

Arrow Escape. Mr. Gon Wool, Senator Weller and his accomplished lady, with a party of friends, met with an accident lately in California, which had very nearly proved fatal to all. They had been on a pleasure and business tour to the northern boundary of the State, when it occurred. One of the party thus writes: "It was about 9 o'clock in the evening, we had just taken fresh horses, and we were descending a mountain over a very dangerous road, a portion of which skirted the very brink of a precipice, but we were hardly a mile and a half from Nevada, when the driver mistaking a large stump for a shadow, (the moon being very bright,) drove heedlessly forward, and striking the obstacle, broke the pole of our coach. Immediately the horses began running at a terrible rate, the driver losing all control. We braced ourselves as well as we could, mementoirily anticipating the shock of an upset, as soon as the vehicle should strike full against one of the many stumps which lay in our course. One gentleman jumped from the stage, and was hurt severely; the rest of us sat as firm as possible, uttering not a word, but awaiting breathlessly the catastrophe which we felt must ensue. On we went, hurrying toward a fearful precipice, which some of the party knew was but a few rods in advance of us, when, providentially, the horses swerved suddenly from the road, and dashed into the woods. The few minutes' running time' seemed weeks to us, but at length two immense stumps presented themselves; the first was grazed sufficiently to fill the vehicle upon the other, where it became wedged, whilst the horses disengaged, dashed headlong forward. There we were fixed; the windows of the stage about a foot from the ground, and we so firmly braced against each other that the shock of stoppage had been scarcely felt. Gen. Wool scrambled out of the window first, and we followed as speedily as possible. The poor driver had been thrown twenty feet and lay speechless his collar bone broken. We apprehend some of the 'insiders must be severely hurt, but happily all escaped with a few scratches, save only the gentleman who had jumped out and who was found senseless on the road some distance back.

ARRESTED.—We announced last week the homicide of John Sharpe on Monday night, the 11th, by his brothers James and Doctor—then misnamed David Sharpe. It is now made our duty to state that our worthy new sheriff, after several days spent in making the necessary preparations, and diligently searching for them with his posse comitatus, succeeded in arresting them on Sunday evening of this week (the 17th) and safely lodging them in the jail of the county, where they will remain until the spring term of our Superior Court shall sit to try them for their lives.

The contiguity of our county to a neighboring State, the increasing facilities for criminals to elude the vigilance of the law, and the appalling multiplications of felonies in these degenerate days, ought to admonish our authorities of the necessity and propriety of adopting and enforcing more stringent and efficient police regulations. We would, at any rate, recommend to the County Court the expediency of appointing a coroner for each Captain's District in the county, and to our sheriff that of stationing one deputy at least, in each of the same. Charlotte Whig.

DEATH OF A DISTINGUISHED LADY.—Mrs. Ann Bayard, of Delaware, died in Philadelphia on the 10th inst., in the 77th year of her age. Her father, Richard Basset, was the first United States Senator elected by the State of Delaware. Her husband, Jas. A. Bayard, represented Delaware in both Houses of Congress. In 1801 he was appointed Minister to France, in 1814 he was one of the commissioners who negotiated the treaty of Ghent, and in 1815 was appointed Minister to Russia. He died the same year. Richard Bayard, a son of the deceased Mrs. Bayard, was formerly Charge to Belgium; and Jas. A. Bayard, another son, is at present United States Senator from Delaware.

A BACKWOODSMAN'S RECOMMENDATION.—I can't bear egotism. I never like to praise myself; but humanly speaking, I can double up any two men in these diggins, take the bark off a tree by looking at it; and bore a hole through a board fence with my eyes.—But I don't praise myself. I leaves others to give my character; and if they give it true, they will say that I am seven horses to ride, well addicted for the forest; as strong as a horse, and as swift as a wild cat—always ready for a knock down, and a match for seven buffaloes. But I don't want to brag of myself, only if all I've said is not true, there's not a sober man this side of Salt River, who desires to tell me so.

On the morning of the election, Mr. Trimmer, one of the candidates for the office of constable in a town out west, said to his confidential servant man, "You must keep your eyes open to-day, Jerry. Always see what is to be done, and do it. Remember that the saving of one vote may put me in. You try now to do your work, and I'll reward you into office. And one thing I want you to bear in mind. There will be some speechifying and of course I'll be called on; so, the moment you hear my name proposed, I want you and your friends to be ready with three cheers." Jerry had a thick skull, and a dull brain; but considerable scratching of his cranium, he brightened up, and said that he understood his master perfectly, and he could depend upon him. "That's right," said Mr. Trimmer. "You are a stupid fellow, sometimes, Jerry, but you can make yourself useful when you will. And Jerry—Don't forget the three cheers."

The polls were opened. At first the election was a dull business—but towards the middle of the forenoon, the people began to assemble, and considerable excitement was raised. The party to which Mr. Trimmer belonged made the Red Tavern their headquarters. Liquor was drank in the bar-room, and speeches were made on the steps, all for the public good. Mr. Trimmer's purse was opened and so was his mouth. He treated the crowd to bad liquor and worse harangues; while Jerry at the same time made himself useful. Affairs prospered favorably, when, after a few set speeches had been made from the tavern steps, some one called for—"Trimmer!" "Trimmer! Trimmer!" echoed the crowd—and now was the critical moment. The candidate for constable had done his share of talking that day, but this was the first time he had been called on for a speech. He pressed through the crowd and reached the open space allotted to the speakers. "Trimmer! Trimmer!" cried a small boy somewhere in the crowd. Trimmer bowed. Trimmer cast his eyes about him to see what had become of Jerry. "Hem!" coughed the candidate, a little disconcerted. "Put'er through!" screamed the boy. Trimmer bowed and attempted a smile. But he had set his heart on three cheers, and he needed them to encourage him. After some hesitation, however, he began: "Fellow citizens— A dead silence followed. "Hem!—this day is one of—of—importance to the country!" Trimmer glanced his eyes around him for some manifestation of approbation. How he cursed the stupid Jerry in his heart, for not breaking the embarrassing silence with a tumultuous applause! "A day, fellow citizens—" He was cut short by the most provoking of spectacles. Jerry and a companion were elbowing their way through the crowd towards the speaker. "Give us room!" cried Jerry. "Out of the way here! Let us pass." Having attracted the popular eye, and drawn attention entirely from the speaker to himself, he emerged from the crowd with his companion, and placed directly under the eyes of the horrified Mr. Trimmer, a stool and two chairs. "What does this mean?" whispered Mr. Trimmer, turning white, then flushing very red. "Well," said Jerry, loud enough to be heard by the crowd, "I couldn't do no better. You said you wanted three cheers, but we couldn't get but two cheers and a stool!" Up went a roar of laughter, and down went the disconcerted candidate. The confusion was great, the speechifying was at an end, and Jerry's mis take about the "three cheers" defeated Trimmer's election.

THE REASON WHY.—A clergyman preaching a dull sermon, set all his congregation asleep, except one fellow who was deficient in intellect. At length the Rev. orator, looking around, exclaimed, with great indignation, "what! all asleep, but this poor idiot!" "Aye," quoth the fellow, "and if I had not been an idiot, I should have gone to sleep too?"

CONSIDERABLY TRUE.—A rhyming bachelor in the Boston Post, thinks that sleigh-riding, in a cold night is not what it is cracked up to be—and concludes his discretion as follows: "Some love to roam o'er the dark sea foam, When the winds w'stle free— But to ride for fun, and freeze one's nose, Is not the life for me."

THE BEST CURE FOR HARD TIMES IS ECONOMY. A shilling's worth of white beans will do as much feeding as fifty cents worth of potatoes; while six cents worth of Indian meal will make as much bread as fourteen cents worth of flour.

Mechanics, Manufacturers, and Inventors. A new volume of the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN commences about the middle of September in each year. It is a journal of Scientific, Mechanical, and other improvements; an advocate of industry in all its various branches. It is published weekly in a form suitable for binding, and constitutes at the end of each year, a splendid volume of 400 pages, with a copious index, and from five to six hundred original engravings, together with a great amount of practical information concerning the progress of invention and discovery throughout the world. The Scientific American is the most widely circulated and popular journal of the kind now published. Its Editors, Contributors, and Correspondents are among the ablest practical scientists in the world. The Patent Claims are published weekly, and are invaluable to Inventors and Patentees. We particularly warn the public against paying money to travelling agents, as we are not the habit of furnishing certificates of agency any one. Letters should be directed to MUX & CO., 128 Fulton street, N. Y.

The Southern Cultivator. A MONTHLY JOURNAL, devoted exclusively to the improvement of Southern Agriculture, Stock Breeding, Poultry, Bees, General Farm Economy, &c. THE OCEANIC TRAVELER. A large octavo of Thirty-two pages, forming a volume of 324 pages in the two parts, contains a much greater amount of reading matter than any similar publication in the South—embracing in addition to the current agricultural topics of the day, valuable original contributions from many of the most intelligent and practical Planters, Farmers and Horticulturists in every section of the South and South-west. Terms. One Copy, one year, $1; Six Copies, one year, $7. The Cash System will be rigidly adhered to, and in no instance will the paper be sent until the money accompanies the order. The Bills, all appearing, are paid, received at par. A money remitted by mail, post-paid, will be at the risk of the Publisher. Address, WILLIAM K. JONES, Augusta, Ga. Persons who will not be agents, and obtain subscribers, will be furnished with the paper at club prices. May 25, 1854.

Great Economy in Time & Labor. THE SUBSCRIBER respectfully informs his friends and the public generally that he has purchased the right to manufacture the above Churn, and is now prepared to execute all orders for the same. Its simplicity is such as to be understood by every intelligent child, and its construction is on truly and strictly philosophical principles, and produces the desired result in a almost incredible short time. The superior qualities of this Churn are as follows: First, the quick and easy process of making butter when using it in a dairy. Secondly, its overcoming the difficulty which produces a wheying to overflow, and, Thirdly, the gathering process, in separating the butter from the milk and preparing for setting. Persons wishing Churns can find them at the subscriber's work-shop near the corner of Main and Duane streets. J. R. MERRILL. Greenville, June 5.

SOUTH CAROLINA TEMPERANCE STANDARD. THE UNDERSIGNED would respectfully announce to the friends of Temperance generally that they intend to commence the publication of a Temperance Paper, about the 15th of June next, provided a sufficient number of subscribers can be obtained to warrant the undertaking. It will be printed upon substantial paper of Imperial size, and will contain 24 columns of matter. It will be denominated the "South Carolina Temperance Standard," and will be published every two weeks, at the price of One Dollar per annum. As soon as fifteen hundred subscribers are obtained, we will publish it weekly at the same price. Our sole object is to advocate the cause of Temperance; and particularly the Legislative Prohibition of the Traffic in Intoxicating Drinks; and to prepare the masses of the people of our State, for the enactment of such a Law, by convincing them of its expediency and necessity. We will endeavor to make it a well-advised into its columns of a worthless and immoral Agency. A strict neutrality will be maintained on all subjects of a political and religious sectarian character. No subscription will be received for less than one year, and in every case the order must be accompanied by the money. We hope all persons feeling an interest in the success of this enterprise, will exert themselves in getting subscriptions, and as soon thereafter as convenient send us their lists. Post-masters are requested to act as Agents. All communications intended for the paper must be post paid, and addressed to the "South Carolina Temperance Standard," Lexington, C. H., S. C. S. K.
