Great Battle Expected.

Rapid and Astounding movement in Tennessee.—Highly important despatches were received yesterday by Congress, giving intelligence of an impending and critical battle at Corinth, in the vicinity of the Grand Junction of the Memphis and Charleston and Mobile and Ohio Railroads. These despatches state positively that Gen. Johnston had made a sudden circuit from Mufresboro, via Decatur, confronting the whole force of Buell that had been moved from Nashville down the Tennessee River, and the advance of which last heard of at Savannah, which is on the river, about fifteen miles from where it crosses the Mississippi line. Gen. Beauregard was at last accounts, at Jackson, in Madison County, within easy reach of Johnston's army. These wide movements of the forces in Tennessee have been wholly unexpected; but the despatches giving the intelligence of them are entirely reliable, and one of the most critical battles that has yet been fought in the West is immediately anticipated on the borders of the State as Mississippi.—Richmond Examiner, 19th.

Journalism in New York.

Contemporaneously with the great war of the North upon the South, a private war, of equal bitterness, has raged uninterruptedly between Bennett of the New York Herald, and Greely of the New York Tribune. In a recent issue Greely expresses his opinion of Bennett in the following plain sentence:

"He is old in his wickedness; but even his age has given him that discretion which the experienced villain employs to cloak his crime with; he is apt in his wickedness, but cannot conceal it; he is effective with his wickedness, but does not hide it; he knows no shame, as he seems ignorant of any law for venality, treason and moral pollution of every shape and form."

To which Bennett the next day coolly replies: "The old wizzened knight of the White Liver begins to cower and quail beneath the fearless, honest and manly assault of the Herald like tissue paper before flames. If one were asked to select a fit subject for the gallows, we should unhesitatingly pick that horrible monster Greely."

The public will believe that either side has reason and Justice, and the truth of one does not interfere in the slightest degree with the veracity of the other.

Capt. F. Buchanan, the hero of the great naval combat, is a glorious old man. For many years he had served under the old flag and had but a short time before the revolution broke out been promoted to the office of Commodore. He was in Baltimore some time after the war broke out, but made his way South through the West. He has two daughters in Georgia, twin sisters, and most estimable ladies. One is the wife of Mr. G. P. Screven, Jr., of Savannah, Ga.; the other of Lieutenant Miere, of the Confederate States Navy. His youngest and favorite brother was Purser on the ill fated Congress; and it is a matter of history, and proves the unselfish patriotism of Capt. Buchanan, that the fire of the Virginia on the Congress was particularly severe. We hear that he is also related to Commodore Goldsboro, of the United States Navy, whose flag ship is the Minnesota, and which narrowly escaped destruction at the hands of the Virginia. Capt. B. has immortalized himself by the victory in Hampton Roads, and will live in history associated with the grandest naval achievement of this or any other age.—Milledgeville (Ga.) Union.

VÆ VICTIS.

The Yankee invaders in Wayne county, Ky., a few days ago, gave James Belcher, Esq., twenty-eight lashes for going into their camp after his runaway negro. Mr. Belcher was recently a member of the State Legislature, and socially he stands as high as any man in the county of Wayne. Gentlemen of the South this is what you have to expect if you fail!
