A Common Thought.

Somewhere on this earthly planet,
In the dust of flowers to be,
In the dewdrops, in the sunshine,
Sleeps a solemn day for me.

At this wakeful hour of midnight,
I behold it dawn in mist,
And I hear a sound of sobbing
Through the darkness—hast! Oh, hast!

In a dim and murky chamber,
I am breathing life away;
Some one draws a curtain softly
And I watch the broadening day.

As it purples in the zenith,
As it brightens on the lawn;
There's a hush of death about me,
And a whisper, "He is gone."

Early Marriages.

Discussion in the British house of commons on the subject brought out information as to the earliest ages at which marriage may be legally solemnized in each of the States of continental Europe. In Austria it is 14 for both sexes; Hungary, 14 for males, 12 for females; Russia, 18 for males, 16 for females; Turkey, as soon as they are able; Italy, 18 for males, 15 for females; Prussia, 18 and 14; France and Belgium, 18 and 15; Denmark, 20 and 16; Greece, 14 and 12. In Hesse Darmstadt and Baden the consent of parents is necessary in the case of men until they have completed their 25th year; in that of women until they are twenty-one. The completion of 18 years by males and 16 by females is necessary in the Netherlands, and in Saxe-Coburg Gotha no male is permitted to marry before he has attained his 21st year. In Saxony the legal age for males is 15; for females 16 years. According to the amended paragraph of the new German civil marriage bill, the age would be, respectively 20 and 16 years, instead of 18 and 14, as in the draft bill. In some of the cantons of Switzerland the law as to the ages of the contracting parties is as high as 20 years for males and 17 for females, and in others as low as 14 for males and 12 for females.

Eli in Love.—Did you ever do anything in a state of indifference, Miss Julia? I asked an old sweet-heart of mine last night.

"Why, yes, certainly, Mr. Perkins—a good many times."

"What! did it with absolute, total indifference?"

"Yes; perfect complete indifference, Eli."

Well, Julia, my beloved," I said, taking her hand, "what is one thing you can do now with perfect indifference?"

"Why, listening to you, Eli." I postponed proposing.

A moment afterward my beloved grasped my hand convulsively, looked in my face, and said:

"Eli, such a devoted, warm-hearted man as you are, often make me feel very happy."

"How, darling?" I asked, too happy to live.

"Why by keeping away from me Eli?"

I haven't proposed yet.

The air which ventilates the Houses of Parliament passes through filters of cotton-wool. The appearance of the filters after having been used is startling indeed, they are of a heavy, murky brown color, thick with dust, and loaded with organic impurities. The sieve through which the air is first passed is deposited next them quite a heap of intercepted particles.

In the ancient ritual of marriage, the ring was placed by the husband on the top of the thumb of the left hand, with the words, 'In the name of the Father,' he then removed it to the forefinger, saying, 'and of the Son,' then to the middle finger, adding, 'and of the Holy Ghost,' finally, he left it, as now, on the fourth finger, with the closing word, 'Amen.'

A few weeks ago, a lady living in Detroit was assisting her dog to catch a rat, when it bit her. The bite was supposed to be accidental, but after a fortnight the wound began to grow inflamed, hydrophobia developed, and the lady died a horrible death.

Sorry He Wasn't There.

I have referred in my book to that coroner of ours who seized an Egyptian mummy that was brought into town, summoned a jury, held an inquest on the mummy, brought in a verdict of "Death from causes unknown," and charged the county with the usual fee, with compound interest from the time of Moses. Well, that coroner is still in office, and is still enthusiastic about his profession. Last Sunday night he was at church. The minister preached a very solemn sermon upon Noah's flood, and after it was over I met the coroner in the aisle and said to him:

"Very impressive discourse, Mr. Wheeler, wasn't it?"

"Beautiful, sir! beautiful," replied Wheeler. "And yet it seemed to be kinder mournful too."

"Indeed! Why, it didn't strike me in that way. It was solemn, of course; but its tendency certainly should be to fill the heart of every truly good man with cheerfulness and hope."

"Oh, I know all that," said Wheeler, "but didn't he say there were several million people drowned in that flood?"

"I believe he did."

"Well, then, I say that when I think of all that mortality, and remember that I wasn't a coroner then, and ain't likely to be when there's another such a freshet, it makes me sick. There ain't anything cheerful about such reflections. I feel's if I hadn't been treated right, 's if I'd been robbed."

In Case of Poisons.

Make your patient vomit, by giving a tumbler of warm water, with a teaspoonful of mustard in it, and then send for the doctor. If it be necessary to act without the doctor, and the poison is arsenic, give large quantities of milk and raw eggs, or flour and water. If the poison is an acid, give magnesia and water, or chalk and water, and plenty of warm water besides. If it is an alkali, like potash, give vinegar and water, lemon-juice, or some other safe acid. Always remember the emetic first. If it be laudanum, strong coffee is a good thing to give until the doctor comes. Keep the patient awake.

Tom presented his bill to his neighbor Joe for service rendered. The latter looked it over and expressed much surprise at the amount. "Why, Tom, it strikes me you have made out a pretty round bill here, eh?" "I know it is a pretty round one," quote Tom, "and I have come for the purpose of getting it squared."

A Western editor complains that all the good things in his paper are cut out and inserted in other papers without acknowledgement of the source whence they were obtained. He says, "They do not render unto scissors the things which are scissor's."

What is the difference between a clergyman with one leg and a clergyman with two?—The clergyman with two legs is only a clergyman, but the clergyman with one leg is a clergyman and a layman (lame on).

A dandy who wanted the milk passed to him at a hotel, thus asked for it—"Landlady, please to pass your cow down this way." The landlady thus retorted—"Waiter, take this cow down to where the calf is beating."

An insane patient at Utica, formerly a seamstress is reported to have had three hundred needles taken out of her body, which she is supposed to have swallowed from time to time during the last five years.

"Mother, what is a hush?"—"A hush my child? I don't know, what makes you ask that question?"—"Cause the other day I asked Jane what made her back stick out so, and she said, 'hush!'"

Industry is not always rewarded. A Sing Sing convict worked eighteen months on a false key, and it was taken away from him the day he completed it.

Complaint against fortune is often a masked apology for indolence.
