

Greenville Daily News Straight Out.

The Daily News, of Greenville, is outspoken in favor of a straight Democratic ticket for 1876. The News wants no compromise with Republicans, and says if there be any of the latter who desire to go in for Reform, they can unite with the Democrats. The News supports Chamberlain now but evidently would "go for him" if he should run in 1876.

The News and Courier.

The trial of Capt. F. W. Dawson of the News and Courier, indicted for libel, came to a close on Tuesday last. The case occupied seven days, and was watched throughout the State with a great deal of interest. Solicitor Buttz and D. T. Cobin, Esq., were Attorneys for Bowen, and Gen. Conner, W. D. Porter, Brawley and Smith, represented the defendant. On Tuesday the jury was discharged, they having failed to agree. Eleven of the jury were for acquittal, and one for guilty. Thus the case ended and we do not suppose it will be heard of again except through the newspapers. Captain Dawson seems to be jubilant over the result, and is right in for the press Convention.

ENTERTAINMENT IN AID

OF THE

ORANGEBURG BAPTIST CHURCH.

The Charades and Tableaux given Thursday night and last night in the Elliott Hook & Ladder Hall, for the purpose of raising funds to buy an organ for the choir of the Baptist Church of Orangeburg, met with decided success. The Hall was crowded with those whose sympathies were with the young performers throughout, and their warm applause cheered them on to win a renewal of the same, and they were successful too. The lateness of the hour, prevents us from making any comments or criticism of the performers. Next week, we promise an extended notice, and shall take occasion to take up the entire programme for both nights, and let the baby-darlings (our darlings) and the — darlings (somebody else's darlings) know exactly how we were impressed and what we think of their delightful success as amateur performers.

Live City.

The way to make a live city is to do all you can to make the business of your neighbor a success. Advertise your business men by speaking a good word for them wherever you go. Always be on the alert to induce new branches of industry to locate in your midst, judiciously aid every enterprise that promises to add business facilities; support local newspapers by taking and paying for them, and feeling an interest in their welfare; if you know of any item of news which would interest the public take some pains to let the editors know it; don't hold your vacant lots at a price too high; don't hold a penny so near your eyes as to hide a dollar at arm's length; don't oppose the opening of new streets, because it may interfere with your garden patch, don't believe but what you can grow larger cabbage in a small patch than in a large one, and that, cabbage heads thrive better any where than above your shoulders.

LOUISIANA.—Is in trouble again. This time the Democratic majority in the House have determined to send four members declared elected by the returning board, but which were not seated by the Hahn organization, which was in power before the compromise. This would give them a majority on joint ballot; but the Republican Senate threatened to adjourn if the action be carried out. They regard the situation in the same manner as Grant does reconstruction; that is, that everything is fixed, and never to be changed.

LATER.—The Louisiana Legislature has adjourned, without accomplishing anything for the good of the State. They did not forget, however, to pass the bill appropriating $170,000 to pay the expenses of the extra session.

And strange to say (we say strange because anything inconsistent we call strange) all the democratic members voted to pass the bill appropriating $170,000 to pay the expenses of a ten day's session.

Indian Warfare.

CHICAGO, April 24.

The following dispatch from Monument, Kansas, bearing this date, has been received at military headquarters to-day:

We attacked at daylight yesterday morning, on the north fork of Sapper creek, a party of sixty Cheyennes, which I believe to be some of those who have been at the agency. We cut off twenty-seven from their ponies and demanded their surrender. My demand was answered by a volley. After a desperate resistance, they were all killed. Nineteen warriors, including two chiefs and a medicine man, were among the dead. I captured one hundred and twenty-five ponies. The remainder of the Indians escaped with a portion of their stock. I burned their camp, consisting of twelve lodges, and all their effects. Sergeant Papierre and Private Teros, of my command, were killed.

(Signed) AUSTIN HANLEY,

Lieutenant 6th Cavalry.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT.

LOUISVILLE, April 24.

The Courier Journal's Kansas City correspondent telegraphs to-night the particulars of a desperate fight between a band of raiding Cheyennes and two companies of the 6th United States Cavalry, in which twenty-seven Indians were killed, on Thursday last. A band of Cheyennes were encamped near Monument station, 380 miles west of Kansas City. Information was sent to Old Fort Lyon, and Lieutenant Hanley, with two companies, was ordered out. They struck the trail and found that it was an old one. Throwing away their heavy baggage, the troops rode rapidly forward, and yesterday morning, at 4 o'clock, came up with the Indians on the banks of Sapper creek, forty miles south of Monument. The troops delayed until prepared for action, and with a brilliant dash rode upon the Indians. There were about sixty warriors. Seeing their danger the Cheyennes made a bold attempt to escape, but, being cut off, made a desperate fight. The engagement lasted for two hours, when the Indians broke and fled, leaving their ponies, baggage and tents on the field. Twenty-seven Indians and two soldiers (Sergeant Papierre and Private Teros) were killed. Among the Indians killed were two chiefs. Thirty-three Indians escaped, but the troops were in close pursuit. Intense excitement prevails along the border.

Words of Caution to Patrons of Husbandry

Several Patrons, seeing paragraphs in the papers hinting at mismanagement and frauds in the National Grange, general dissatisfaction, secession of Granges, and impending disorganization, have anxiously inquired, "What are the facts in the case? Is the order already demoralized, and about to be broken up?"

We have not been disposed to give the reports alluded to a moment's thought. If our correspondents will trace them back to their source, they will find that those who originated them, and seem so deeply concerned in regard to the condition and prospects of the Order, are not members of it, or friendly to it. Is it likely that they know more of its affairs than we, who are inside of the gates?

In regard to the National Grange, we presume it has committed errors. It has done things which we are unable to approve; but we are all liable to go wrong even with the best intentions, nor can we all think alike in regard to what is the wisest and best course; but that there has been any intentional subversion of the principles of the order for selfish, personal ends, or any fraudulent use of its funds; by the National Grange, we have no proof; nor do we believe a word of it. When the proceedings of the last session shall be published, a detailed statement of money received and expended will be within the reach of every Patron. Each can then judge for himself.

Among the ignorant and suspicious and the greater the ignorance th-more intense the suspicion) there is always dissatisfaction. That there is more ignorance, more suspicion, or more dissatisfaction in our Order than in any other society, or in the outside public, we do not believe. What little dissatisfaction there is, our enemies rejoice to see, and are active in fomenting. Shall we play into their hands? "But the order is breaking up." Yes, one Subordinate Grange in Iowa has seceded and declared its independence of the State Grange. So far as we can learn, this is all. This Grange was under discipline, at the time, for "irregularities." Let our outside "friends" console themselves with this undeniable fact.

Patrons, if the National Grange be corrupt, and a fraud and "humbug" whose fault is it, and in whose hands rests the remedy? Do you not elect your Master in the Subordinate Grange by a free vote—by universal suffrage (including the ladies)? If he is not a good man and a true Patron, whose fault is it? Do not the Masters of the Subordinate Granges and their wives, who are Matrons, constitute the State Granges? Do not they elect their Master? If the Masters of the State Granges are not good and true men and Patrons, again, whose fault is it? These Master (with their wives, who have taken the degree of Pomona) constitute the National Grange. To impeach that body is to impeach the State Granges, and to impeach the State Grange is to impeach the Subordinate Granges and the Patrons of Husbandry as a body. Do you not see, then, that if this great tree, which has grown so rapidly and overspread the land, is producing corrupt fruit, the corruption lies at the very roots—in the Subordinate Granges—in ourselves?

Brothers and sisters, if you are mindful of our "secret work," you will remember a certain "sign." When you see a member of the order listening to such outside slanders as we have alluded to, make use of it.—Rural Carolinian for May.

A Mother's Care.

She will not allow her girls to ride, because fox hunters sometimes get their necks broken. They may not have a pet dog in case it should go mad, nor any acornite or ronekhood in their gardens for fear they should poison themselves. Timid mother forbids her daughters to visit among the poor, for fear they might take small-pox, and will not allow one of them to go alone outside of the avenue gate from fear of garroters. The description which she gives of the neighboring fields is appalling. She represents them to be the lairs of mad bulls, savage tramps, venomous snakes and wild horses. Her girls cannot propose either work or play which she does not prove to be compassed with dangers horrible and hitherto unthought of. In their childish days they were not allowed a rocking horse for fear it should overbalance; nor a swing, in case the rope might break; nor a pocket-knife, lest they should cut their fingers. She is always tying comforters around her children's throat and applying flannel to mysterious places where it will not stay. She revels in chest protectors, respirators, and her room is adorned with sticking plasters and gullipots. She is always intent on proving that every one either has a cold or is taking one, and she may be seen at night in a flannel dressing-gown going from room to room with a gruel, pills, mustard leaves and India rubber hot bottles. She is constantly discovering obscure signs of some deadly disease in her children. She takes it for granted that her daughters have weak spines, so their beds are destitute of pillows, and there is a reclining board in every room. When she takes her girls to a picnic she will not allow them to sit on the grass, nor in the sun, nor under a tree, nor on a rock. They must return with her before the dew begins to rise, and are never allowed to look at the moon except through a window.

Is the South a Grass Growing Country.

Look in your neighbor's cotton field (your own is all right, of course) and judge for yourself. Set up a slab, and on it engrave the legend, "Gone to Grass," and never say that our climate does not suit that plant. "Gone to Grass" may be an appropriate epithet for the Rural Carolinian, when the planters and farmers of the South conclude to let it die. "May we [not] be there to see?" We advocate grass but not in the cotton field. Even crab grass is a good thing in its place, but that is not where another crop requires the use of the soil, so we may just hint that now is the time to be lively with the ploughs and hoes. Crab grass is easy to kill when young and tender, but let it get foothold and strength and we all know how hard it is to eradicate, especially if any unlucky shower should come just after it has been hoed up.—Rural Carolinian for May.
