

Poetry.

From a London Paper.

BY LORD BN ON HIS OWN DOMESTIC CIRCUMSTANCES.

FARE THEE WELL.

Fare thee well! and if forever—
Still for ever, fare thee well—
Even though unforgiving, never
'Gainst thee shall my heart rebel.
Would that breast were bared before thee
Where thy head so oft hath lain,
While that placid sleep came o'er thee
Which thou ne'er can'st know again;
Would that breast by thee glanced o'er,
Every inmost thought could shew;
Then thou would'st at last discover
'Twas not well to spurn it so.
Though the world for this commend thee—
Though it smile upon the blow,
Even its praises must offend thee,
Founded on another's woe.
Though my many faults defaced me;
Could no other arm be found
Than the one which once embraced me,
To inflict a cureless wound!
Yet—oh, yet—thyself deceive not—
Love may sink by low decay,
But by sudden wrench, believe not,
Hearts can thus be torn away;
Still thine own life retaineth—
Still must mine—though bleeding—beat,
And the undying thought which paineth
Is—that we no more may meet—
These are words of deeper sorrow
Than the wail above the dead,
Both shall live—but every morrow
Wake us from a widowed bed.
And when thou would'st solace gather—
When our child's first accents flow—
Will thou teach her to say "Father!"
Though his care must forego?
When her little hands shall press thee—
When her lip to thine is prest—
Think of him whose prayer shall bless thee;
Think of him thy love had blessed.
Should her lineaments resemble
Those thou never more may'st see—
Then thy heart will softly tremble
With a pulse yet true to me.
All my faults—perchance thou knowest—
All my madness none can know;
All my hopes—where'er thou goest—
Whither—yet with thee they go—
Every feeling hath been shaken,
Pride—which not a world could bow—
Bows to thee—by thee forsaken,
Even my soul forsakes me now.
But 'tis done—all words are idle—
Words from me are vain as still;
But the thoughts we cannot bridle
Force their way without the will.
Fare thee well!—thus distinguished—
Torn from every nearer tie—
Scared in heart—and lone—and blighted,
More than this I scarce can die.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Recent Separation in high life.—Though the separation of Lord and Lady BYRON, has taken place by mutual consent, it is nevertheless certain that on the part of his Lordship the consent was given with much reluctance, and not till after he had in vain written three letters to her Ladyship, entreating reconciliation. Lady Byron, on due consideration of all the circumstances, remained inflexible; and it may easily be conceived that the provocation must have been great indeed, which stealed a bosom tender, and rendered obdurate the heart of one of the sweetest and most amiable creatures with which heaven has ever blessed and adorned the society of man.

A FOUNDLING.

Some time since an infant was left in the entry of a house, in the fifth ward of this city. The child was carefully laid in a basket, and had a note attached to its frock, of which the following is a copy:

"For sweet charity's sake receive me—innocent, helpless, fatherless and cold; urged, as I am, into a world, without a friend. Oh, let me not die; but under your hospitable roof protect me, and I, in gratitude, will repay—nourish and train my growing years to virtue, and I will be your solace in declining life. My natural father has returned again to mother earth. My natural mother, writhing with convulsive agonies, joyless and despairing, fast hastening to the tomb. Be then to me a father, and you shall in no wise lose your reward. The Redeemer of the world took little children in his arms, and I beseech you imitate the divine benevolent example.

"A friendless, helpless orphan, aged 3 days."

New-York paper.

Something Singular.—There is now in a store in Boston, a rat, nearly full grown, which is nursed by a cat, in company with a kitten! it appears the cat had lost one of her kittens, and having seized the rat carried it to the basket, completely domesticated it, and treats it as her own offspring! The cat is a famous rat catcher, and has killed a great number since she took the favoured one under her protection.

The duke of R— going on horseback upon a visit to a worthy clergyman at Nacton, near Landguard Fort, to take the diversion of shooting, desired a simple rustic about sixteen, who was servant in the family, to take care and rub down his horse, and not give him any water, when the lad replied, "yes maister—no maister," on which the groom, who stood by, severely rebuked him for his rudeness, telling him that the person who alighted was a great man, "and whenever he bids you do any thing, (said the groom) you must be sure to say Your Grace."—Young Hob treasured up in his memory the advice which he had received: a few days after, when the Duke mounted his horse, he bade the lad take the stirrup a hole lower; the boy with great solemnity answered, "For what we are going to receive the Lord make us thankful!"

A young man, who was paying his addresses to an Irish girl, who gained so far her affections, that she had consented to attend him to the temple of Hymen, when some economical fears arose in his breast which cooled the flame Cupid had kindled: he therefore waited on his destined bride and began to talk of hard times, and household expenses, till her patience being exhausted, she very fairly turned him out of the house. Her mistress hearing the noise called to know what it was, "nothing madam, (replied she) but kicking the cares of life out of doors."

A Spanish lady gives the following as her reasons why an old man should take a young wife. "We make old trees young by grafting them. That plants may not be frost bitten we cover them up. The palm tree will not bear fruit unless her companion grows near her. I hope you are not like that philosopher, who, on being asked what was the proper age to marry, answered, "when a man is young, it is too early; when old, too late."

ABSENT FRIENDS.

When pleasures lag at music's strain,
And mirth assails the heart in vain,
To pensive thoughts the bosom bends,
And finds a theme of absent friends.

Notice.

THE citizens of Camden are respectfully informed, that the subscriber has associated himself with an ASSISTANT TEACHER, Mr. BELZAR of Charleston, a graduate of S. C. College.—We will teach Reading, Writing, Arithmetic, English Grammar, Geography, the first principles of Astronomy, the Latin and Greek languages, Mensuration and Geometry, Moral Philosophy, Sheridan's Lectures and Oratory. I shall attend to the Girls in every branch, and to the Boys in every one except Reading, Writing, Sheridan's Lectures and Oratory, in which Mr. Belzar will instruct them. Young men wishing to enter the junior class in College may be qualified by attending the instructions of my School. Should the increase of my School make it necessary, I will build an additional room to my School-house, and the Girls will be taught as aforesaid in one room and the Boys in another. The terms of Tuition may be known by application to the subscriber.

JESSE POPE.

Camden, June 12, 1816.

20 Dollars Reward.

RANAWAY from the subscriber on the 10th inst. two Negroes, ANDREW and his wife NANCY.—Andrew is about 5 feet 9 or 10 inches high, dark complexion, round face, wears his whiskers and is about 25 years old.—Had on when he went away a straw hat, white homespun round jacket, shirt and pantaloons. Nancy is a mulatto wench, about 30 years old, spare made, with some of her front teeth out; has some marks on her arms occasioned by the whip; wears her hair platted, had on a white homespun frock. They took with them other clothing and their bedding. The above negroes were brought from near Salisbury, in N. Carolina, by one Arkey Pardee, and sold in Clarendon county, S. C. in July last, and it is presumed they will try to get back again. Any person that will take them up and secure them in a jail so that I may get them again shall receive the above reward.
