TO HIM WHO CAN BEST UNDERSTAND IT

He who has left his youthful bride,
And children young and fair,
To float on Fortune's doubtful tide
Borne on, he knows not where,
The lines perchance may coldly spurn
That ask the wanderer's return

Yet Oh! the unwilling heart forgive
That dares to trouble thine,
I would not seek to make thee grieve
But for these babes of mine:
These Treasures sent us from above,
The pledges of our mutual love

For them I plead—I speak not now
Of what my lot hath been,
Nor how for thee I left my home
And each familiar scene,
And sought the distant hills of A ——
For sweet with thee were even they.

I hailed the mountain's proudest swell,
The forest's darkest pride,
The beaten rock, the rugged dell,
For thou wert by my side,
And earth's worst wilderness is dear,
Is fair, when those we love are near.

But thou hast left thy dark-eyed boys,
In distant paths to roam:
A gambler's life for thee has joys,
But not, alas! thy home.
Thy children weep amid their play,
And I am far more lone than they.

Our babes for very want of bread
Have been compelled to roam,
And now on public bounty fed,
Find a precarious home
While he who should their guardian be
Has left them to their misery.

My boy, the eldest and the first,
The image of his sire,
Will into tears of sorrow burst
And thus of me inquire—
"Mother dear mother! tell me when
My father will come back again."

Yet go, thou false deserter go!
And if some happier dame
Has kindled in thy breast the glow
Of love a deceitful flame,
Oh, hear me! fairer she may be,
But she will never love like me

And oh, vouchsafe one little hour,
If to entreaty we,
That I may to my fate resign
When all its ills I know
And leave me not without a word!
To fade and die with hope deferred

Then leave to pining shame and me
Thy long deserted spouse
To mourn over woman's broken vow!
And man's deceitful vows,—
May'st thou ne'er know the smallest part
Of that which wrings a breaking heart!

Notice.

The subscribers have lately moved near the corner of Dekalk and Broad streets one door below John M. Nicolon's store, where they will continue to make Saddles and all kinds of Saddles, Carriage, Barouch, Gig and Wagon Harness of every description, in the most fashionable style, and warranted superior to any made in the country, also, Trunks, Collars and Negro Shoes.

They have for sale a general supply of good Sole, Upper, Harness and Bend Leather, leather and work given in exchange for hides.

PUBLISHING IN CHARLESTON S C

A SEMI MONTHLY PERIODICAL

TO BE ENTITLED THE

Southern Botanic Journal

In compliance with the numerous solicitations of the friends of the Thomsonian System, the subscribers have concluded to publish a paper to be called the SOUTHERN BOTANIC JOURNAL, to be devoted to the support of the Thomsonian System of practice of medicine, by publishing such facts in relation to the same as will convey correct knowledge to the people, and useful information to those who have adopted the practice in their families.

The Journal will have nothing to do with politics or religion, but shall be devoted to the true interest of the South, so far as is consistent with the original design of the work. It shall be the constant aim of the publishers to lay before their readers all the information they can, with regard to the botanic practice, in the form of essays, and correct reports of difficult cases, the treatment of the same, and the rationale of the remedies—to select from other works all the information calculated to be useful and interesting to the readers of the Botanic Journal.

The publishers will endeavor to render this work a book of reference for the Planter and others who possess Thomson's family right. They flatter themselves that they will be able to lay matters before the scientific reader as well conducted as the last—they will endeavor to deserve the support and attention of the philanthropist, at least in attention, if not in real merit. The friends of truth shall find its cause advocated on every page of the Botanic Journal, as they are determined not to swerve from truth, nor suffer their prejudices to suppress any thing that is likely to prove beneficial to their fellow man. The cause of humanity shall be fearlessly advocated, and no pains spared to render the work worthy of its patrons.

The Southern Botanic Journal will be issued every other Saturday in Charleston S. C. each No. containing sixteen Octavo pages on a super royal sheet. There will be three pages for advertisements on the cover to accompany each copy—that the whole of the paper will be filled
