PROSPECTUS

CAMDEN JOURNAL

THE subscriber, having purchased the establishment, intends to continue its publication.

There has not, perhaps, been a period of six months, in the last twenty-five years, that Camden has been without a newspaper, and it would be a vile slander on the character of her citizens, to suppose that they will not support one now.

If there be any of our citizens, either in the town or elsewhere, who feel an interest in the continuance of the Journal, and who are not already subscribers, they have an opportunity of manifesting that interest by becoming so now.

The Proprietor has engaged the services of Mr. John C. West, in the Editorial department—consequently, the political character will undergo no change.

It will sustain the doctrines of the Republican Party—the rights of the States and the integrity of the Union.

Strict attention will be paid to the Price Current; and weekly remarks made during the season in relation to cotton, which may be relied on for their correctness.

Terms of Subscription.—$3 per annum in advance—$3 50 cts. at the end of six months, or $4 at the conclusion of the year.

CIRCULAR.

THE BOARD OF TRADE OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK, respectfully address the following circular to the Merchants of the United States, who trade with the city.

You are aware that on the night of the 16th of December last, an unprecedented Conflagration destroyed an important portion of our city between Wall and Broad streets, embracing the stores of many wealthy and enterprising Merchants.

Least apprehensions should prevail that this loss may render our merchants unable to furnish the usual amount and variety of merchandise heretofore exhibited in this market.

The Board of Trade therefore deem it proper to give this public assurance that none need postpone their usual time of visiting the city, confident that they will find the market as well supplied as usual, and their correspondents equally able to supply their demands.

DR. B. PRATT'S ARTIFICIAL NIPPLE.

THE Subscribers have just purchased a supply of the above instrument, which has been successfully used for the last two or three years for that distressing complaint, sore or excoriated nipples; or where the nipple is entirely wanting; or where the child's mouth is so sore that it cannot nurse on the natural nipple.—The artificial nipple is recommended by the highest medical authorities on the subj. et. in this country. Dr. Dewees of Philadelphia, and Dr. Sewall of Washington City, as the certificates annexed will attest; to which the medical faculty of this place, give their entire concurrence, having witnessed its successful application.

Dr. Elijah Pratt,

DEAR SIR: As I feel it a matter of much public importance, to possess a means of lessening the terrible suffering from sore nipples; I have much pleasure in being able to say, that the shield you offer for the preventing and cure of this malady, is better adapted to the purpose than any I have heretofore seen. In two or three instances, I have known them to be highly successful satisfaction has been expressed, and have no hesitation to believe, it will generally succeed. I am so well persuaded of this, at this moment, that I cannot forbear to express a wish, that our City, through the various Apothecaries, may be supplied with them.

I am, yours, &c. M. P. DEWEES, M. D. Philadelphia, Jan. 13th, 1834.

Washington City, February 4th, 1834.

Having examined Dr. Pratt's newly invented nipple shields, and witnessed its practical applications among my patients, I take great pleasure in recommending it as decidedly superior to a y thing previously known. It constitutes a perfect remedy for that distressing malady, sore nipples, a disease which so frequently afflicts nursing women.

THOMAS SEWALL, M. D. Prof. Anat. & Physiology, Columbus Colleg. D. C.

MISCELLANEOUS.

From the New York Mirror. THE TABLES TURNED—A TALE OF LEAP-YEAR. Best Youth about Town.

Reader, did you ever in your boyish days (for I assume on my own responsibility the fact that you were once young,) when you almost literally felicitate the gods above a few leaves, by comely called a book, so filled, with pictures arrayed in colors, by passing in brilliancy the laughing attempts of Nature, did you ever while in the boyish state of existence, met with a few work representing the world turned upside down—fancying up for us, (this for you Izaak Walton) books drawn by these famous drivers, (alas for our omnibus Jemmy) and divers other such ingenious devices! If you are so very fortunate as to have seen this production of genius, then only can you form any conception of the state of anxiety and existing in the masculine realm.

The sun was brightly beaming on the second day of a new year, upon a fair dandy, who had ascended almost at the instant, the steps of a young lady's lodgings in Broadway. The bell was rung, and while they are waiting its response, I will honor you, my reader, with an introduction to them; so that should one of them chance to lose her footing you may be at liberty to pick her up. When I allude to the damsel who fair, I spoke metaphorically only; for though Miss Dorothea Bridget Beaumont was fair at the whim of your eye, as the reader, and was blessed with locks as raven as your child's—our other hero, a Miss Emeline Julia Adeline Stubb, reminds you of the dark d. way bluish on the cheek, which tells how rich a soul of sweetness dwells within.

For my own part, I must confess a lacking preference for Miss Emeline Julia Adeline Stubb; especially as the damsel the fragment of her name may be very easily changed into a course, as the lady she was called. By this time the damsel must be by it; so we will allow Pompey to usher the ladies into the drawing room, and then I call his master, who is in his study. Our hero, when he is introduced, gazes at each other with a full of fire, each instinctively drawing the purpose of the other. Looks were not loved by words, and the night (I mean) was the fear of the fair sex before my eyes) have been succeeded by do do, and do, the damsel interposed in the form of the beloved Thomas Stubb. (I like to distinguish, by means of name as well as by character, from the common herd of mankind,) upon whose aid succor the rounded waves of passion subsided to a dead calm, and the mountainous sea of their sex became as flat and as plain as the sea.

"Well, ladies," cried Thomas Smith, after the usual salutations, "to what I am indebted for the pleasure of this visit!" Miss Stubb blushed, and Miss Beaumont sentimentally cast down her eyes, and applied her handkerchiefs to the protuberance just below them.

"Ah!" sighed Miss Dorothea, "have you forgotten that it is leap-year?" with another sigh. "You know our privilege," with a smile. "You must be sensible of your attractions," with a fond look called in vulgar parlance a sheep's eye, a very appropriate term on the present occasion. "You will forgive my apparent forwardness," with an attempt at a blush, "and attribute it to the overflowing of my heart towards you, my dear Thomas," with a sigh a blush, and some symptoms of a tear.

"I am aware, Mr. Smith," said Miss Emeline in her turn, "that I am overstepping the limits which custom has prescribed to my sex; but I disdain such narrow prejudices. I have long loved you supremely, but constantly. While you have lavished your attentions on those who valued them not, I have hoarded up the most trifling words which you have chanced to bestow upon me, and brooded over it secretly, as the miser over his treasure, I need not now recall my alternate fears and hopes; the ecstasy into which a kind look of yours has often thrown me; or the bitter despondency in to which I have sunk when carelessly noticed by you—May you never feel the agonies which I have suffered! I now burst the biggest fetters of privacy, and obeying only the dictates of my heart, I avow my ardent love.

"Really, ladies," said Mr. Smith, "I should be very happy to oblige either or both of you, but unfortunately you are a day too late; for I was married last night!"

A flood of tears relieved Miss Emeline, and a fit of hysterics Miss Dorothea. Just at this crisis Pompey entered with a very elongated visage and whispered— "Massa massa! three more ladies at the door come courting."

"Surely," sighed the half distracted Thmas as he rushed out of the room, "surely it must have been a leap-year that ored Cooper to exclaim— 'Oh, for a lodge in some vast wilderness.'"
