

ence is irresistible that, in the course of circulation, it could not have been subjected to a much less continued friction than that of 30 years, which would bring us to the eventful period of the Great Rebellion, when numerous concealments of coin and treasure took place, which the unfortunate owners were not always allowed, by the fortunes of war, or other disastrous contingencies, the opportunity of regaining. In the present instance, the trifling amount of the "treasure-trove" leads us to suppose that the concealment might be referred to the industrious husbandman or thrifty housewife.

ANTIQUITIES DISCOVERED IN ASIA MINOR.
—A letter from Constantinople states that at the end of April a number of articles, in gold and silver, were discovered not far below the surface of the ground, at the town of Lipsic, the ancient Lampsacus, in Asia Minor. Among these objects, which are supposed to have been employed in the worship of Diana, are 40 silver spoons with square handles, and much larger than those used in modern days; a female bust terminates each handle, and the word Artemis, one of the names of Diana, perceptible on several of them; each weighs about 750 grammes—a round salver, nearly four feet in diameter, weighing 37 kilogrammes 540 grammes, having the figure of woman engraved on it, with a fox, a peacock, and a parrot near her, and two lions at her feet, with a child riding on each—a large silver dish with six angels, having on it two female heads engraved—a silver rod upwards of six feet long, composed of four pieces soldered together—four large silver goblets with massive handles—a large silver cylindrical vase, upwards of three feet high on three feet, adorned with arabesques—a silver flambeau, three feet high—a necklace in gold, of fine workmanship, weighing 450 grammes in it were set 40 large pearls, but they crumbled into dust on being touched. The Turkish Government has sent agents to have the surrounding ground excavated.

LENGTH OF HUMAN HAIR.—The ordinary length of the hair of the head, as deduced from its measurement in woman, ranges between twenty inches and a yard, the latter being considered usually long. But in some instances the length is much greater, as in case of a lady in whom I am informed, it measures two yards, and trails on the ground when she stands erect. When, however, hair is kept closely shaved, it appears to become persistent, and at the same time increases in strength and bulk. It has been calculated by a curious investigator, (Withof,) that the hair of the beard grows at the rate of one line and a half in the week; this will give a length of six inches and a half in the course of a year, and for a man eighty years of age, twenty-seven feet which have fallen before the edge of the razor. Such an amount of growth appears in no wise remarkable, when we learn from Eble that in the prince's court at Eidan there is a full length painting of a carpenter whose beard was nine feet long, so that, when engaged at work, he was obliged to carry it in a bag; and that the burgomester, Hans Stominger, having upon one occasion forgotten to fold up his beard, trod upon it as he ascended the staircase leading to the council chamber of Brunn, and was therefore thrown down and killed.

THE HOME EDUCATION OF GIRLS.
We are not a bachelor, but have attained to the state of double blessedness; and not only so, but honors of this respectable position have been since advanced biennially in regular geometrical progression. We may, therefore presume upon a right to speak of the Home Education of young girls and young ladies. Now it is our deliberate belief that the course of female education at the present day, is radically defective; the great end, being, not to make intelligent, useful, and agreeable members of society, but fine ladies. From the time the child leaves the nurse's arms till it blossoms into womanhood, all efforts, in far too many cases, are directed solely to this result. The cultivation of the affections; the discipline of the mental powers; and a practical and thorough preparation for actual duties, are too generally esteemed of secondary importance, compared with the external graces which are to make a figure in society.—And weak, fond mothers, never feel so gratified as when their daughters are able to exhibit the airs and flout in the plumage of fashionable fine ladies. If the world in which young ladies are afterwards to move, were an ideal world, as many of them seem to imagine,—if womanhood brought with it no cares; if friends were always to smile, and flatter, and caress, and life had no stern realities,—then all this might be well enough. But it is not so. And to many a one the spell, which at this blissful period promised but golden blessings in the future, has been abruptly broken, only to reveal to them, in the bitterness of grief, how poorly the ideal qualified them to enforce the actual.

The silliest of all notions that ever entered the minds of young ladies and of their mammae, is, that it is disreputable to be acquainted with any habits of useful industry. In this country, at least, where few parents can bequeath to their daughters, large fortunes; and where few husbands can support them in idleness, this, of all others, is the most ridiculous phantasy. There is certainly no reason in the nature of things, why young ladies should not be trained to industrious habits in such duties as are fittingly theirs, than there is that young men should not. Yet many mothers, who are fully aware of the absurdity of bringing up their sons in idleness, wear out their own lives in willing slavery, that their daughters may have the fashionable acquisition of not knowing any useful employment.

This is short-sighted and mistaken tenderness.—If, then, daughters are left without supporters, will this tender nurturing avail to feed, and clothe, and protect them? Or, in a more fortunate event, will it give the foresight, the prudence, the skill which the duties of maturer life demand? Depend upon it, fair readers, however much more accomplishments may commend to the admiration of the flatterers, yet few sensible men want wives merely as ornaments to their household establishments, but as companions and help-mates in the duties and cares which inevitably devolve upon them.

What is there in the habits of industry that need necessarily affect unfavorably the accomplishments of a young lady? Any thing that should make them think meanly, or act unworthily? Any thing that should produce rudeness of conversation, or awkwardness of manners? Any thing that should in any degree, blunt their perceptions of what is correct in taste, or becoming in conduct? No, nothing—assuredly nothing. Let them, then, learn to knit and sew, to bake and wash, and cook dinners, and darn stockings and all other arts of accomplished housewifery. It will impart to them a vigor of constitution; an elasticity and grace of movement; and a bloom of health that are a thousand times more endearing than the soft and sickly delicacy which is nurtured in luxurious idleness.
