The Hon. JOSEPH BREVARD, is a candidate for Congress, to supply the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Stephen D. Miller Esq.

[Translated from the French, for the City of Washington Gazette.]
French Colony near Mexico.

Extract of a letter from a French settler, which was communicated for the June No. of the L'Abelille Americaine.

"We are established at the mouth of the river Trinity, on the Orcaquinas bluff, twenty feet above the level of the river at high water; upon this is a fine wood covered with trees;—adjoining to this is the Grand Prairie, or Prairie of Tolcasitas, which is, at least, fifteen miles from north to south, and which extends eastward to a gap that communicates with Lake Savinbine; the land is of the first quality, easily cultivated; we have around us an immense tract, which promises the richest productions to those willing to labor a little. The game covers the country in flocks; there is abundance of cows, of bulls, and wild horses may be got with ease. The waters are full of fish: and our inhabitants who have surveyed east of the river, say the country is still superior; it is interspersed with most beautiful lakes, watering the most magnificent hills, where there are also many animals particularly wild goats—all this land is in sugar, cotton and indigo.

We have already seen the chiefs of the Indian nations, we have smoked the large Indian pipe of peace; we have reciprocally made slight feasts; they come every day with provisions; we are abundantly supplied with fresh meat, and have all sufficient salt and smoked.

Our colony is established in a spacious fertile country, abundant in resources, at the mouth of a river which empties into a fine bay; where the settlement of all people might prosper as quickly as in any country in the world. We have no occasion to from any extravagant enterprise, nor to commit hostility against those who hate; we make no other use of our arms than to repulse any aggressions; but we are resolved to defend the fields we have cultivated. Victims of event, none can deny us the right of our labor, our industry, and attention to social order. All is here that nature can desire in a hand abounding with every production that can be wished; we open an asylum to men who find themselves in the same situation with us. If success crown our efforts we shall have rendered an important service to our unhappy countrymen; if, on the contrary, we should not succeed, we shall at least have the satisfaction of attempting.—We have no fear of fatigue or privations in the beginning; our aim is laudable, our intentions pure and honorable and we devoutly hope in this event we obtain the wishes and approbation of honest men, of good will and judgment."
