie Esqr. A meeting of the committee of arrangements is particularly requested at the office of D Lesly, on Sale day in June.

It is especially desired that the President of each local society, should call a meeting previous to the 8th of July, to appoint delegates to the anniversary meeting. If this be done, and D Lesly, or Dr. F. G. Thomas are advised of such meeting, suitable speakers will be furnished to address the different societies. Each local society is requested to send at least five delegates, and as many more as can be induced to attend to the anniversary meeting. The public generally are invited to attend. The Temperance Advocate will please copy.

F. G. THOMAS, I BRANCH,
Presi'dt. Sec'y.

Judge not that ye be not Judged.

How peremptory and comprehensive; how concise and easily understood, is this injunction of the blessed Redeemer. Sophistry is unable to pervert its meaning—it has but one, and that, so apparent no one can be deceived: neither the wise nor the rich, can hope to escape the penalty; it applies to the whole human race, yea every one: and considering the sanctity of the source from which it emanated, coming from the very lips of our Holy Saviour in his sermon on the Mount, the absence of all excuse as to its signification, and the severity of the punishment attached, we should think Pagans alone, would be guilty of disobedience. Is such the fact? Are there not even in communities that seem to be governed by the principles of Religion, who hold the bible in apparent reverence, treat its ministers with respect, and pretend to believe their holy teachings, many who think it no sin to condemn their neighbor, uncharged, unheard, untried; upon the strength and evidence of some vague rumor, of crimes, grave, dark, heinous!

Is there not amongst all men, christians, as well as worldlings, an unbecoming proneness to seek after the faults, the follies, and the foibles of their fellows! and whilst bringing out their sins in bold relief, and giving them, too great a credit; to deny even scanty justice, to those virtues which are possessed!

Is not this, "plucking at the mote in thy brothers eye whilst the beam is still in thy own?"

Would it not be more christian, more manly, and more seemly, to give credit to our brethren, at least, for all the virtues, they possess; and to condemn only, on the best and most satisfactory evidence! Such is the weakness of poor human nature, and the proneness of the heart to evil, that even then, tried by the mildest tribunal, and with ample justice allowed,—their good qualities would be all too few. Many are the innocent victims, thus made to suffer: many the virtuous men, changed into reckless criminals, by the cold words, the suspicious glances, the scornful lips, of those who ought to be their friends, but who had prejudged, and passed sentenced without justice, charity, or mercy.

But the punishment of such if not now, is certain! for in the next verse Christ says, "For with what judgement ye judge, ye shall be judged: and with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again."

From the Southern Journal.

Mr. Ritchie assails Mr. Calhoun for not, as he asserts, aiding the administration in the measures necessary for the prosecution of the war. He pays, however, very little regard for truth, when he charges that if Mr. Polk's requisition for troops had been responded to at the early part of the session, the war would have been closed, and peace secured. Now the records of Congress show that the President did not ask for the eleven new regiments before the 15th of January, and then attached to the bill for the appointment of a Lieutenant General, to supersede the gallant Generals who had so long and under such trials, maintained the honor of the American arms. The heroes of Palo Alto, Resaca de la Palma, and Monterey were all to be laid aside to gratify the vanity of a bag of wind; and it requires no prophesy to say, that had that bill passed, it would have brought odium on the administration. Mr. Calhoun proved himself the best friend of Mr. Polk in saving him from the odium of such a measure—for no man, no President, not even Jackson himself, could sully the fair fame of Rough and Ready with impunity. Mr. Calhoun stripped the bill (and for which Mr. Polk should feel grateful) of its incumbrance, and refusing to supersede General Taylor he cheerfully granted the regiments of men which Taylor knew so well how to lead to victory. Mr. Calhoun has never withheld his assent to any act and means for the vigorous prosecution of the war; he was more than satisfied, as are the American People, with Rough and Ready, who having commenced the war in a blaze of triumphs, he was sure he could and would close it in a halo of glory.

The next is the Three Million Bill to enable Mr. Polk to purchase peace.—Mr. Calhoun would have voted (as he did) for it without debate—but Mr. Wilmot, one of Ritchie's par nobile democrats, thought proper to put on it a rider reproving slavery and denying to the Slave States a fair participation in the victories even. Who marred Mr Polk's bill—Mr. Wilmot. Why was he not reproved for casting a fire brand in the democratic ranks? The question is easily answered, Mr. Ritchie's malignant hostility towards Mr. Calhoun preferred the assault on the latter. Mr. Calhoun stripped the bill of the infamous Proviso, and returned it, as presented to Mr. Polk, for his signature. Was he right?—in reproving Mr Wilmot for his hostility to a measure, which he knew his Proviso would defeat, did not Mr. Calhoun show himself the sincere and true friend of Mr. Polk in granting him all that he asked, and rescuing Mr. Polk from the responsibility of the veto, which Mr. Ritchie asserts Polk would have exercised.

If despatch was essential to the passage of the bill, was it not better to remove from it in the Senate the obnoxious Proviso, and not thrown upon Mr. Polk the responsibility of exercising the veto. But could Mr. Calhoun have voted for the Three Million Bill with Wilmot's Proviso. Is there a Southern man who would not have reviled him for not having been as true, as he always has been to our rights.

LAMENTABLE OCCURRENCE.—On Saturday last, the day of the battalion parade at Mount Willing, in this District, a number of personal rencounters took place, in which many of those present were injured. During the progress of these affrays, Mr. Joseph Quattlebum was struck on the head with a gun, by Mr. Alford Padget, and so severely wounded that he died at a late hour on Saturday night. Mr. Padget has not been arrested.—Edgefield Advertiser Wednesday 5th inst.

A young French gentleman who occupied a high rank in the French army, enlisted at New York on Thursday last—he had resigned his commission in the army of France, and left his friends and his native country, to join our gallant army in Mexico. He brought letters of recommendation from distinguished gentlemen both of this country and of France.

California must be a very paradise for poor people. Flour is only $40 a barrel; black tea may be bought at $3 per pound; sugar for half a dollar; and a yard of domestic cotton for the same.

Mr. Clay's speech delivered at New Orleans in behalf of Ireland some time ago, is going the rounds of the English and Irish papers, and the editors there speak of it in the warmest manner.

Kendall says that among the motely crowd that left Vera Cruz for parts unknown, was one man dressed as a priest, who carried a fiddle in one hand and a game-cock in the other. He was doubtless one of Santa Anna's most devout followers in the cockpit.

The Washington Union says the president is determined, that if a peace be concluded between the United States and Mexico, it shall be a permanent one. He has forty millions of dollars for conquering it, and three millions for buying it, and if he acquire a double title to it, a title by conquest and a title by purchase, he ought by all means to be able to hold on to it.

SLAVE PROPERTY IN KENTUCKY.—A Kentuckian publishes a tabular statement in the Frankfort Commonwealth, which shows that while from the year 1841 to 1846 inclusive, the number of slaves in that state increased 16,729, the valuation of the same decreased $7,305,741.

The escopette of the Mexican is an ugly little gun about two feet long, and carrying a two ounce ball. It is an awkward arm, but is good to keep a noise.

Good.—The Louisville Journal says: "We think it very likely that the people of the United States will in 1848 do what the Mexicans have vainly attempted to do—run General Taylor."

Obituary.

DIED at the residence of D Calhoun Esq. on the 2nd inst. Dr. E. C. BAKER, aged 23 years and four months.

In the death of Dr Baker, society has sustained a serious loss. His intellect was of the first order, and well cultivated. As a physician, his judgement was sound and discriminating; and his attention to his patients was tender, kind, and indefatigable. As a son and brother, he was dutiful and affectionate, and as little tinged with selfishness as perhaps any of the present age. But all his fair prospects as a man, and a physician are obscured by the shades of death!!!

The painful conflict now is o'er,
Disease and death can do no more;
The well-formed dust rests in the grave—
The soul with Christ who came to save.

To the grave in silence down,
To the silent, rayless gloom,
In the chambers of the tomb,
He now has gone!
With his trustful, generous truth—
In his guileless, joyous youth;
In his gentle constancy,
In his young hearts purity;
Wearing life's wreath blooming, bright—
That had known no touch of blight;
With the genius God hath given—
In the very smile of Heaven:
Smiling all around above him,
Knowing none that did not love him.
He hath past away!
Ye who strove his flight to stay,
Well ye know that he you mourn
Never caused your hearts a pain,
Till he left you, to return
Never again!"

Land for Sale.

The subscriber having determined to remove West, offers for sale his TRACT of LAND on which he resides. There is between 8 and 900 acres, between 5 and 600 cleared and in excellent repair. On the plantation is two excellent settlements—TWO good TWO-STORY HOUSES at each place—Gin houses, saw, and every necessary out-building. The plantation lies in two and a half miles of a good landing on Savannah river. It is presumed no one would purchase without examination, as such further description is unnecessary—a bargain will be given. ROBERT E. BELCHER.
