From the New Orleans Sunday Times. THE SOLDIER'S GRAVE. Tread lightly-'tis a soldier's grave, A lonely, mossy mound-And yet, to hearts like mine and thine, It should be holy ground.

Speak gently-let no careless laugh, No idle, thoughtless jest, Escape your lips, where sweetly sleeps The hero in his rest.

For him no reveille shall beat, When morning beams shall come; For him, at night, no tatoo rolls Its thunder from the drum.

No costly marble marks the place, Recording deeds of fame, But rudely on that bending tree Is carved the soldier's name.

A name-not dear to us-but ah ! There may be lips that breathe That name as sacredly and low As vesper prayers at eve.

There may be brows that wear for him The mourning cypress vine; And hearts that make this lonely grave A holy pilgrim shrine.

There may be eyes that joyed to gaze With love into his own, Now keeping midnight vigils long With silent griefs alone.

There may be hands now clasp'd in prayer This soldier's hand have pressed, And cheeks washed pale by sorrow's tears, His own cold cheek caressed.

Tread lightly-for a man bequeathed, Ere laid beneath this sod, His ashes to his native land, His gallant soul to God!

BOILING FOOD FOR HOGS .- Af a meeting of the New York Farmer's Club, Prof. Mapes made the following remarks in regard to boiling food for hogs:

"The proof of the saving of food by boiling has been given here; we may as well have it. Mr. Mason was a watchmaker in Camden, N. J., among other fancies he liked to keep hogs. He had his hog pen built just back of his shop, so that he could sit at his window and watch his hogs-Every spring he bought some pigs and fed them through the season. Just opposite to Mr. Mason was the store of Mr. Van Arsdale, and every pound of food Mr Mason gave to his pigs he bought at his store. At the end of six months he got his bill from Mr. Van Arsdale, and he always slaughtered his hogs at the same time; so that he knew exactly how much his pork cost. For several years it figured up at thirteen cents per pound At length some one advised him to boil his corn. He accordingly got a large kettle and cooked all the food Blankets from $1.75, each, to $15,00 per pair. which he fed to his pigs. Then his pork cost him four-and a half cents per pound. We also had the expeper pound. We also had the expethe same as Mr. Mason's. Henry Ellsworth made some extensive experiments in the same thing, and his statement is that thirteen pounds of boiled corn, makes as much pork as

CURING MEAT.-We take the following, which we consider reliable, from the Southern Cultivator., It is in answer to an enquiry as to the best method of preventing the interference of insects:

thirty pounds of raw corn.

We submitted the enquiries of our correspondent to our friend Col. I. Wilkerson, of this place, who is as well posted and successfull in curing meat as any person we know in the business, and he gives us his process in a few words:

1st. Kill the hogs early. Late cured meat is much more subject to the attacks of insects, than that cured earlier in the scason. Meat should be fattened so as to kill during the cold spell that almost, if not always invariably comes between the 15th and 25th of November. It is cheaper to fatten meat at that time than later, and the curing is less troublesome and more certain.

2. Pack all your meat in casks of brine, immersing them a'l over, so as to exclude the air. Neither saltpetre or sugar are required for curing, but can be added, if liked. They will he salt enough in three or four weeks, according to size. Take them out and drain; smear over all the fleshy parts with a paste of syrup and black pepper, covering every exposed part; then hang up to dry in a light, airy house. Be certain to take plenty of black pepper—the red pep-per is of no use. The syrup is only employed to hold the pepper. Col. in this way, without smoke, which were laying in his store room ex-posed, which were perfectly sweet and sound.

In presenting the Automatic Organ, we boldly announce the greatest triumph in mu-sical instruments of the age. During the past half century, the French and Germans have manufactured reed instruments with double bellows, and two pedals for the feet to operate; but the want of the reversed or exhaustion bellows, (which is the only bellows used in our instruments,) made it impossible for them to produce the mellow, rich and mellow tone for which our instruments are cele-

Another objection to this method of blowing was, that both feet being occupied, no opportunity was offered for the management of the swell. Within the past two years, instru-ments constructed on this European plan of "double bellows" have been manufactured in this country, and to counteract this difficulty (want of a swell) a lever has been projected from the centre of the instrument, to act on the swell, and operated by the knee. The in-Has received complete renovation and theman, but to a lady the use of such an ap-pendage is nearly impossible.

Our Automatic device obviates this difficulty entirely, the simple act of blowing with more or less force giving the desired increase or decrease in the volume of the tone. We predict for this invention a brilliant future. MELODEON AND SCHOOL ORGAN

For seventeen years the superior excellence of our Melodeons has not been questioned, and for two years past the enormous demand has made it impossible for us to meet our orders promptly. With our increased facilities we feel warranted in assuring our patrons that their orders will be promptly met, and solicit a continuance of their patronage.
